Sir,—In continuation of my letter of last week I herewith give you further particulars of our Starling. My Persian cat is fond of laying about the grass in the garden, and one day Jim's mother (we call the Starling "Jim") brought into the garden three young ones, but Jim could not fly, so my cat picked him up and brought him to us (my wife and I). We did not know what to do with him. My wife proposed to put some flannel in my hatbox and keep him in it! We used to feed him very often and press the food down his throat with a pen-holder. This we did for about three weeks. We thought if we let him go that he would not be able to get his own living. So I bought him a cage and used to hang him in the garden. Every time I passed him I used to say, "Give me a kiss, Jim." This was the first sentence that he spoke. We began to feed him on hard-boiled egg and bread (not crust) chopped up fine, and have continued to feed him on this, with a little crushed hemp-seed. He has, however, something of everything that comes on the table. We give him raw beef three times a week, and raw onions about as often. My wife's brother, who has been in the Volunteers, taught him the bugle call. If he hears my wife in the next room he calls "Mum." She asks, "What do you want?" He replies, "Jim's kisses." I have not named one quarter of what he says. We are no judges of what he sings. Every dinner-time we open his door and he flies out for his bath. We have a heavy glass salt-cellar. We put the water into this and stand it on a newspaper on the table. The bird stands on the side, and after dipping his head in two or three times, stands and talks to my wife! Then he comes round the table to me until he gets dry, after which he flies on to my wife's head. He sings, whistles and talks then, until he goes back into his cage. Oftentimes when he comes out he goes to sleep in my wife's lap. No money could induce us to part with him. I enclose you a few lines that I wrote about "Jim" some time ago.

EDWARD LAXTON.

To "Jimmy," a Starling that Sings, Whistles and Talks.

Jimmy is our darling,
He sings so sweet and clear;
He calls his mistress "O! dear Mum,"
Because she's such a dear.

He is so fond of pudding,
And eats a lot of rice,
And whistles us a bugle call,
And says, "It's very nice,"

He's very fond of children,
And tells them what to do;
He says they're very pretty,
And also saucy, too.

So, Jim, we love you much,
And hope to have you long,
To please us with your talking,
And cheer us with your song.

Siberian Goldfinches and the Use of Grit.

Sir,—I was much interested in Mr. Norman's letter re grit for Goldfinches. He says that to give grit sparingly is on the same principle as giving water or food sparingly after the bird has not had any for some time, but it seems to me absolutely different, as grit is not a food. It is to a bird what our teeth are to us, a means of grinding our food to enable us to digest it, and if a man has the misfortune to lose his teeth he does not get two or three false ones put in at intervals so that he can only partially grind his food. He gets a whole set in at once, so that he can start grinding his food at once almost as well as he did with his natural ones, and if a bird has been kept so long without grit as to have none left in its gizzard, it sems to me that the sooner he gets a full supply again the better.

H. M. P.

[Our correspondent seems to have overlooked the fact that a man cannot crowd a surplus number of false teeth into his mouth. Whether he replaces his natural ones by degrees, or all at once, he cannot have more than the normal number at any time. When a bird has been deprived of food, water, or grit for a lengthened period, it would take too much of either if suddenly allowed access to an unlimited quantity, and it would be as easy for the bird to overload its gizzard with grit as to take too much food or water in its eagerness to assuage the feelings of protracted hunger or thirst.—Ed.]

Captive Raven Eats a Seagull.

Sir,—A correspondent, "A. I. M.," writes to "The Scotsman" as under, and I thought the letter would be interesting to readers of CAGE BIRDS, so am sending you the extract.

The raven in the Kelvingrove Park, Glasgow, rather astonished the visitors about 3 p.m. last Sunday. This bird is the survivor of a pair, its mate having disappeared several months ago. It haunts, as a rule, the trees on the east side of the pond, but is often to be seen on the ground, hopping along the bank. A good many Gulls, attracted by the food regularly laid out for the waterfowl, frequent the neighbourhood of the pond and partake of the city's hospitality. The Raven was on its usual perch last Sunday well up a tree, while a little colony of Gulls were noisily enjoying themselves near by. The Raven was then seen to descend the tree and to make towards the Gulls, who were unsuspicious of any danger When about four yards from the Gulls, half a dozen of which were on the grassy bank, the Raven dashed in its clumsy way upon them, seizing one by the neck. A shake or two, and the poor Gull was on its back, evidently helpless; a few dabs from the Raven's strong bill and there was an end. Thereupon the Raven tore up the Gull and, carefully removing the feathers, began to feed on its victim. On inquiry, the park attendant informed us that this was by no means the Raven's first attack on other birds, though itself pinioned; several Sparrows and Pigeons, as well as Gulls, having already fallen victims to its desire to occasionally kill its own food."

Thrush Follows Its Benefactors.

Sir,—The paragraph herewith, from "The South Wales Daily News," Cardiff, may be of interest to your readers:—"On one occasion my children playing in the backyard broke a large pane of glass in the scullery window. One day a Thrush entered the scullery, and in going out through the broken pane of glass broke one of its legs clean off. During the ensuing winter and for some months afterwards the bird was regularly fed in the back yard and garden. After about nine months we moved to another house four miles away. One morning a one-legged Thrush appeared on the green in front of the house, and continued appearing for some time, and was continually fed."

A Yorkshire Breeder Leaves Ireland for New Zealand.

Sir,—I am sorry to tell you that Ireland has lost a genuine fancier in the person of Mr. James Henery, a native of Ballymoney. He promised to be a good exhibitor, for he has been only two years in the Fancy, and has secured several first prizes in some of the leading shows in Ireland. No doubt we will feel the loss of him, but although Ireland is one the poorer, we are glad to know that New Zealand will be one the richer. He told me just before he went away that he intended taking up the Yorkshires in New Zealand, and that he will always welcome CAGE BIRDS, for he will be still on the look out to read how we are doing in the Land o' the Shamrock. A kinder and a more straightforward young man than Mr. Henery never left the Emerald Isle, and as a mark of the esteem in which he was held, his colleagues in the firm of Messrs. Stevenson and Co., Ltd., made him the recipient of a gold albert and a gold scarf pin; long may he live to wear both. Mr. Dunlop made the presentation, and wished him long life and prosperity in the Land of his Adoption. Mr. Henery replying in a most admirable way. At the close of the social all joined in singing "He's a jolly good fellow," this closed the proceedings, and it was the hope of everyone present that he will succeed in the Land of his Adoption. He sailed from Plymouth on August 16, and we all wish him a safe journey.

A Door that Needs Neither Hinges Nor Fastener.

Sir,—I enclose for your consideration a method of fixing doors to show and other cages without hinges or fastener. Fig. 1 shows end of cage with hole and notches cut to receive door. Fig. 2 shows section of door through A.B., with batten screwed on at cut out at each end, to slide round the end of cage. Fig. 3 is inside of door, showing batten. To fix, enter door with batten opposite notches in cage end, and give it half a turn, and it is fixed.

A Cinnamon Canary-Bullfinch Bred.

Sir,—I am pleased to inform you that a member of the Watford C.B.S. has been successful in breeding a Cinnamon Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid. I should like to know if such coloured bird is a rare one from that cross.

Brechin C.B.S. and the Rules of the Border Fancy Club.

Partners and their Medals.

Sir,—At the close of the last meeting of Brechin C.B.S. a few of the members foregathered at the "Port" for a crack about things in general and birdy topics in particular. One subject in particular was mentioned, viz., the manner in which the business of the Border Fancy Club was conducted. The local members are of opinion that, seeing that only a very few members are able to be present at the meetings, a better plan would be to send notices to each member of the business to be considered, and also enclosing a voting card, which would have to be posted to the secretary in ample time for the meeting. By this method every member would have a direct vote in the club, and this, I think, would be much more satisfactory to everyone concerned. Then the matter of club subscription came up for discussion. Under the present system each member has a sum of 2s. 6d. to pay for membership, for which he is entitled to win three medals (no more) in one year. This is just and fair, but take the case of two members who are in partnership. They have to pay 2s. 6d. each, but are not entitled to get six medals, as one would naturally suppose. They are only entitled to three medals under present rules. The feeling here seems to be in favour of altering the rules so that members in partnership should only pay 2s. 6d. between them per annum, or else be entitled to six medals. I should be glad to hear what Cage Birds readers think regarding these points.

A Novice's Success with Roller Canaries.

Sir,—As a 1st year novice Roller fancier I feel it a pleasure to write you of my success, and would like you to find a space for it in Cage Birds. My stock comprises two cocks and six hens (1912 bred) all grand stuff. My pilot paper has been Cage Birds from the beginning, and I owe my success entirely to it. My first nest of four eggs hatched out on Good Friday; second nest, Easter Sunday; third nest, Easter Monday; so you see I had a good send off—nine out of 12 eggs, three clear. Like a good many fanciers, I found rights and wrongs as I went along, through starting too soon, but all the same I have had grand results, 34 grand young birds. Time after time I met with difficulties, but Cage Birds pulled me through, and encouraged me with my hobby. I was short of music in March, but now I have some grand songsters, they are a musical treat. Novice breeders, take my advice; always read Cage Birds, and keep your back numbers on a file for reference, a well ventilated room free from draughts, cleanliness, and correct feeding, and your success is certain. I have not a sick bird in my room. My stock were in large flights up to breeding season, and the youngsters are being reared in large flights. My record for the season is: Eggs 63, 34 birds reared, 14 clear eggs, 9 killed in nests, six dead in shell.

Plymouth Show and the S.N.P.C. Patronage.

Sir,—As a member of the Plymouth Show Committee and an admirer of the Norwich Plainhead, I should like to express my disappointment that the S.N.P.C. has not granted its patronage to Plymouth open show on Oct. 14 and 15 next, especially so because Plymouth has extended its prize-money to 25s. per class for an entrance fee of 1s. 6d., and is giving seven prizes—no codding cards—in each class. I am quite aware, the other eight societies which applied for the Club's patronage have the best of reputations for good management, but Plymouth is in no way behind them. I am sure it will be readily admitted by all that Plymouth's prize-money is not equalled by any of these other societies which applied. The opinion was expressed in the columns of Cage Birds during the interesting discussions which took place on "shows and showing" that prize-money was small, it therefore seems to me that the society which extends its prize-money as Plymouth has done—and has paid same on first day of show for some years—should receive every encouragement from Specialists Clubs, formed for the purpose of the advancement of the Fancy. The S.N.P.C. has twelve committee men entitled to vote for the patronage shows, nine of whom sent in voting papers. Plymouth received four votes, and as three of the committee are members also of the Plymouth society, it is evident that exceptionally generous prize-money coupled with extremely prompt payment and low entry fee is not a recommendation with the S.N.P.C.

THE FASCINATION OF AN AVIARY

By WESLEY T PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

A LITTLE time and attention bestowed upon doors and fastenings are well spent, for in many instances inadequate fastenings have resulted in serious loss and grievous disappointment. At the same time, while all the locks, catches, etc., must be adequate, the simpler their character the better.

Twiggy branches have already been alluded to and are only referred to again to state that the supply must be ample, so that choice of resting places is not restricted. This provision will tend to the general peace of a mixed community. For the same reason, nest receptacles must be numerous and varied, two or three are not too many for each pair of birds. They may be of almost any kind—small closed boxes with a hole at one side for entrance, open boxes, rush nests, husks, small barrels, or straw hats nailed to the wall by the brim, and a hole cut in the crown to give ingress and egress to the birds.

Advice about the Seed Hoppers.

There should be several food hoppers, as if all are compelled to crowd round a central dish timid birds will be more or less continuously on short commons. A good practice is to make a couple of small hangers, and suspend these some distance apart in the covered portion of the aviary. A useful hanger is easily made by cutting six pieces of board each six inches square, then getting four bamboo canes, or similar sticks, and fastening these one at each corner of the boards, the respective boards to be six to eight inches apart. You will then have a hanger of six small platforms on each of which a pan of seed can be stood, while from the underside of the top platform three or four wire nails can be driven, and are useful for impaling fruit, as such then cannot be dragged continuously about by the birds. Moreover, the contents of seed pans, etc., on the respective platforms are each kept clean by the platform above, and cannot be fouled by flying birds.

The bath may consist either of a shallow concrete basin, with waste-pipe leading to drain-pipe soak-away, as already described, or shallow photographic dishes (these make excellent baths) may be stood about for the use of the birds.

It is well to give an ample range of nesting material so as to meet the requirements of all—supply cowhair, goat's hair, clean moss, hay and long grass; leaves and fine rootlets are also appreciated by many species.

Birds for Beginners.

In considering the various groups of birds, certain species will be named, not necessarily that all should be included, but rather that a selection be made therefrom, as the less closely are the species related, the better they are likely to agree. Thus, if one can only have ten pairs and one desires them to be representative of our title, then it would be well to confine one's selection somewhat as follows:—Pairs each of Buntings, Budgerigars, Finches, Grassfinches, Waxbills, Mannikins, Canaries, Softbills, and three British Seed-eaters.

Of Budgerigars, Parrakeets, and Lovebirds (Psittaci) Budgerigars are perhaps the most mischievous of all, yet in the past I have kept them in mixed series—Finches, etc. There were occasional mishaps—sometimes a few of the birds were minus some of their toes; but actual tragedies were not numerous, neither was the aviary in a chronic state of uproar. Cockatiels I have never found to worry or harm the smallest Waxbill confined with them, and for many years I was never without them. I have possessed many, and speaking from the experience gleaned from a fairly large number, have never possessed a cantankerous individual. Lovebirds I have found very erratic, not at all to be trusted. Personally, I cannot recommend them for the mixed aviary.

The only Lory I have ever been able to associate with other birds has been the exquisite Varied Lorikeet, and I kept this for five or more years in the mixed series, and found it most inoffensive, and also hardy and enduring. The larger Parrakeets are very uncertain, but I have found the Red Rosella fairly safe, and have come across many aviculturists whose experience has been the same.

Some Nesting Necessaries.

As regards nesting, Budgerigars, Lories, and Parrakeets (except the Quaker Parrakeet) deposit their eggs on the bare wood amid a few chips left from the fashioning of the nest cavity, log, or barrel, but I have found a light sprinkling of thoroughly rotten wood, that has been crumbled in the hand, in the nest receptacle, appreciated by nearly all species. Lovebirds mostly line their nests with leaves, bark, dried stems of greenfood, and even the denuded millet sprays, or almost any rubbish they find in their enclosure. The nest receptacles for all groups of the Psittaci should have concave bottoms, or the eggs will roll about and get spoiled. The thickness of the branches put up as perching accommodation should be very varied. The question of diet for all groups will be dealt with as a whole at the end of this article.

Of the Buntings (Emberizinæ): One or two pairs may be kept according to the compass of the aviary, but even in a large aviary not many pairs of Buntings should be associated together. The Nonpareil, Indigo, Black-headed, Red-headed, Hair-crested, and Ruddy Buntings, Pileated Finch, Green Cardinal, and Red-crested (very unreliable and variable in demeanour) have all been kept with more or less success. I have personally tested them all, and in one aviary 20ft by 10ft. I kept all the above together, associated with other groups for several years, with only an occasional "scrap," and never a serious mishap, but, other aviculturists have not been quite so happy in their experience. They mostly construct an open cup-shaped nest, either in a box or amid any available faggot of branches; but very few Buntings have been bred in captivity. While young are being fed, live-food—mealworms, smooth caterpillars, ants' "eggs," well scoured gentles, small beetles, spiders, and plant lice generally—must be liberally supplied, or probably the fledgelings will be thrown out of the nest almost at once.

A Selection of Grosbeaks.

I do not advise putting the larger Grosbeaks, Hawfinch, Virginian, Cardinal, etc., into a mixed series, unless the aviary be a very roomy one; but there are many small Grosbeaks (Spermophila, for instance) which are charming in demeanour and general characteristics, and also quite safe in the mixed series. Here are a few: Tropical Seed Finch, Jacarini Finch, Grey Grosbeak or Finch, Plumbeous Finch, Fire-red and Lavender-backed Finches, Reddish, Bluish, Guttural, and Lined Finches, Cuban, and Olive Finches (the two latter rather pugnacious). The remarks as to live-food being necessary for the rearing of young Buntings apply equally to this group.

I have usually had half-a-dozen or more species of the above in my aviary of recent years, and the only ones I found to be untrustworthy are the popular Cuban and Olive Finches; nevertheless, there are many pairs of these two species who are quite model members of a cosmopolitan avian community.

The Beautiful Little Waxbills.

Among the Weavers (Ploceidæ) are the Waxbills, Grassfinches, Mannikins, Weavers and Whydahs, and many birds designated as Finches (Weaving Finches). Of the Waxbills, practically all of them may be kept together with perfect safety—they are too numerous to name, but they include the Firefinches, Cordon Bleus, Avadavats, Waxbills generally (Golden-breasted, Grey, Orange-cheek, St. Helena, Sydney, Melba, etc.). Some of the above should be included in every mixed series; once they have become acclimatised most of them are hardy and enduring. A dozen or more of the above light up any series with life, colour, and interest. Rush-nests, Hartz-travelling-cages, small boxes, straw-hats nailed to the wall by the brim and a small hole cut in the crown, and coco-nut shell nests, all form excellent nest receptacles for these charming, minute, and interesting birds.

Amazing Differences of Opinion.

Did ever a Bird have so many Faults?

OUR last competition proved, we think we are justified in saying, one of the most remarkable of the lengthy number we have from time to time promoted. On the face of it there was nothing which could possibly lead us to anticipate that we should find ourselves writing of it in this strain. We believe, however, that readers will, after perusing these lines, agree that we have exaggerated the situation not one whit.

It will be remembered that we published a drawing of a Yorkshire Canary, and stated that our artist said that he considered this depicted a bird possessed of a particularly bad fault from the exhibition point of view; to the reader correctly naming this fault we offered a cash prize. The response was enormous; the problem obviously appealed to a considerable number of our readers. And we may say that no fewer than 175 sent in correct answers. The draw (as per rules) for the winner favoured

Mr. G. Hamlyn,
26, Bitton Hill,
Teignmouth,
Devon.

Will he, therefore, please let us know whether he prefers cash, or our books to value, and, if the latter, state their titles?

A Real, as Well as a Pictured, Fault.

The fault was "bad wings"—i.e., short and carried too far apart. Of course there were minor faults intentionally included in the picture, but these were insignificant compared to the above. A model answer, indeed—one that puts the whole matter into a "nutshell"—is that sent by Mr. Thos. Atkinson, of Stamford St., Old Trafford. This fancier's postcard reads:—

"Although your artist has (no doubt quite wittingly) sketched a specimen of the Yorkshire faulty in several respects, the most glaring and outstanding fault is the short and badly-carried wings."

Another competitor, Mr. A. W. Farmer, of Leyton, goes further and considers breeders should be warned against the prevalence of this fault in the modern exhibition Yorkshires.

The Astonishing Side.

It is a perusal of the unsuccessful postcards which reveals the astonishing side of the competition hinted at above. We may say that the competitors who returned wrong answers outnumbered by far those who correctly solved the problem—in fact, the proportion was just over three to one. Many of the unsuccessful ones seem to have had the bird under a microscope, so to speak, and in the search for some supposedly concealed blemish, to have overlooked the real failing, presumably because of its very obviousness! The ingenuity, if we may so term it, of competitors in discovering faults in the bird was really remarkable. The publication of the appended analysis of these failings will, we think, be found very entertaining.

It will be noticed that practically not one single point of the bird escapes adverse comment from some one or other, while, most astonishing of all, many competitors "take sides" concerning various points and express exactly contrary opinions about them! For instance, some say that the bird is too hollow on the back, some that it is too flat on the back, and others that its back is too round! When such amazingly opposed views can be seriously put forward concerning the mere drawing of a bird, then it is surely not to be wondered at that opinions should differ about the good and bad points of birds in the actual flesh, and that the awards of judges should meet with comment of varying shades of approval and disapproval. To facilitate the appreciation of the remarks which follow, we reproduce herewith the drawing of the Yorkshire which gave rise to them, and we commence the criticisms from the beak and continue downwards to the tip of the tail!

The beak is looking too straight out; it should look a little more up with the body.—J. A. Oates (Tavistock).

The head is too big, compared with the body.—W. Potterton (Norton) and F. Jacob (Witney).

It has got a Norwich head, too much brow.—W. Wright (Tamworth) and J. McAlister (Springburn).

Skull too flat.—(This answer is sent by 53 competitors).

Forehead too high.—(Sent by 13 competitors).

The head is not long enough.—E. G. Frost (Cambridge).

The neck is too short.—A. McKenzie (Wick) and R. Davidson (Currie).

The bird is too hollow-necked.—J. Wright (Raynes Park)

It is too thick in the neck.—D. Thomson (Buckhaven).

The shoulders are bad.—M. O'Hara (Enniscorthy).

The bird is hump-backed.—W. Jackson (Hereford), T. J. Reynolds (Helston), H. F. Marsh (Preston), T. Gibson (Houghton-le-Spring), J. F. Stride (Southampton). Spoiled by the rise in the back.—H. Wilcock (Mytholmroyd). Awkward bump in back.—H. L. Oakes (Spalding). Back too round.—F. Collins (Camborne); and 19 other competitors.

The bird is too flat on the back.—S. Wilson (Cramlington), E. Sharpe (Melton Mowbray). Not rounded enough on back.—E. Townsend (Bradford); and 11 other competitors.

The bird has a hollow back.—E. Chance (Twickenham) and 5 other competitors. It is not filled in in the back.—W. H. Partridge (Manchester).

The back is not straight.—J. Corrall (Coventry), and 19 other competitors.

The back is too short.—C. S. Latham (Abersychan).

The fault is a narrow breast.—M. Murphy (Enniscorthy). The breast is too slim.—H. J. Ford (Maesycwmmer). Shallow in breast.—E. Holme (Barrow-in-Furness) and 5 others. Too fat on breast.—R. Evans (Ushaw Moor) and 7 others. Too straight down breast.—J. S. Butterworth (Rochdale) and 21 others.

Opinions About the Wings.

Faulty wing carriage (wings not meeting at the tips).—J. Buchanan (Stonehouse) and 198 other competitors.

Bad gutter (or spout) down back, through wing feathers not meeting.—J. Thomas (Otley) and 11 others.

Open wing carriage caused by flatness of back.—Mrs. Lockett (Dover).

The tapering-off of the wings is at fault.—W. L. Garrod (Fulham). The beginning of the wing should be more rounded.—A. Brown (Glasgow).

One feather missing from left wing, causing unevenness of line of back.—W. Moore (Bishop Auckland). Wings not even; there are only five marks on one side and six on the other.—L. Kitching (Thornton-le-dale).

Carries the far shoulder too high, thus causing wings not to meet at tips.—A. Howarth (Smallbridge).

Shows too much thigh.—S. Nancarrow (Bootle) and 15 others. Shows only one thigh instead of two.—J. Brennan (Larne).

Stands too broad legged on the perch.—J. E. Farrell (Hayle). Stands with legs too far apart.—G. O. Hagan (Jarrow) and 26 other competitors.

Is at fault in the joint of the right leg.—S. Russon (Burnley)

Shows too much thigh, does not stand at proper angle, and flights are too short and do not meet.—J. Devins (Sligo).

Not well tapered; cut off too short behind.—A. James (Spalding) and 7 others. Too short behind the legs.—F. Reed (Ryde). Not well drawn out; not enough behind legs.—J. Locke (Bristol).

The tail is too long.—C. Heathcote (Saltley) and 15 other competitors. Too much lead on the tail.—W. B. Main (Aberdeen). Tail is insufficiently piped.—J. Ward (Melton). Bird has one extra tail feather too many.—R. H. Beber (Yarmouth). Tail not even, one side shorter than the other.—J. Radley (Skelmanthorpe) and 28 other competitors.

The bird has got too big hind claws.—C. Doggett (Waterbeach). The hind claws don't grip the perch.—T. Honey (Netherton Colliery).

The bird's head, neck, back and tail should be in a straight line.—E. Evans (Neath) and 34 other competitors.

The majority of the remainder of the answers say that the bird is not of the standard length; but the length was limited by the space at our disposal when reproducing the drawing (i.e., the width of one of our columns). It was not intended that size should be taken into consideration.

A few of the Ramblers on the Crags at Wharncliffe.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S. MEMBERS RAMBLE THROUGH WOODS, AND OVER HILL AND MOOR.

The third ramble of the season, held Aug. 9, proved a great success, a fair number turning up considering that the weather was a bit unsettled in the morning, but as the day advanced, the sun came out and the conditions at the time of starting were excellent. Taking train to Oughtibridge, we cross the line and immediately are in the midst of the rambler's paradise. Our guide was Mr. A. Bailey, and he struck off a different way from the one we took on the last occasion. The idea was to make the ramble shorter, but, as it turned out, we did about six miles more than last time. What a trot we had, and what a lot of questions were asked our guide, such as how much further before we get tea now? Leaving the station, we enter Wharncliffe Wood, and keeping to the left, we traverse the bottom side of the wood. This is one long avenue, some three miles in length, with lots of beauty spots here and there; the trees, ferns, etc., looked beautiful after the rain of the previous day. Passing along we catch sight of a Redstart, though birdlife seemed to be rather quiet to-day, not many species being seen. Emerging from the woods, we begin the ascent of the Crags, and what a climb we had; all were ready for a rest when we reached the top. Looking around from here the view is grand; in the distance, miles away, could be seen the Langsett Reservoir, Bolster Stone, and Kirk Edge Orphanage, now a convent for Catholic nuns. After a brief rest we resume our journey, picking our way as best we can, as the road is very rough just here, and we eventually come to the semblance of a track; making our way along this we pass acres that a few years ago caught fire, and the ground was stripped of all vegetation, but in places the heather and bracken are growing again. After a mile or so on the top of the Crags, we again enter the wood, and after all our walking and climbing the inner man was beginning to make himself felt. The question is asked: "How much further, Mr. Bailey?" "Oh, not so far now," comes the answer, so on we go till we emerge from the wood and enter the moors. Here are a few houses, presumably of keepers, as several hutches were about containing ferrets, these being kept no doubt to fetch the rabbits out of their holes. Enquiring how far we were from Hollow Farm (as here tea was awaiting us), we are told about half-an-hour's walk. As we enter the moors we are greeted with the sight of two red deer, and they looked very beautiful as they scampered away. Rabbits were about in hundreds; you could see them everywhere. After a while we came in sight of a house, and when we learn it is our destination a sigh of relief is heard, and friend Bailey goes on in front to warn them we are coming. It appears they had given us up, but it is not long before everything is ready, and we begin tea about 7.30. For the next half-hour very little is said, the things provided claiming our attention. When all are satisfied, we commence our homeward journey. The sun is sinking like a great red ball behind the hills; the effect is beautiful, and this alone was worth the walk to see. From now our way lay along the main road, most of it down hill, a welcome change. We pass through the village of Grenaside, then on to Wadsley Bridge, and here the party begins to break up, but before doing so, not being satisfied with what we had already done, we fix up another ramble for Sept. 6, to Ryecroft Glen, meet at Ecclesall Car terminus at 2.30. This one is not so far, and is arranged specially so that the ladies can accompany us. Thus ended another fine outing, and we are looking forward to the next; everybody welcome.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

THE MARVEL OF THE CUCKOO'S EGGS.

How They are Slowly Changing—The Better to Deceive the Foster-parents.

In the "Ibis" magazine, Mr. Stuart Baker has a very interesting contribution concerning the parasitic members of the Cuckoo family, and their eggs, his observations being based on a lengthy experience of the birds in many lands. Speaking on the question as to whether their eggs are still undergoing adaptation in size, shape, and colour, in order to conform more nearly to those of the selected foster-parents, he writes:—"There are still ornithologists who declare that no such process of evolution is in existence, and that there is practically no law which governs the Cuckoo's practice as to where it places its eggs. These authorities, in order to enforce their arguments, point to the Cuckoo's eggs which are so often found in other birds' nests, together with eggs with which they have absolutely nothing in common; and when an oologist, trying to prove them wrong, says 'How is it that so many blue eggs are found in Redstarts' nests?' the other side replies, 'How is it that so many Cuckoos deposit their eggs in the Hedge-Sparrows' nests, yet so very few are found to be blue?'"

"Both are right in what they say, only it is hardly fair to lay down general laws after a study of but one species, and, therefore, before drawing any deductions many species should be studied. Also it should be understood that in the case of the evolution of the Cuckoo's egg Nature is working much as she works in other cases. Evolution here only means the elimination of the unfit; creation is the result of destruction, and the result of perfect adaptation is attained by the slow but sure elimination by the foster-parents of those eggs which contrast most distinctly with their own. It is not the Cuckoo that evolves a perfectly adapted egg, but the foster-parents, which gradually eliminate the types of Cuckoos' eggs that are so ill-adapted as to attract their notice. By this means those strains of Cuckoos which lay the most ill-adapted eggs gradually die out, whilst those that lay eggs most like those of the fosterer are enabled to persist."

Mr. Baker summarises the matters in these words:—

"I have now for many years past collected eggs of Asiatic parasitic Cuckoos, and a study of the very many hundreds that have passed through my hands has produced sufficient material to satisfy me on the following points:—

"1.—That the eggs of the parasitic Cuckoos have undergone, or are undergoing, a process of adaptation.

2.—That the majority of foster parents are totally unconscious of incongruity in size between their own eggs and that of the Cuckoo.

3.—That they are not conscious of variation in shape.

The Shows.

BRIGHTON AND HOVE C.B.A.

WESTON (Cheshire).

Third annual Horticultural and Ornithological show held Aug. 15 under canvas in a field opposite the "Village Hall," when glorious weather prevailed. A very pretty show with much festivity attached—Morris dancers, maypole, and many other outdoor pleasures resulted. Cage birds were a nice lot, the novices being really keen competitors. Hyde's special was very keenly contested for, with an entry of 14 birds, a capital chin.-mkd. Yorks. (Tomlinson) winning. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged to the general satisfaction. Mr. Harry Barker very ably opened the show and promised a valuable challenge cup to be competed for in future. Mr. Nancollis made an able Sec., assisted by a capital working committee of working men fanciers.

Club Reports.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held McLean's Hotel, August 16, Mr. Joseph R. Reid chair. An amended estimate from Mr. W. F. Simpson for the printing of marked catalogues for the open show was considered. After discussion, it was agreed that the extra expenditure would be justified, and the estimate was accordingly accepted. Encouraging reports were given by the canvassers, patronage and specials coming in well. A discussion took place re the holding of table shows during the meetings in the winter months. Various views were expressed, and as no definite finding was come to, the subject will be raised again at next monthly meeting. Chairman reported that Mr. A. W. Ping, of Auchterpool was willing to give the members some sidelights on his bird-keeping experiences, and the secretary was instructed to write Mr. Ping and try to arrange meeting for August 30, so members, please watch the club and society notices column for the date, and be sure and come along. Vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—John W. Holms, Sec.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Aug. 14, Mr. J. Woolhouse chair, with only a poor attendance on account of the holidays. Mr. Woolhouse gave a lecture on moulting and colour feeding, which was very interesting. Mr. Woolhouse is a strong believer in plenty of fresh air without draught. He thinks that two nests are sufficient for a season as we get very little benefit from the third round, and without it the old birds get over the moult sooner. He brought with him egg-food and colour-food, showing us his method of mixing. He mixes one day a week, giving a mixture of mixed seed in place. Many questions were asked and ably answered. This is where the novice loses ground by missing these meetings. Will members kindly bring in their tickets and money for N.F. show? Next meeting Sept. 11. Lecture on Foreign Birds, by Mr. G. Fletcher, and arrangements for Nov. show. Members should not miss this meeting.—A. Lawton, Assist. Sec.

ARBROATH C.B.S.

Meeting held Shepherd's Rooms, Millgate, W. Muir presided over a large attendance to hear the report of our delegate at the meeting held under the auspices of the "Forfarshire Medal Union," which gave every satisfaction to all. Intimation was received of a good lot of specials for open show. Decided to give a medal for best bird exhibited by a novice member, also a medal for most points by a novice member. Letter was read from the B.F.C.C., granting us the patronage and medal. Other minor matters were considered, and the meeting was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—J. Gray, Sec.

SALE C.B.S.

Meeting held 10, Brook-st., Aug. 11. Decided that Messrs. Tom Harrison, of Bowden, and J. W. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, judge our open show, also that all members show in the open in the 49 classes provided. There will be another meeting at my house on Aug. 25, as our secretary, Mr. Hardcastle, finds that it is the only open date he can have with us until the beginning of October. He will be pleased to see as many of the members as possible. The classification for open show will be read out for the last time. It will too late to alter same afterwards, so let 'em all come; ours is a free house, and all will be welcomed. Two more specials for show have been promised.—Horace Whitney, Assist. Sec..

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting held Aug 12, at Marylebone Church Institute, Paddington Street, Mr. W. A. Shepherd chair, Mr. V. Wynn, bon. sec., and a few members present. Letters were read from the Hon. Mrs. Bourke, who kindly sent a silver rose bowl for competition at annual show, Mr. and Mrs. Tatton, resigning membership as they had taken a business in the country, Mr. Allen Silver, Hon. Sec. Foreign bird exhibition league, drawing attention to the numerous classes for Foreign birds at the next L.C.B.A. show, at the Horticultural Hall, and the hon. sec. of the London Federation re trophy, to be competed for by the affiliated societies. Messrs. A. Wallington and J. C. Ellis were nominated for election, and Messrs. W. Smith and H. S. Goodman were elected members. The Hon. Sec. presented the balance-sheet for Y.B. show, and quarterly balance-sheet of the society, which were passed as correct. Questions were then handed round, and the discussion brought out some very useful hints as to bird management, and novel ideas to increase the attendance of visitors at shows. Members please note that at next meeting, Sept. 8, there is a competition for collections of wild seeds; judge, Mr. A. Silver. If good entries are received a very interesting and instructive evening is assured.—F. Thynne, Asst. Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Aug. 7, at Wentworth Cafe, Mr. J. Thorpe chair. The attendance was small, a lot of members being on their holidays, including our President, Mr. Jones, and our Sec., Mr. A. Hobson. For the open show, Oct. 18, there are to be six classes each for champion Yorks, and Nor., four each novice Yorks. and Nor., Limit £3 3s., four Crests, two Mules, nine British (including one novice £2 2s. limit), four Foreign and two Selling. Entry is the usual 1/6; prize money 10/-, 6/-, 4/-, 2/-; prize money for Foreign classes, 12/-, 8/-, 4/-, 2/-; specials for open show were promised by Messrs. Thorpe, Woolhouse, Walsh, Sparks, C. W. Hobson and Drabble; also the following promised birds for the gift class, Messrs. Sopsby and Billard, Bailey, Drabble, A. Hobson, C. W. Hobson, Thorpe, J. Woolhouse and Wakefield. Questions by ballot took up the remainder of the evening, and several of them created interesting discussions. Next meeting important; all members attend.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

N. COUNTIES NORWICH P.C.

Meeting held Aug. 14, Mr. R. Topping chair, a fair number present. Correspondence was read from Sunderland in reference to patronage, so we have now got our shows complete for same. Decided to have handbooks printed for members so as to know when and where our patronage is allotted. Members wishing to have a small advt. or breeders' card in same please let me know as early as possible; I have already got a few names; charge 1s. Two well-known gentlemen attended our meeting, Messrs. Jas. Maddison and R. Tindale. Mr. Tindale a while since, sold out owing to business matters but has all his cages and bird room utensils, and will soon be in full swing again. He is going to keep a pair or two of Norwich along with his "long 'uns," so if Mr. Tindale takes as much whacking with these as he did with Yorkshires, the Norwich fanciers in the North will have to be moving round to keep foot with him. We all wish him success with his new variety. A lecture on colour feeding was given by Mr. Curry, and was listened to very attentively by all present; several questions were asked by those present, and all seemed to receive a favourable reply. Mr. Tindale also gave us a few useful hints on his experience of colour feeding, and I think a few of our members will be trying them. Next meeting Sept. 17, when Mr. A. Holden will give us a few hints on the Norwich. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Curry for his lecture, which we all enjoyed. He kindly replied, and said he was always willing to do what little he could to help us at any time, this bringing a most pleasant and enjoyable evening to a close. (Fanciers, remember next meeting).—F. W. Laidlow, Hon. Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held headquarters August 9, Mr. H. J. Mennard, chair. Minor business transacted. Chairman opened a discussion on colour feeding, which proved very interesting and instructive, many of the older fanciers picked up a few points of interest. A few details appertaining to our forthcoming open show were gone into, and in response to an appeal for subscriptions, Messrs. H. Chew, J. Smith, J. Chambers, and H. J. Mennard kindly volunteered 2s. 6d. each.—W. A. Wilson, Hon. Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

It was decided at last meeting to hold a smoking concert, and we have arranged for an enjoyable evening at the Bee Hotel, St. John's Lane, Liverpool, on Sept. 3; tickets, 6d. each, may be had from the Sec. or Committee. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe has kindly consented to take the chair. The musical programme will be in the hands of The Imperial Concert Party under the able management of Mr. Percy Orlay. As already announced, our next meeting night will be question night, and we shall be pleased to see a good muster. The novice scheme is progressing favourably; we have several more applications to come up for consideration at next meeting.—F. Handley, Hon. Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH B. AND M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, the Feathers Hotel, Great Chapel-st., Westminster, July 31. Present: Messrs. Hobson (chair), Dewhurst, Shepherd, Stephens, Crabb, Trower, Askew, Newley, Maxwell and Carr. Letters were read from Messrs. Archer, Longden and Ramsden. The committee granted patronage to the following shows: Clapham, gold and silver medal; Wimbledon, silver; Portsmouth, silver; Manchester, silver; Carlisle, silver and bronze; Leicester, silver; Southend, silver; Sheffield, silver and bronze; Swansea, two silvers and bronze; Leyton, silver; Nottinghan, silver; Cardiff, two silvers and bronze; the Club show (to be held in conjunction with the London C.B.A.) three golds, three silvers and three bronze; Bradford, two silver and bronze; Luton, silver and bronze; Gateshead, silver and bronze; Scottish National, gold, silver and bronze; Doncaster, silver. Mr. Longden kindly presented a gold medal for most points gained at Swansea, Cardiff and L.C.B.A. shows by a member who has not won a gold medal. Mr. Archer also very kindly presented a silver medal for most points gained at Bradford show by a member who has not previously won a medal. Mr. J. Pitchford, Stoke-on-Trent, was elected a member. All members present contributed to the Cobb's testimonial. Decided not to hold a meeting in August. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—J. P. Carr, Hon. Sec.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

LEIGH.

Meeting held at the Globe Inn, Aug. 4; 17 members present. Decided to hold general meeting Aug. 22, at 7.30; will all members kindly take notice and attend as the business is very important? Anyone wishing to join can do so by writing to me, or attending the meeting. Will Mr. Harrison send me word how many members he has enrolled, as the Leigh members have six new faces amongst them this year?—R. Holcroft, 12, Tunnicliffe New Row.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnet contest held Aug. 16; 19 birds entered for three prizes, and some very good time was done: 1, Smith, 109; 2, Parnell, 64; 3, Nelson, 44. Aug. 17 18 entered for three prizes: 1, Wainwright, 55; 2, Nelson, 51; 3, Parnell, 45. Mr. T. Piper, of Pontefract, has had the misfortune to lose his best bird in the moult before he receives the cup which it has won for the biggest score of the year. —W. Dobson, Hon. Sc.

LEEDS.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transactiou will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clapnets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ⅝-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large samplo, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To all bird-lovers. We are anxious that every fancier should know the value of our bird medicines. Ditchfield's medicines have been used for over five years by most leading fanciers, and are supplied to the London Zoological Society. They are genuine remedies, which can be given with perfect confidence, to all classes of cage birds. We guarantee to return full money if our medicines fail to do as we advertise. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for Soft Moult, Going Light, Dullness, Not Singing, Feather Plucking, Diarrhœa, and Inflammation of the Bowels. For the latter complaint, and for Going Light, this medicine is invaluable, and if given immediately the bird shows symptoms of the disease, will invariably restore the bird to perfect health in a day or two. We have hundreds of testimonials testifying to the value of this medicine for the above diseases. Sold in 1/-, 2/-, and 5/- bottles, each size bottle being about treble the former size. For Bronchitis, Wheesing, Hoarseness, and Inflammation of the Lungs, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic; there is no finer medicine advertised from chest and lung affection in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. To advertise our medicines, we will send a 7d. bottle of each of the above medicines for 1/-, or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9. All medicines post paid, per return, at our risk. Also Two Valuable Seed Recipes, How to Feed Rollers and Linnets for contest Singing, given free to all purchasers of our medicines.—FRANK DITCHFIELD, Bird Specialist, Oldham. (824) solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle." This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

COMMOTION OVER A LOST CANARY.

An Unexpected Visitor to Earl's Court Exhibition.

There has been an unexpected commotion at the Imperial Services Exhibition, Earl's Court, and all on account of a homeless Canary, says "The Standard." The beginning was on Monday afternoon last on the lawn of the Welcome Club, when half a dozen Sparrows were noticed by a visitor fiercely attacking something yellow, which, on closer investigation proved to be a Canary. With the assistance of Captain Bartlett, secretary of the club, the Sparrows were put to flight, leaving their victim in such a state that it was easily captured.

Knowing the affection many people have for Canaries, Captain Bartlett asked a journalist friend to mention in a paragraph that a "strayed Canary" awaited an owner, and could be recovered.

The next day positively an avalanche of letters arrived at the Welcome Club, every one of the writers having recently lost a Canary, and asking for particulars. Not only were there letters from all over London, and even from places considerably outside London, but telegrams arrived with pleading requests to hold the Canary until the sender had seen it. Then scores of ladies of all complexions, ages, heights, and figures called in person to see the Canary, until the environs of Captain Bartlett's office resembled the outside of a milliner's at the end of season sale. Nobody, however, could prove satisfactory claim to the Canary, which is now the inhabitant of a pretty cage, and apparently perfectly satisfied to remain where it is.

"One would suppose everybody owning a Canary was in the habit of losing it," said Captain Bartlett yesterday. "Just look at this stack of letters, all from bereft owners full of hope. One correspondent writes: 'My Canary had a long tail feather missing!' Another tells me that her missing pet answered to the name of 'William.' Forty or fifty of the letters describe every variety of spots which their lost Canaries possessed. This bird with us has small specks on his yellow feathers; here is a clergyman's wife bemoaning the loss of an 'all-yellow darling,' and wondering if the specks are only splashes of mud. 'Would you wash it,' she asks, 'and let me know.' I am also informed of the loss of 'this year's birds' and 'last year's birds,' 'half-Canary and half-Linnet' Canaries, and of 'she' Canaries. There are several offers of homes for 'our Canary,' as I suppose I must now call it, one lady writing: 'I should so much like to adopt it, it would be such a nice companion for my dormouse.'"

The Hidden Dangers in the Plumage Bill.

Notes by the Secretary of Cage Birds League.

On another page will be found an article by Mr. J. R. Trower which demands the earnest attention of every bird-keeper throughout Great Britain and Ireland. In my notes of Aug. 16 I called attention to Clause 4 of the Bill which forms the subject of Mr. Trower's article, and pointed out the insidiousness of tacking such a clause on to a Bill purporting to deal with the importation of skins and plumage.

An Iniquitous Bill.

A portion of Mr. Trower's remarks are in respect of this same section, and are much the same as my own as previously published, but he goes much farther into the matter, and his article is one which should be read and pondered over. I trust it will stir every bird-keeper in the country to a sense of the danger which is confronting our hobby.

In respect of the local orders which are from time to time made upon application of county councils, all the bird-keeper knows is that they have been put into force. He has no voice in the matter. The county councils do not take steps to find out the general feeling of the constituency they represent. If anyone can influence such a body to make application to the Secretary of State to amend the existing Act of Parliament, either in one direction or the other, sanction is granted, and the alteration becomes law.

It is worse with this Importation of Plumage Bill. How many bird-keepers would have known that in this Bill, presented by one individual member of Parliament, and supported by two others, there is a section which would empower one person to make such alterations in the existing Acts of Parliament as may individually occur to him, and that without application from anybody?

In referring to clause 3 of section 2, Mr. Trower says that if this Bill becomes law foreign birds may be imported only under a special licence. This clause reads as follows: "(3) The Board of Trade may grant a licence under such conditions and regulations as they may think fit to any person to import specimens of birds for any natural history or other museum, or for the purpose of scientific research."

The clause does not say that no foreign bird may be imported without a licence. It only says that a licence may be granted. Mr. Trower has taken legal advice upon the actual interpretation of this clause, and that advice is that if a licence "may" be granted it follows that nothing may be imported without such a licence. I think that very few laymen would see the danger hidden in the wording. I am taking steps to get further legal advice upon this vital point, and will say more about it accordingly.

The time has now arrived when urgent action must be taken, and it is the duty of the secretary of every bird society throughout Great Britain and Ireland to bring to the notice of the local member of Parliament that he numbers among his constituents hundreds of voters whose hobby is threatened by the Bill. It is not a party matter, and whether the local member is Liberal, Labour, Conservative, or anything else, all that matters to the bird-keeper is that he should understand that a number of his constituents are opposed to the Bill.

To Cage Bird League Local Hon. Secs.

During the existence of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE there has been until now little occasion to ask the local honorary secretaries of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE to do anything extra in the support of the cause which we all have at heart, but now I have to ask every local hon. sec. to be in himself in the matter. Let him co-operate with the sec. or secs. of local bird societies, and see that steps are taken to bring home to the notice of his local Member of Parliament that this Bill threatens to its extinction the hobby of bird keeping.

To Interest the Children.

I am glad to be able on behalf of Mr. C. H. Peck, whose charitable project of instituting a decorated cage competition for children, was mentioned last week, to thank Mr. Sherman, late of E. Ham, who is working so hard to further Mr. Peck's idea. Mr. Sherman has received five Redpolls from Mr. Clark, of Slough, and Mr. Peck wishes me through CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE column to express his thanks to Mr. Clark for his kind gift.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

The September meeting of the North Shields and Dis. C.B.C., writes Mr. R. P. Fox, hon. sec., is postponed. The next meeting will be held Oct. 1.

Mr. W. B. Watkins, sec. Tredegar and and Dis. C.B.S., writes that he has changed his address from 56, High Street to 35, Whitworth Terrace, Tredegar.

We learn that Mr. Fletcher, a promising member of the Sheffield O.S., when on a holiday in Ireland, was successful in begging a £1 special from Mr. J. Craigley, of Ballandrat.

We hear from Mr. J. Holroyd, hon. sec., that the first Yorkshire Union show for the coming show season will be that of the Great Horton O.S., on Oct. 4; judge, Mr. John Greaves.

Will you kindly notify secretaries and fanciers that I have removed to 34, Poplar Avenue, Gt. Harwood, writes Mr. W. T. Mattinson, Sec., Gt. Harwood and Dis. C.B.S.

The success of the season—Ramsden's Pure Peppers. Customers report results to be most satisfactory. Ramsden's peppers are fully guaranteed. Sold in tins only. Orders executed same day as received.—(Advt.)

I am pleased to say, writes Mr. D. John, sec. Llanelly C.B.S., that our society looks very healthy. Five new members for two meetings. We intend having a washing exhibition, and there is a proposal on agenda next meeting for a supper.

Owing to heavy downpour of rain on Sunday last, writes Mr. J. Spencer, hon. sec. Ardwick and Manchester C.B.A., we were compelled to cancel our cycle outing, but same will take place on Sept. 1, meet at Ardwick Empire two o'clock sharp; local fanciers invited.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. Coupe, Walsden.

It is with regret, writes Mr. J. T. Cheetham, hon. sec. Smallbridge C.B.S., that I notify you of the death of Mr. J. Coupe, senr., of Walsden, who was a member of this society until a few months ago, resigning owing to ill-health. Deceased was a successful breeder and exhibitor of Yorkshires, and will be sadly missed. He leaves a widow and family (the son, Mr. John Coupe is treasurer of this society) to whom we extend our deepest sympathy.

An Order has been made under the Wild Birds Protection Acts by which certain birds (of which a list is given) are protected during the whole of the year, throughout West Sussex. A copy of the Order may be obtained (post free, twopence), from Messrs. Wyman, Fetter Lane, London, E.C.

Leicester C.B.S. members are having a ramble round Tur Langton and district on Sept. 6, writes Mr. J. Cook, sec. All cyclists will meet outside the White Horse Hotel, London Road, at 2.30; train leaves Midland Station at 2.33 for Kibworth. Members travelling by train make their way to the Checkers' Inn, Tur Langton.

As the Midland Counties Y.C.C. and other specialist clubs, writes Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Rd., Small Heath, Birmingham, hon. sec. S. Birmingham O.S., will be holding shortly their meetings to consider the various Midland Clubs' applications for patronage. I hope secretaries will write me at once. Applications are coming in well, but we can do with more; it attracts entries, it makes profit, and that is what all bird clubs want.

To Society Secretaries, and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

Owing to business pressure and lack of time, writes Mr. J. R. Colville, I have been compelled to resign the secretaryship of the Ashton-u-Lyne and Dis. O.S. All letters, etc. should be in future addressed to Mr. J. Whitehead, 69, Grasscroft Street, Stalybridge, Ches.

Mr. F. Jackson, of South Shields, who advertised a Grey Parrot in our issue of Aug. 23, writes to point out that the price was wrongly given by our printers in the advertisement. This should have been 90s., not 10s., and Mr. Jackson has had more applications than he can possibly answer. Will those applying please note the correction?

I would be obliged, writes Mr. G. Whittaker, 18, Sandhurst St., Burnley, if you would kindly announce that I have been appointed secretary of the Burnley O.S. in place of Mr. W. Redman, who has resigned through not having time to follow it up; all communications should be addressed to me. Next meeting, Sept. 4; business important.

Messrs. F. Collingbourne and Co., The Aviaries, East Sheen, write that they have received a postcard bearing the London, S.W. postmark of Aug. 25, asking for particulars of a Green Amazon Parrot. Will the enquirer please send name and address to Messrs. Collingbourne? Neither was given on the postcard.

Great Demand for a Great Book.

Read page 115 this week and fill up and post the form thereon.

if you wish the splendid offer to be open to YOU, as the demand is simply phenomenal.

The August issue of "Bird Notes," the Journal of the Foreign Bird Club, contains some beautifully executed photographs by Mr. H. Wilford, of the Black-backed Gull, and these are accompanied by notes on the species by Mr. Wesley T. Page. Mr. Page also continues his "Visits to Members' Aviaries and Birdrooms." Miss Chawner writes on the "Nesting of the Eagle Owl." Mr. S. Williams contributes "Holiday Notes from Eastbourne." Dr. Maurice Amsler gives a delightful account of the "Breeding of the Great Tit in Captivity," and also tells of his successful rearing of Hybrids between the Blue-breasted and Crimson-eared Waxbills (Cordon Bleus). Some excellent photographs by Mr. E. O. Page, articles on "An Island on the River Jhelum," by Mr. H. Whistler, "Bird Marking," by Dr. Philip Goose, and "Sexing the Gold-fronted Fruitsucker," by Mr. W. T. Page, together with "Zoo Notes" by the Editor, and the usual reviews and correspondence complete a good issue.

The Testimonial to Mr. J. Young, Rutherglen.

Kindly thank those members of the Scottish Crest Club, who responded so liberally to my appeal for a presentation to our worthy secretary, Mr. John Young, Rutherglen, writes Mr. R. Lambie, Whitburn. I have now called on Mr. Young, and presented him with a splendid barometer, together with cutlery and spoons for Mrs. Young in the name of the S.C.C. I am sure all will join with me in wishing him and his better half, good health and happiness for many years to come.

The Patronage of the Crested Canary Club.

Before submitting present applications for support to the Committee to be voted upon, writes Mr. John Tyson, hon. sec., Crested Canary Club, 169, Sloane Street, London, S.W., I shall be glad to hear from any other Society prepared to give the minimum classification, viz., 8 classes champion and 2 novice, and desiring the support. Societies insured against loss on payment of 2s. 6d. per class in the champion section. Novice classes, sliding scale for less than 8 entries. Applications must reach me not later than Sept. 5.

Sad Loss for Mr. Fred Allen.

We are sorry to receive from Mr. F. Allen, of Hull, a well-known advertisor in our columns, a letter as under. We are sure that customers will extend their indulgence to Mr. Allen in the sad circumstances:—

I am very sorry to inform you of the death of my little boy aged 3 years and 5 months. He died this afternoon, Aug. 25, after a short illness (3 weeks), I have a good deal of correspondence, but cannot get along with it owing to our trouble. I hope all those who have sent me orders will look over the delay.—F. Allen.

"Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

Will Benefit all Societies and Provides £200 in Cash Specials for Exhibitors.

Ilkeston C.B.S.
Scottish National C.B.S.
Ulster O.A. (Belfast).

Please send 100 coupons.—J. Holroyd, sec., Great Horton O.S.

I have been paid for two dozen coupons and took orders for three dozen more at our last meeting.—E. Thomas, sec., Cardiff C.B.S.

Please send 100 coupons.—J. Gray, sec. Arbroath C.B.S.

We have agreed to adopt your Championship Scheme Competition at our show, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, and wish the scheme the best possible success.—J. R. Meikle, hon. sec. Scottish National C.B.S.

Please send me 4 doz. more coupons, have sold the last lot.—G. H. Barnwell, sec. Harrogate C.B.S.

Mr. E. Thomas, hon. sec. Cardiff C.B.S., writes asking whether a novice competing in both the open and novice sections at one show, with different birds, could win a diploma and cash prize in both sections. The reply is yes. The diplomas and the cash prizes are given for the birds, and if by the rules of the show a novice owner may enter in both sections, he will, of course, be eligible to compete also in both sections for our cash prizes and diplomas. It must not be forgotten, however, that if his wins in the open take a fancier out of the novice section (i.e., deprive him of his novice status, according to our adopted definition) then, of course, he is debarred from competing in the novice section in the Finale at the Crystal Palace show.

I am sorry to see only one Irish society enrolled in your list of coupon shows, for I think this is one of the greatest competitions ever started, and that every society should take it up, as it certainly will benefit both exhibitors and societies. I hope that before the closing date all the Irish societies (another one has joined this week—Editor) will have become competitors.—J. Porter (Newtown).

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.
(4) BORDER FANCIES.
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show, entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

A Pair of Vicious Blackbirds (An American Story).

Recently the people of Los Angeles, California, have been interested and astonished by the conduct of a pair of Blackbirds, supposed to be nesting in the grounds about the Courthouse, says the London "Globe." Persons walking quietly under the palm-trees have been startled by an attack with whirring wings, sharp beaks, and hard claws. The birds, without a moment's notice, pick at the clothing or the hat, and even fly against the face. It is supposed—and this is probably so—that the birds are protecting their nest from possible intrusion. The mother is positively vicious in her attacks. She does not hesitate to bite, glaring with her gold-rimmed eyes as if she would like to tear the intruder to pieces. The pair have taken a special dislike to one man who tried to find the nest. They fly at him, hop before him on the grass, and when he moves dart at his hat or his neck. An account of these birds was published in a Los Angeles paper and many persons went to the park to see them. All the visitors were gratified, for nearly everyone was swept by the dash of a black wing, or felt the thrust of a sharp beak in his face, or a sudden scratch across his hand.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

THE PATRONAGE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

We regret that by an accident a portion of the instalment of this article which appeared in our issue of August 16 was included in error. Will readers, therefore, kindly cancel that part from the words "Good ventilation" to the end, and read on as follows?—(The paragraphs printed by mistake will be reprinted later in their proper place).—(Ed.)

MY experience has been that when the birds are moving about in the daytime, the cold—I do not mean at a freezing point—does not seem to have any ill effect, neither does it appear to be detrimental to those hens that are sitting, or may be brooding, i.e., sitting on or over youngsters. Yet I advise—and practise—the use of a little artificial heat during the nights of the spring months when the birds are paired up, and are on the point of laying, for the weather is as a rule so very changeable at this time. It has a soothing influence on the hens, its influence is also beneficial to the cocks, as it assists in bringing and keeping them in breeding condition; so on these grounds it may be said to assist the cocks in their duty of fertilizing the eggs.

The Limitations of the Living Room.

Although I advise the use of a living room or kitchen as a training room for the young cocks, it will be understood from the remarks I have made that I do not favour it as a breeding room. Yet in many instances the fancier has to use a recess in his living room and be thankful. To breed and rear youngsters successfully here it is necessary that the hens should be placed in the room early, either to moult or, during the late autumn and winter, to get them tame before the breeding commences. A little trouble spent in taming them will be repaid threefold; keep them as quiet as possible and avoid hasty or violent movements in the vicinity of the cages. The feeding and cage cleaning should be done very quietly, and in a short time the majority of the birds will show no signs of fear or distrust, and will afterwards feed their young in your presence.

A cheaply made "Roller Song Cabinet," to hold 12 wire song cages, is shown in the sketch. It was cut to the given dimensions from a "Colman's Starch Case." These cases are very adaptable for this purpose, the back, front, and sides are already glued together, and the case is exactly the same length and height as shown, and it only requires that about four inches should be cut away from the width, i.e., back to front. The inside supports are made from blind laths, which are quite strong enough for this purpose. The partitions are of tin and pieces are cut out of these for the laths to go through. The front which is cut away from the case makes a shutter, or a curtain could be used instead.

Hens That Dislike Company.

Perhaps a few may be found that will not do so, or even when they can see from the nest pan anyone in the room, and these hens will have to be humoured by placing a piece of paper on to the cage front to screen the nest. Others may show no signs of fear while incubating, but immediately the young are hatched they will resent your presence close to the cages. The remedy is obvious. Clear off as soon as possible, or a "hunger strike" commences. I have a hen that when she has young has an odd aversion to a lady wearing a hat. The "oddity" often causes a little amusement, for as soon as the hat is removed she will go on feeding, yet while the hat is on the lady's head she will not move. Probably she may be clannish and resents the wearing of borrowed plumes.

An advantage to be derived when birds are wintered, i.e., kept during the winter months, in the living room or kitchen, is that they come into breeding condition earlier than those that are kept during that period in a cool room. This is a great consideration to the fancier who is breeding his birds from a profitable point of view, for the earlier the young are bred the sooner their moult will be completed; this is a necessity before the young cocks come nicely into full song. The breeder should then be able to command a better price than he will do later, when there are more birds on the market to choose from.

It is also an advantage to have early bred hens, for they will be ready to breed early in the following year, and, being more matured, should be capable of performing their duties better than those hens that are bred later in the season. So if a recess in the kitchen or a bedroom can be used where it is not convenient to have a spare room indoors, it will, to those who have only a small stock, be better than an outdoor birdroom. You need not be afraid of having a few birds in a bedroom, of course that is providing you keep the cages clean to prevent any smell arising from them.

By advising them to be kept clean I do not mean that they should be cleaned out every day. Once a week will be found quite sufficient, and a layer of rough cut pine sawdust thrown on the cage bottoms. As an extra precaution a little Jeyos' fluid mixed with a little water can be placed in a saucer underneath the cages, but this is not absolutely necessary.

It is a good plan before a hen begins to sit, to place a layer of pine sawdust, about an inch deep on the cage bottom, for after the hen has been sitting for several days the excreta becomes copious and generally will be found accumulating in one place, usually opposite the seed hopper or water fountain. By taking the precaution to place a thick layer of sawdust on the cage bottom the accumulation can be easily removed with the aid of a piece of cardboard, and a handful of fresh sawdust can be placed where the droppings were removed. It will not then be necessary to clean the whole cage bottom out until the youngsters are between one and two weeks old.

The Importance of Grit.

Where sawdust is used instead of sand for the cage bottom it is necessary that the birds should always have access to a supply of good clean gritty sand, as, figuratively, it is the bird's teeth, and its action on the food in the gizzard is similar to that of our teeth, without which we could not digest our food. Grit-tins to hang inside the cage can be procured from the fanciers' provider, and a convenient size is one two inches long, three-quarters of an inch deep and three-quarters of an inch wide.

No reasonable objection can be raised about keeping a few birds in a living or a bed room, given a sound, healthy stock to commence with, and that they are kept under sanitary conditions. I have mentioned this because the fancier may at some time hear some of the fairy tales that I myself have been treated to, about the danger of tubercular and other imaginary illnesses that will be caught from keeping birds in the house. I smile, and reply "Well, we are all insured," as it is useless to argue with faddists; their arguments are based on theory, our knowledge is gained from actual experience.

If it is decided to have an outdoor birdroom, then have a good one, as the first cost or outlay is always the best. I have had at different times three outdoor rooms, two were built of bricks and the third had an outer covering of corrugated iron, with a lining of matchboards. This latter proved unsatisfactory, as the heat of the sun on the iron warped the boards inside, which caused the room to be cold and draughty, even though the inside had been papered. I found that new tin ware soon became rusty, a sign that the room was damp, so we parted company.

Mrs. and Miss Ballard, of Manor Park, busy giving food to young birds in the nest by means of a "Fil-up Feeder," which they have used with great success.

I am not conversant with what other writers may have placed as their ideal for an outdoor room, but from my own experience I consider a near approach to the ideal would be one built of bricks, or a wooden portable room i.e., one that is made in sections and fastens together with bolts at the corners.

Some Charming Additions.

GRASSFINCHES and Mannikins are others which lend themselves to the mixed group, and pairs each of the following may be included, if the size of the aviary provides accommodation for such: Gouldian Finches, Long-tailed, Rufous-tailed and Masked Grassfinches; Rufous-backed, Black-headed, White-headed, and Tricolour Mannikins, Silverbills, Bengalese, Chestnut-breasted, Parson, Striated, Diamond, Bib, Sharp-tailed, Zebra, Ribbon, Red-headed, and Spice Finches, and Java Sparrows (White and Grey), although some pairs of the latter prove aggressive. As regards nesting accommodation, these mostly favour husks, cocoanut shell nests, Hartz-travelling-cages, and rush nests. Hay, grass, moss, and a little cow-hair will suffice for building material, as it will for all the other groups except Psittaci.

Whydahs are handsome and striking birds, but it is not always wise to include them in smallish aviaries, as when in breeding plumage, if not dangerous, they are an obstreperous and disturbing influence in the aviary. The Pin-tail Whydah is not safe and should not be included. The Queen and Paradise Whydahs I have found quite safe, but even these should not be introduced to the aviary when in breeding plumage, as their long tail feathers may cause a panic, and some of the occupants of the aviary may damage themselves against the netting, 'ere they become accustomed to these long caudal plumes; but if put in when in winter dress then there will be no danger of such happenings as their caudal plumes are only gradually assumed. Faggots of twiggy branches supply the best nesting accommodation, but though they weave many beautiful nests, it is not often that they get as far as eggs, though of late years they have shown more inclination to do so in the large wilderness aviary.

Gorgeous, but Obstreperous.

Weavers are almost legion and are a noisy and obstreperous group, yet in breeding plumage their garments are so gorgeous and glistening that they should find a place in any mixed series, even though they do disturb the nesting arrangements of shy and retiring species somewhat. It is difficult to give a list of these birds and designate them inoffensive, as their demeanour is so variable in different aviaries. For instance, I have kept the Madagascar, Napoleon, Short-winged, Crimson-crowned, Red-billed, Black-headed, etc., without mishap in quite a moderate-sized aviary, but others have not been so fortunate. I have found the common Red-billed species very inoffensive and have had many Madagascars and Napoleons, and never possessed a pugnacious individual, but they are very variable and must be kept under observation. Weavers, like the Whydahs, seem to have shown much more inclination to go to nest of late years in captivity, and this season several species have hatched out young, but only in one or two cases have the young been reared to fend for themselves. In one or two quite small aviaries partial success has been attained. Faggots of twiggy branches (pea-sticks) make the best accommodation, and hay and long grass will suffice for building material.

Some Living Gems.

Of the Tanagers and Sugar Birds (Tanagridæ and Coerebidæ) one pair of Tanagers and a pair of Sugar Birds may be kept in the mixed series, and I have found the Blue Tanager both robust and inoffensive in such a collection, and, provided the shelter is draught and wet proof, may be wintered out of doors; but the Sugar Birds (yellow-winged for preference) must be taken in at the end of October, or earlier, according to the season. Superb, Tricolour, Necklace, Black-throated, Black-cheeked, and similar Tanagers of the Calliste group, should be taken indoors, at any rate, for their first winter in this country. Under certain conditions in our Southern counties they can be successfully wintered, but in Eastern and Northern counties it is not wise to subject them to the damp, raw-cold, that is so frequently a characteristic of even our mild winters. The Scarlet Tanager is beautiful and hardy, but it is a large species, and the reports from various sources of its demeanour are very variable, and it should be kept under continuous observation.

The Bulbuls (Pycnonotidæ) form a most interesting group of birds of strong character, but also aggressive demeanour. Several species have reared young in English aviaries, but in the mixed series they must be kept under observation, and only one pair kept. The Red-eared, Red-vented, and White-eared have all been kept in mixed series without serious mishap. Those named are all desirable birds, mostly with contrasting plumage, full of character, and vivacity, and most interesting occupants of the mixed aviary.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BIRD PUFFED OUT (Crest).—(1) It is just possible you are doing too much for the bird already, so it is more a question as to what less than more you can do for it. It is by no means unusual for birds to appear more or less puffy and listless when moulting, or when the moult is approaching. Try the following simpler method of treating the bird for a month, and if it is not quite recovered then write again and repeat particulars. See that it is free from direct cold draughts; beyond that keep in a bright airy place. Give a staple diet of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Every third day give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and on the alternating days give first a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats, and the next day a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, sprinkled with maw. For the first fortnight put two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it each time before the maw. In the drinking water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover sixpence every second day for a week. After this give 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. (2) Sorry you have had such poor luck this season. The chances of getting any more young this season from hens just nesting are exceedingly remote. Possibly there may be young hatched from eggs now sitting, but their chances of being reared to leave the nest are small. (3) Testing eggs at end of first week would have nothing to do with hens deserting the young. Unless your hens are quite young, I would advise you to discard them, and get fresh ones next spring.

GREENHOUSE AND SEEDS (J.B.).—(1) Naturally the locality and position of the building is of vast importance in deciding whether these places are suitable or not for bird-keeping. From your description I should say your building is so well protected that the usual fluctuations in such places must be reduced to a minimum, and if you were to cover the roof with felt, or a layer of "summer-cloud," and make a movable blind or shutter for use over part of the glass sides during particularly severe weather in winter, I see no reason why Canaries should not thrive and do well there all through the year, without any artificial heat at all. The only precaution to adopt is to see that you stock with birds which have been bred and kept in normal temperature, and come of a sound healthy stock. If heating is used I would only advise an oil stove when no other means are available, and, when used, the lamp should be provided with a cover and flue to convey the fumes of combustion out into the open air. (2) You do not say whether birds are meant to be caged or fly loose. If the former, give a staple of plain canary only; if the latter, give canary and summer rape ad. lib., in separate vessels, and not mixed together. All other seeds give as required casually. Full details for feeding will be found in the "Manual" sent you.

BEST SONGSTERS (Iredale).—After the trained Roller must be placed next the more or less imperfectly trained bird, of which there are many qualities, then the untrained pure Roller. After this I would place the best singers in the following order: first-cross Roller-Border, pure Border, first-cross Roller-Yorks., ditto Roller-Norwich, Yorkshire, Norwich, and Crest, which, of course, includes Crest-bred. There is much of a sameness about these, and all the rest not mentioned, but those named are the better performers in the order named. It is very much a matter of taste. Personally, I can appreciate the song of the Crest far better than that of an untrained Roller, but the performance is much shorter, and of a different type from the song which the Roller typifies, hence I place it last on the above list.

A BAD HABIT (Jas. Walker).—The habit of clinging to the wires is certainly very injurious to the prospects of a successful show career, no matter how good the bird may be in typical qualities. It is very often a matter of confidence or tameness on the part of the bird, in which case your method of trying to cure it by frequently handling the cage will simply foster the habit and make it worse. Your best plan is to turn it into flight with other birds whilst moulting, where it will get the minimum of individual attention or petting. Do not give any green food or other tit-bits, in the wires, but throw in on to centre of floor all that which cannot be placed in egg-drawer or seed-hopper. After the moult is over allow bird to remain in flight until a month or so before its first show, then cage up in moderate sized cage, still avoid placing any dainties in wires, handle cage and give bird generally no more attention than is necessary to cause it to take the perch boldly without fear, and run it in show cage for a day two or three times a week—more or less as seems necessary—just before the show. The secret, if such it can be called, is to stop training before bird becomes too familiarly disposed.

TAKING CANARIES TO AUSTRALIA (Wm. Prosser).—Yes, your friend may certainly take a pair of Canaries out to Australia with him with the greatest safety. Given the most reasonable amount of attention and ordinary stamina, they will bear the journey with the greatest ease. If, as I understand from your letter, your friend will keep the birds in his own care, I would advise him to get a double-compartment cage of moderate size, say 24ins. long, 9 or 10ins. wide, and 15ins. high, wired on all four sides, and a solid wood partition across the middle to keep the birds separate. Have the corner uprights fairly strong to bear rough usage in case of need. Over this fit a strong canvas wrapper with a handle for carrying. Have sand trays fixed in cage for cleaning, and take along a supply of about 6lbs. of seed (treble what is needed, but to provide against unavoidable waste), and a few pounds bag of bird grit. When passing through the colder regions keep one, two, or three sides of cage covered with the wrapper, but on approaching the tropics keep all sides uncovered. Feed as usual, and if green salads can be obtained from the ship's cook use them freely whilst going through the tropics. If your friend cannot keep the birds in his own care he should get the steward or butcher to take charge of them during the voyage, when he goes on board, either of whom will do so for a small consideration.

BLOB OF FLUID (H.F.M., Forest Gate).—Before pricking the substance again lightly paint over it with a small feather dipped in tincture of iodine once a week for a month. In addition to the staple diet you are now giving, supply separately half a teaspoonful of teazle every second day, and twice a week on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, and millet, and once a week a small teaspoonful of soft food. In each tablespoonful of drinking water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea, ditto of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. Give this every second day in place of plain water for a fortnight, then miss a week, and give it again for another week. Be careful not to give it in a metal drinker. If this does not bring about the absorption of the blister you can only go on and repeat the pricking from time to time as seems necessary, but after pricking and washing with the wych hazel, continue the anointing daily with Lanocylin until well. If bird is a valuable one it would be worth while asking a veterinary to examine it, who might be able to put in a drainage suture, or remove a snippet of skin and cauterise the spot.

DIARRHOEA (P.H.P.).—You omit to say whether you are colour-feeding the bird. If not, give half a teaspoonful of crushed dry arrowroot biscuit and maw in equal parts every second day, and on the alternate days a small teaspoonful of boiled rape seed. In the drinking water add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. If this does not stop the looseness in that time, give a morsel of bread and milk, slightly dusted with carbonate of bismuth daily, and omit the sulphuric acid from above mixture and substitute five drops of tincture of opium in its place, and continue this treatment another week. See that all your seeds and foods are sound and sweet, and keep cage and perches as clean as possible. When not colour-feeding, there is no real necessity for special dietetic treatment of birds having a normal moult. Given ordinary care to protect them from cold draughts, chills, etc., a little soft food twice a week, and mixed seed ditto, with a moderate supply of wild seeds now and again, and nothing else is required to bring about a good and perfect moult. Twenty-drop doses of Chemical Food every second day for a week or two, when the birds are moulting the head, will help to tone them up at the finish. It is not too late for early-hatched birds to begin moulting, though it certainly is getting time they made a start. They may start quite suddenly any time now. Add 20 drops of whisky and six of syrup of saffron to the water for a few days.

STRIKERS (Dorset).—You do not give enough particulars about the hens, and your management of them, to enable me to form any definite opinion as to the cause of the hens deserting the young at a fortnight old. Did they want to begin nesting again; had you left the cocks in with them whilst sitting; and how had you been feeding whilst hens were sitting, and up to the time they deserted the young? All these are points which greatly help to elucidate such cases. As it is quite too late to think of further breeding this year, and, as I might write a whole column of speculative theory, and not touch the actual point. I think you cannot be better advised than to break up your pairs now for this season, and get one of our handbooks and master the contents, when you should be able to keep on the beaten track and avoid these disappointing occurrences next season. Possibly you may also discover where you went wrong this year, and thus be able to avoid doing so again. Either House's "Manual," 1s. 2d., or "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., both post free from our Manager, would suit you.

SONGLESS ROLLER (T.K.).—I suppose there is no doubt about the sex of the bird? I mention this because when you got the bird in song, three months ago, it ought not to have had a short song, with no variety, as at that time it should have been at its best in song. At the present time, however, with the moult close at hand, you can scarcely expect it to resume singing now until after the moult. Anyway, try what a month of the following treatment will do for it. Keep it in a bright, healthful, and cosy place, and either keep the door of song cabinet open during the day, or place bird in a box cage and keep out of the cabinet for a week or two. For staple diet, give a mixture of equal parts canary and summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give a half-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of the mixed seed twice each week. Continue giving a little green food or wild seedy things daily. You may dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea, in the water for one day, then add 20 drops of Chemical Food for two or three days. After the first fortnight drop the sponge cake, and give a morsel of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week instead.

SORE FEET (T.W.).—Mix a teaspoonful of extract of Wych Hazel in a saucerful of warm-water. Catch bird and bath feet for a few minutes in this solution, using a small camel-hair brush whilst bathing to thoroughly cleanse feet and sore. After bathing dry gently, and put one drop of the undiluted extract on the sore, holding the bird for a minute or two until any "sting" has passed off. Dry off surplus moisture and dust feet all over with boracic powder. Repeat this daily as long as necessary—maybe a week or so. Keep cage and perches as clean as possible.

BARE ON STOMACH (Pit Laddie).—I am strongly inclined to think that the exceptional barcness you mention is very largely, and maybe wholly due to plucking in the nest by parents, which, as you have been away from the birds, you did not see. If this surmise is correct the birds will moult out all right, and may even improve in appearance before moulting. See that you cage them in a cage quite free from insect pests for the moult, and twice a week from now until moult is half over, give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops per bird of cod liver oil emulsion on it, slightly dusted with flour of sulphur, and finally sprinkled with maw. On these days add five drops of syrup of saffron and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence to the water. Keep birds rather on the warm side for moulting, otherwise go on with your usual treatment.

COLOUR OF YOUNG, ETC. (C.J.L.).—(1) You omit to say what breed the birds are, or the colour of the hen. If the birds were Yorkshires it is probable the two birds you describe in the second nest are Cinnamon-Variegated, in which case the Green cock is more or less closely related to Cinnamon-marked birds. On the other hand, it is just as likely they are bronze greens. Such specimens are frequently bred among Greens, particularly amongst birds where the Green and Cinnamon elements are striving for mastery, and cannot be termed extraordinary in any sense. (2) Neither is the fact of the hen laying white eggs very extraordinary. The colour and markings of the eggs of the Canary vary tremendously, and white specimens merely mean that the markings are wholly absent. (3) No. it is not usual for cocks to pull out the tails of their progeny, but, still, there are some crusty old Benedicts that will do so, and even pull their daughter's "hair." The remedy is to put him in "durance vile," by caging him alone. It is quite safe to separate young from the parents as soon as they feed themselves freely upon egg-food, and are beginning to nibble at the canary seed.

A PHYSICAL WRECK (Novice).—If, as you say, the bird's feet are clean and appear normal I can only conclude that it must be a physical wreck, and has probably become partially paralysed most likely from a slight apoplectic seizure sometime. At any rate, if I had a bird that could neither stand on a perch, nor yet get across the floor of cage without toppling over, and which found the greatest difficulty in recovering its equilibrium, I would end its career mercifully, or get a chemist to do so, with chloroform. If you do not care to do so, see that the bird is kept in a comfortable, healthful place; throw a light cover over the cage to keep bird as quiet and restful as possible; add a morsel of bread and milk with maw to its dietary every second day for a month, and on the alternate days give a small spray of watercress, and add 20 drops of chemical food to the drinking water. Keep bird quiet until it begins to take to the perches voluntarily. See that perches are conveniently placed, and fixed securely, so that they do not wobble about.

FEET, WHEEZE, FLIGHTS (A.B.A.).—(1) The perches shown in your sketch are of no use whatever for your bird. Take them out and substitute moderate-sized perches, say, about midway in thickness between an ordinary perch and a common lead pencil. Make these perches quite round in shape, and then very slightly flatten the top surface. Fix them in cage securely, so they do not wobble. Also treat the feet daily for a week as follows. Get a saucer of fairly hot water, but well below scalding point, and beside it place a saucer of quite cold water in which you have dissolved a teaspoonful of common salt. Catch bird, and hold feet quite immersed in the hot water for a minute or two, then remove, and immediately place in the cold water for a minute or two, then back to the hot, and back again to the cold, and so on, until the feet have been in each bath from six to eight times. Remember to finish up in the cold water. Then dry feet, and gently rub on each one or two drops of whiskey, or methylated spirit will do. (2) There is probably very little, if anything, wrong with these birds. See they are properly protected from chills and direct draughts. If they appear to get worse treat as advised to "Anxious, Hanley" in this issue for a week or two. (3) Certainly remove the broken flights, but to avoid handling bird so much take four from each wing from different parts at each operation, say, every fifth day. It will, of course, disqualify the bird for competition in classes that are for unflighted birds exclusively, but it will be eligible for classes of young birds where the question is left open. You will only need to be careful to read class headings when about to enter him, and see that the class entered in specifies "flighted" or "flighted or unflighted." If no such specification appears over each class, then look in general show rules for any rule relating to exhibition of young birds at that particular show.

MOULTING AND WHEEZING (Beginner, Cork).—(1) A slight wheeziness is not altogether uncommon in a quite healthy bird when moulting, a certain amount of dullness is quite to be expected, and to "sing very hoarse" is a little more than is to be anticipated, because, as a rule, birds do not sing at all whilst moulting. So upon the whole I doubt whether there is much wrong with your bird. If its cage is kept in a window, this, in combination with the open-wire cage is doubtless responsible for any bronchial weakness. Keep in a bright, healthful place, where the temperature is fairly equable, away from draughts or heated fumes from burning lights, and not in window. Keep it rather on the warm side whilst moulting, and treat it for the next month as advised in latter part of reply to "Anxious, Hanley," in this issue. If the wheezing does not disappear with the moult, write again, and repeat particulars. (2) Mites should have been cleared out before birds started to moult. Wait now until moult is over, and then place birds temporarily in fresh cages, thoroughly over-haul, disinfect those vacated, and be careful not to overlook dealing with the rack or wall where the cages have stood or hung. Watch these replies for a few weeks and you will see details given frequently. Meantime dissolve an ounce of camphor in half a pint of methylated spirit, and with a small camel-hair brush touch the ends of perches, joints of doors, corners of sand trays, and any joint or crack about a cage which seems to afford harbour for mites, twice a week with the fluid. Destroy any escaping mites by pressure. This will keep them well within bounds.

BIRDS DYING (Anxious, Hanley).—First of all take steps to see whether the sliding windows at each end of your building are responsible for a direct draught cutting through the cages. If this is the case adopt some means of diverting the current of air so that it does not go right into the cages. As the birds should now, or very soon, be moulting a curtain might be hung before the cages, leaving two inches of air spaces between curtain and cage fronts. This will serve as a screen whilst birds are moulting, and still allow free circulation of air. Keep cages, perches, food, and water vessels scrupulously clean, and treat as follows for a month or so. If deaths do not cease at once I would also advise you to send a body to Mr. Yates for post-mortem, as there is some suspicion of a contagious disorder. Thoroughly overhaul and disinfect every cage in which a death occurs. For staple diet give plain canary only. Every second day give half a teaspoonful (per bird) of summer rape and a morsel of banana, and on the alternate days a morsel of bread and milk the size of an hazel nut sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of maw. Once a week give each a small teaspoonful of scalded rape, and once a week a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and linseed. Keep cage strewn with fresh, clean, gritty sand. Give a few plantain stalks or similar wild seedy things occasionally. In the drinking water add 15 drops of syrup of buckthorn for one day only. After this give 20 drops of whiskey and five of syrup of saffron every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 20 drops of chemical food, containing the latter for a fortnight

Answered by H. NORMAN.

LUMP ON HEAD (H. Cornwell).—I should say the lump on the head of your Goldfinch-Canary is of a tumourous nature, although it is just possible it may proceed from the old wound. You should carefully examine it to see if it is quite hard, or of a soft nature, and if there is any sign of it coming to a head, if so, you can probably disperse it with fomentations, and dosing the bird with Glauber's salts. Give as much as will cover a sixpence, in warm water every other day for a week. When bathing the affected part commence with ordinary warm water, and then gradually add a little hot until you get it almost as hot as you can bear it, then dry with a soft cloth. Do this night and morning for three or four days, and if you succeed in extracting matter continue it until the swelling has disappeared. Should the lump be quite hard, paint it, once a day, with extract of wych elm. You will be able to see in a week or so if there is any improvement; if not and you value the bird, you had better take it to a medical man or veterinary surgeon, and get him to lance it for you. Do not feed the bird on any stimulating food, let him live plainly.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

NAME OF SEED (H. F. C.).—No seed came to hand with your query. If you will send along a sample and repeat your query I shall be very pleased to help if possible.

ABOUT A MISSEL-THRUSH (A. Ward).—(1) The only "wrinkles" I can give you to get your Missel-Thrush into exhibition condition are: feed well, keep in a suitable cage, and scrupulously clean. Let it have a bath of clean soft water every day, and with proper feeding and housing you should have no trouble in getting it into show condition. A good stock food would consist of one part each, by weight, of "ants' eggs" (these must be the best), dried flies, preserved yolk of egg, fine crissel, or some other not overcooked meat powder, and about eight parts of powdered dog biscuit or poultry meal without grit. For daily use take a portion of this mixture and make it "crumbly" moist with boiled potato, grated raw carrot, chopped green stuff, boiled greens from the table, or occasionally with water or milk. You may omit the preserved yolk of egg and use in its place a little hard-boiled egg (yolk and white together) powdered up with a fork or pressed through a sieve. Give also about a dozen meatworms a day, a snail when you can get one, small earthworms and any live insects you may be able to capture. Grocer's currants, berries of sorts, a piece of banana, ripe pear, or any fruit the bird may fancy will be very helpful. Avoid raw meat, unless you are absolutely unable to give it the insect food as indicated; in any case, it must be given with great caution, as it is liable to set up diarrhœa. (2) The show cage for a Missel-Thrush should be about 22 inches long, 17 high, and 10 deep. The colour of the inside is a matter of taste; a nice green of not too deep a tint is perhaps as good as any. (3) The food and water vessels in a show cage should be inside, they are best when fitted to small doors, which open out of the bottom bar. (4) There is no describable method of sexing a Thrush. Generally speaking the hens are the larger birds, and more profusely spotted. The best exhibition Missel Thrush I have ever seen was a hen. (5) Hens can be shown against cocks; it would be a bold judge who could be certain of the difference if they were barred from so competing.

A JAY IN TROUBLE (Jay bird).—I think it is your feeding that has been at fault, and that the bird's stomach is overloaded with food it is unable to digest. In nature Jays are very largely carnivorous, and in captivity they must have something to take the place of the live food which is essential to them. A good poultry meal, without grit, forms a good basis for a stock food, but to this should be added some preserved meat which has not been overcooked. The kind you mention is only the fibre left after every possible atom of nutriment has been extracted, and you would do better to mix a little of Spratt's fine "crissel," one part crissel to six parts of poultry meal. Scald this, squeeze as dry as possible, and mix with it some boiled potatoes, or potato and greens mixed, from the table. Then you must give in addition a little raw meat, Sparrow's eggs, a young Sparrow, or a mouse occasionally, and any live grubs or insects you may be able to capture. You may also give it with advantage any kind of fruit or berries that it may care for. "Pods of peas, cake, and gooseberries" are certainly not ideal food for a Jay, although nothing seems to come much amiss to such a bird. That is, of course, in moderation, but you write that he has had "two or three pods of peas, a small boiled potato, several gooseberries, and cake in one day." No wonder his "little Mary" is protesting. For a fortnight dissolve in his drinking water every other day as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence; stop the indigestible extras, and feed as indicated and I think the trouble will be surmounted. A supply of grit is not necessary for such a bird, but if you cover the cage bottom with sifted earth as you suggest, it will get a little, quite sufficient for its well-being.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

BUDGERIGARS (F. W. G.).—On page four of the 'Nutshell" I am simply quoting Mr. Payne's field observations re this most interesting species. On pages 17-18 of the same "Nutshell" you will find the following:—"When once they have settled down, their fecundity is little short of marvellous, and even greater than that depicted by Mr. Payne in his notes of their wild life. In the aviary the young are not produced by couples, but usually in broods of from three to seven, five being the more usual number. In 1906 two pairs in my aviaries reared 36 young to maturity, and this is neither unusual nor abnormal; it has often been exceeded." They usually commence incubation with the laying of the second egg, thus there is often the difference of several days between the first and last hatched youngster, and occasionally the last out gets smothered by his larger and more vigorous brothers and sisters, but mostly all are reared and leave the nest at intervals pretty nearly approximating to their respective hatching out.

PENNANT'S PARRAKEET (Pennant).—(1) Keep this bird rather warm, or, better, place its cage out of doors in some warm sheltered position on all genial days, bringing it indoors before the cool of the evening makes itself really felt. A half-teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water every other day should assist the bird in reproducing its feathers, as also should a light moistened crust of stale household bread that has been dusted with flowers of sulphur. Care should be taken that the bowels are kept moving freely by giving a mild laxative (a teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water is as good as any) as required, but there must be no appearance of diarrhœa. A liberal supply of green food will also be a help. (2) Use clear water for spraying the bird, soft water for preference, but it is better to induce the Platycercinoe, to which the Pennants belong, to take a bath in a shallow dish; it is more likely then to naturally preen its plumage.

MOPEY PARROT (M. Deale).—You do not say what kind of Parrot it is, nor how you have been feeding it; so I can only give you a sort of general reply. Confine its diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, and green food, with a stale crust, plain biscuit, nuts, as extras. Grit, cuttlebone, and water to be regularly supplied. I should spray the bird with a tepid quassin solution every other day. Also, every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in its drinking water, and on the intervening days put half a teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water. While the bright warm weather lasts, put the bird out of doors for a few hours each day, but not in an exposed position, nor yet where the sun can shine unobstructedly into the top of its cage. Parrots are social creatures, and a pet bird should be kept in the general living room if conditions permit.

WHAT BIRD? (Puzzled).—I fear I cannot help you unless you can give me a more detailed description. "Very small" is a comparative term, and depends largely on what other kind of bird you are mentally comparing it with. There is an Indian bird—viz., the Black-headed Mannikin or Nun—which comes very near to your description. It is about the size of a Goldfinch, has a leaden-blue beak, black head and neck, with the rest of the body cinnamon-brown; the beak is heavily formed. I should supply white millet and green food in addition to what you are now giving. That a bird reaches you from a given locality is no proof it is a native; the above bird is largely imported from India, and finds its way nearly everywhere. If you are assured it is not the above, please compare its size with some well-known bird and describe what kind of brown the plumage is, and whether the brown parts vary to any extent in depth of line, and is it striped to any extent with darker brown than the ground colour?

WHAT BIRDS? (Weaver).—You give me very little information to go upon; you say nothing about the markings of the birds. I think from the fact of their weaving nests and the colour of their beaks they must be some species of hen Weaver, probably Madagascar, Napoleon, or Orange, but the similarity in plumage makes it impossible to make a definite pronouncement save from a very detailed description. If neither of the birds shows any change of plumage during the next month, then they are certainly both hens. The simplest course for you to take would be to put them into a small cage and take them to the Natural History Museum (Bird Room) at South Kensington, where they would compare them with their skins and name them for you. Your dietary is very satisfactory.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

M. Davies.—Death occurred from enteritis, following on existing liver disease.

G. B. Hyde.—Death occurred from enteritis.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution, one star the runners up.

*The Distressed "Baby."

One day a friend of mine saw a dog with a "baby" Robin in its mouth. She took it from the dog, and, being none the worse for its experience, she then placed it in an empty hen run. Soon an adult Robin came and sat on a tree hard by. It called, and the youngster answered it. The older one then flew away, and soon returned and fed the distressed one. A little later the baby found a way out of the run, and flew into the bushes near.—F. Newton (age 13), 3, Moorland Road, Scarboro'.

*Our Canary.

We have a nice Canary,
With plumage very fine;
"Pa" says it is a Norwich,
And it's singing all the time.
Its song is sweet and thrilling,
Its music ever bright;
The house he's ever filling,
From morning until night.

Annie Osborne (age 10), Oakwood View, Bridgend Road, Garth, Maesteg.

Clever "Polly."

"Polly" is a little green Parrakeet, with a long tail and a scarlet ring round his neck. He lives in a large cage in the play-room, but spends most of his time on his stand. The stand is connected with the cage by a ladder, up and down which Polly climbs. Polly is a very clever bird. He whistles "Hold the Fort," and says many things. He calls the cat "Puss, Puss; Toby, Toby!" He asks "Who are you?" calls for tea, tells George to get up, announces that the house is on fire, me-ows, barks, and kisses everyone. He is very sweet-tempered. Sometimes we dress him in a handkerchief; he hates that, but still he never bites us. Polly is very fond of candy, and will steal it from between our lips. He is not afraid of cats, and one morning Tabby, my cat, was found licking him while Polly talked to her and "mewed."—Ernest Walker (aged 10), 90, Southport Road, Ormskirk, Lancashire.

Friendly Robins.

When the smoking-room of this house ("Lowood") was being built in 1903, the workmen left a few bricks out on the walls, when it had reached the height of 3 feet, in which to place the poles to stand on when they white-washed the ceiling. When they came back to finish the room they found that a pair of Robins were building a nest in one of these spaces. In a few days the nest was finished, and five eggs were laid, which later on hatched out. All this time the workmen had been making an awful noise with their hammers. The old birds used to go on to the table at meals and get crumbs from the labourers, and at last, when the young birds were able to hop, the parents used to bring them also to get crumbs. At last the happy family flew away, and the workmen were able to stop up the space.—A true story, sent by L. Dow (aged 13½), "Lowood," Woodbridge.

An Appreciation from South Africa

I am in receipt of your esteemed favour of 8th July. You have my most hearty thanks for the service you have rendered me by furnishing me with the information asked for. This is one of the many instances which proves the value of your excellent paper, Cage Birds, to fanciers abroad as well as at home. I look forward to my Cage Birds each mail, just as eagerly as any of the other papers taken up by me. I wish yourself and your paper every success.—C. Chamberlain, Port Elizabeth, S. Africa.

If You Keep Guinea Pigs.

We have received from the publisher, Mr. Upcott Gill, Bazaar Buildings, London, a copy of "Cavies or Guinea Pigs," by Mr. Geo. Gardner. This work, which is published at one shilling, contains all that there is to be known about these comical little pets. Feeding, housing, breeding and exhibiting are exhaustively explained, and the book is well illustrated by ten photographic reproductions and various useful drawings.

A Small Bird with a Loud Voice.

The voice of the Wren is sweet and melodious, and of a more powerful character than would be imagined from its size. The bird is a merry little creature, and chants its song on the slightest encouragement. Even in winter there needs but a gleam of sunshine to set him singing, and the cold Christmas season is often cheered by his happy notes. While flitting among the branches the Wren utters a continuous little twittering, which, although not worthy to be called a song, is yet very soft and pleasing.

HIDDEN BIRDS: HALF-A-GUINEA (Cash) FOR THE READER WHO CORRECTLY NAMES THEM.

The four drawings seen above are pictorial representations of the names of three British birds and one Foreign bird, known to all our readers. We offer a cash prize of Half-a-Guinea to the reader who correctly fills in the names of these birds in the spaces provided underneath the pictures. All competitors must observe the following conditions or their efforts will be disqualified.

THE RULES TO BE OBSERVED.

(1) The names of the birds must be clearly written in the spaces provided.
(2) Only one name must appear in each space.
(3) Competitors can send in two or more attempts, but each attempt must be made on a separate form cut from a copy of "Cage Birds."
(4) The name and address of the sender must in all cases be given in full.
(5) In case of two or more competitors identifying the four birds correctly, their names will be written on slips of paper, the latter placed in a hat, and one slip drawn out by some independent person, and the name appearing on the slip so selected shall be the name of the winner of the half-a-guinea prize.
(6) All solutions must reach us on or before Friday, Sept. 5th next, or they will be too late to compete.
(7) Entries are accepted only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be final.

Note.—In the unlooked-for event of no competitor correctly guessing the four birds, the prize will go to the competitor whose form gives the greatest number correct (subject to rule 5 in case of tie or ties).

Correspondence.

The Retirement of a Well-known London Secretary.

Sir,—I have taken a business in the country, and am shortly removing, and I find I shall be unable to continue in the Fancy, so am offering my whole stock through Cage Birds this week. I am very sorry to have to part with my birds, having spent a lot of money in building up his strain, and although I have been very successful, I had hopes of doing still better this season. Still, one must study his living first, and no doubt someone will benefit by my offer, as I am selling at a cheap price to ensure quick sale. I shall still continue to take Cage Birds, and keep up an interest in the Fancy, although I shall not be able to keep any birds for a year or two. F. Moore.

The Testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb of Leeds.

Sir,—I have received further subscriptions amounting to 20s., making the total £7 13s. 6d. Mr. Mackenzie has kindly offered to receive subscriptions from callers at his Newcastle establishment. I have decided to keep this fund open for another week, and to make a final appeal for support, as I feel that the amount already received is not commensurate with the services so generously given the Fancy by Mr. Cobb when he was in a position to do so. Doubtless the holiday season is the cause of many of his old friends and others overlooking the matter.

How Birds Beat the Bird Scarers.

Sir,—I much enjoyed reading the following notes by "Fleur-de-lys" in "Country Life," and send them on in the hope that you will reprint them for the benefit of my fellow bird-lovers:—"Having read in a book of vegetable gardening that small windmills, arranged to rattle as they turn round, are good things to keep away birds, I made a rather elaborate apparatus. There are four wooden arms and a central pivot on which the arrangement revolves. The fans are made of slanted pieces of tin. In order to get plenty of noise, I have wires on the arms with empty brass cartridge cases sliding on them. As the mill turns, the brass cases slide up and down the wires and make a considerable clatter. The arrangement has not been up very long, yet this morning, on looking out of a window, I saw a Linnet sit on one of the arms of my mill, which was at rest, there being no wind. The arm went down with the bird's weight, to the accompaniment of clattering brass. The Linnet was not at all alarmed at the turning of the arm, but flitted down and began picking at some plants a couple of yards off. I think this shows that our birds are far too intelligent to be imposed on by any ordinary scaring devices. I remember once, in India, watching with much amusement the procedure of a flock of Parrakeets, which a native woman was endeavouring to keep out of a field of ripe millet. The old dame was armed with a sling and a cloth full of stones. She used her primitive weapon with considerable skill, and whenever the Parrakeets swooped down into the corn, she would send a good-sized stone into the middle of the flock. The birds, however, soon discovered the sling's range, and kept making raids just out of the old woman's reach. The Parrakeet always cuts off the millet just below the ear, and so carries off the whole top; consequently they effect enormous damage.

A Strange Bird.

Sir,—The London "Evening News," of Aug. 15, published the following paragraph. Has somebody been "faking" a bird, or is there such a one as described? The paragraph is headed "A strange bird," and is as follows:—"This is not a puzzle. A St. Agnes resident has caught a bird as large as a Woodpigeon, with a breast like a grey Thrush, a green back like a Parrot, and green and yellow and red feathers on its head Some tribe in remote parts appears to have been having a pigeon race." Canariensis.

[There would seem to be no doubt that the bird described is a Green Woodpecker.—Ed.]

What is the Matter with Members' Shows?

Sir,—I have been thinking for some time that there is something wrong with the Fancy. I cannot help noticing that the members' shows in this district (Manchester) are very poorly patronised, both in the shape of entries, and in patronage by the general public. I will try in a few words (with your permission) to point out both the cause and the cure for this state of things. There are in this immediate neighbourhood a good number of good fanciers. There are also a good few societies; I know of six or seven in a very small district, comparatively speaking. Now each of these societies runs at least one members' show each year; most of them run more than one. I have visited most of these shows of recent years, and am struck by the fact that recently there has been a great falling off both in quality and quantity of exhibits. I find that most of the fanciers belong to at least two societies, some belonging to more. Now let us see what this means: In the first place there is the subscription to each society to pay yearly; this must amount to quite a respectable sum, looked at from the standpoint of a man with only a weekly wage. These men, by the way, are generally the best fanciers, and the backbone of all the societies. Then again, each member likes to support with entries each society of which he is a member. In consequence, each society gets fewer entries, and competition is not great enough to warrant fixed prize-money. We therefore get the sliding scale, and this is not worth competing for. Where is the honour or gain financially to the man who wins a first prize in a class of three birds with an entry fee of 1s. per bird? In my opinion, this is at the root of all the trouble. There are too many societies running small members' shows; it is almost impossible for anyone of them to be worth a visit, and thus we get the spectacle, which must be heartbreaking to the officials of a poor show of poor birds (it is not worth while to send out good birds) badly patronised by the public; I am not blaming the public. If I were not a fancier, I should consider it a waste of both time and money to visit a show and see the poor specimens miserably staged, which are the usual thing at members' shows. I grant you there are exceptions, and I am quite ready to admit that occasionally a few real toppers put in an appearance. But the rule seems to be that anything is good enough for a members' show. Another thing which is against the members' show is this: The average man belonging to two or three societies cannot attend the meetings of all his societies, each society on the average holding about two meetings each month. The consequence is that the management of each society devolves on a small number of members who are in a position to spare the necessary time. This again leads to the formation of small cliques in each society, who practically govern the affairs of the society, and this does not tend to make a successful show. I have had my growl, now for the remedy: My idea is for the whole of the societies in a district to amalgamate together and form one good society. I believe that we in this district could have the finest society, and the best members' show in the country. We have the fanciers, we have the birds, and if this scheme of mine comes about, I believe we shall have the money too. Of course it is easy to draw up a scheme like this, but not so easy to put it into practice. We shall have difficulty with the officials of the existing societies. We can hardly expect them to see the necessity of giving up a position in which they play the part of "Lord high everything." It, therefore, rests with the rank and file to say if they are satisfied to go on finding the sunshine while a few officials reflect the glory. I believe that for one subscription of say six shillings per year, an amalgamated society, in this district could guarantee full prize-money at two members' shows each year. It could run the best members' show in England from the point of view of quality, and we could rival, if not surpass, the Crystal Palace show with one open show per year. With your permission, I withhold my name from publication for the present. "Looker-on."

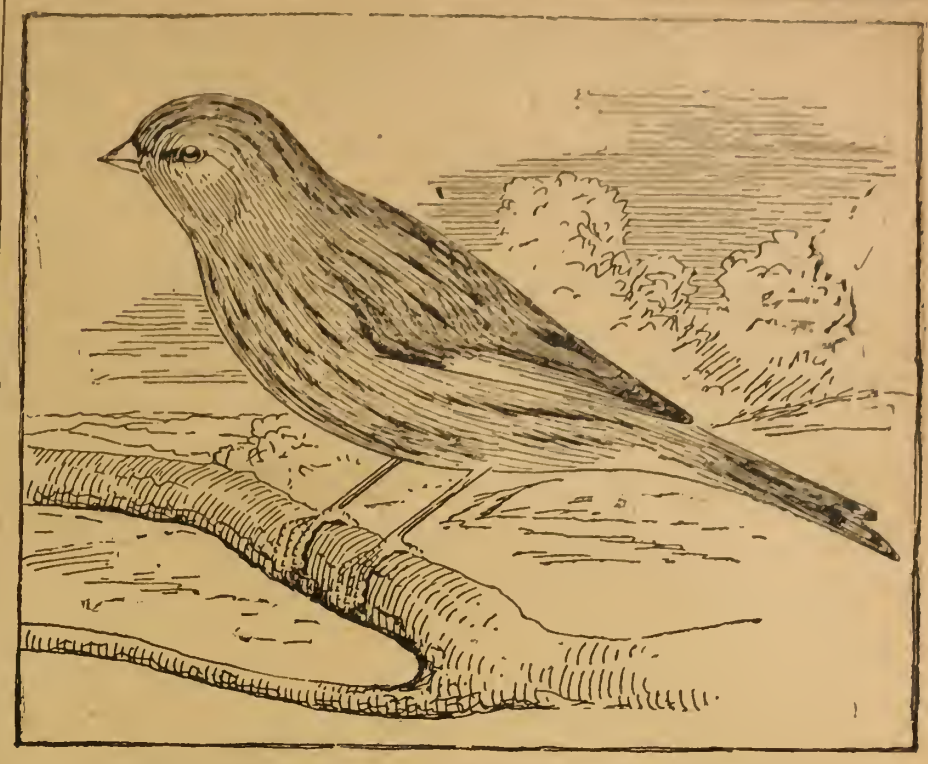
A Rare Feathered Wagtail.

Sir,—It may interest bird lovers to hear that there is a Cream Wagtail, with underparts buffish-brown, flying about here in the private grounds of the mansion, Compton Verney, Warwick. It keeps about the house with the others (Pied) all the time; they are very plentiful. In the early summer a hen Pied Wagtail killed herself by flying against a window. She had laid three eggs. I opened her to make sure it was the bird I watched on the nest, and found more eggs inside. The cock was solitary for six weeks, calling all the time. Then he found another hen (who was perhaps a widow), took her to the same nest, where she laid five eggs and brought up three young. There is a white Sparrow in the kitchen-garden here. I reared a nest of four Wagtails about eight years ago and notified it at the time. They were ten days old when I took them, and they cost me 35s. to rear, as an experiment. This place is eight miles from Warwick.

(Mrs.) Alice Bate.

Another Talented Starling.

"Joey" Likes "Chocolates."



Sir,—Having seen in Cage Birds an account of a talented Starling, I thought you would like to hear about ours. We have had our Starling from quite a baby, when it could not feed itself, so we fed it with a stick. Our house is called Old Park House, in Goldie Leigh Homes, and consists of forty girls. The bird was given to us by a workman in the Homes a year last June, and we named it "Joey." It soon became quite tame, and we taught it to talk, and now it talks as plainly as a Parrot. These are some of the things it says" : Where's mother dear? Nice boy, Joey; Naughty boy, dear; Kiss mother, dear." He mocks the Canary, calls several girls by name, coughs, sneezes, and makes other sounds which he hears. Joey has a bath every morning in a cake tin, which he enjoys very much, and he flies on to our heads and hands. He has meal-worms, which are a special luxury for him, and we call them his "chocolates." When we say "chocs" to him he flies about the cage, and makes a noise until he has one. We have now got to love our bird very much, and to take a great interest in him.

Lesser Redpoll Changes His Coat.

Sir,—I think the following may be of interest to fanciers generally: five years ago I caught a number of Lessor Redpolls, one of which I kept, and have shown and won with several times. Each year he has moulted out practically the same as he was the previous year, but this year he has (much to my surprise) assumed the garb of a decent Mealy. He is distinctly lighter on all parts and, in addition, has a lovely pink breast and head colour, which he never before possessed. Further, he certainly appears to have grown bigger. Now what I should like to ask is this: Is the Mealy really a distinct species, or, is it the Lesser in an advanced stage of life? As I caught mine adult, I cannot be sure of its age, but I have in my time caught a great many Redpolls, and can safely say that out of the lot not more than ten were Mealies, and so this has set me wondering if the Mealy as a distinct species really exists. I may say that Mr. G. Gardner judged mine on Dec. 28 last, and doubtless he would remember it as he gave it 3rd at High Wycombe. Anyway I think it would be interesting to know if anyone has had a like experience.

Frank Abbott.

THE TWITE; OR "MOUNTAIN LINNET."

The Twite closely resembles the Linnet in appearance, but has a yellowish beak, while the male has a red patch on the rump feathers, but none on breast or head. Our sketch was taken from the fine specimen 2nd prize at the Horticultural Hall Show for Mr. F. Heal, of Swansea.

British Wagtails, and How to Keep Them

By J. STEEL (Dalkeith).

An Entertaining and Instuctive Article on the Greyhound of the British Bird Fancy.

OF birds I have kept, these, the Motacilla, hold first place in my esteem, combining as they do the charms of grace, activity, beauty of colour, and confiding disposition. I remember a noted aviculturist propounding the query: Why does the Wagtail wag its tail? I confess I have a liking for these problems, and find pleasure in endeavouring to find a solution by studying the subject. That nature should impart and perpetuate a habit which calls for such an expenditure of energy as this, without serving some purpose, is most unlikely. My theory may not be correct, but this is how I solve the problem. Firstly, I find that all those species which wag or indulge in certain spasmodic jerks, of which the Wheatear, Sandpiper, Moor-hen, Chats, and Dipper are familiar instances, are either entirely insectivorous, or largely so. I cannot mention an entirely seed-eating species which has this habit.

Why the Wagtail Wags.

Now all the above have to capture their food by a method which may be termed lunging, as the majority of terrestial or aquatic insects, if not beautiful to look upon, are devils to go, and seldom give their pursuer a second chance. Therefore, just as a man when about to leap swings his arms, and sways his body to gain an impetus, these species seem to me to have been provided by nature with a spasmodic action which keeps in a state of constant preparation those muscles which come into play when a sudden effort is necessary.

Anyone who has watched a cat, when about to spring on a bird or mouse may imagine the effect if such contortions had to be repeated hundreds of times in order to capture sufficient for one meal, and we might pardon pussy if the habit became, like the fabled tailor's thirst, chronic and inherent.

I have kept four out of the five species of British Wagtails, viz., the Pied, Grey, Yellow, and White, but have as yet failed to obtain a specimen of that rarest of the species, the Blue-headed. The Pied is the most common, and also the hardiest. Being a resident species, his suitability for an outside aviary is only marred by his attribute of pugnacity, indeed all the Wagtails exhibit this trait in a manner which often imposes a hardship on the less assertive individuals with which they may be confined, as any live food or other dainty is apt to be divided in a manner which cannot be otherwise than bad for both.

Apropos of this, of three Wagtails I have confined together I have named one after a celebrated K.C., as when any live food is introduced he profits by the row which takes place, and never fails to get the lion's or lawyer's share while the others are disputing the ownership of a single and much elongated grub.

The Pied is the largest and also the most plain-coloured, being, when fully adult, a study in black and white. The peculiar distribution of these colours has earned him the scientific appellation Motacilla lugubris, meaning, sad looking (Lugubrious) I cannot help thinking that ludicrous would have been more appropriate, his face markings giving him a grotesque appearance, reminiscent of a circus clown.

Old Birds the Best.

I have known quite a few fanciers make the mistake of taking immature specimens, which may easily be recognised by the yellow tinge of the whites, and the lavender colour of the back, a second moult being necessary to the development of his full livery. I have found that the third moult has the effect of intensifying the contrast, the white being purer and the black denser, apart from the increase in size which all birds acquire in their second year. In the case of such a plentiful species, to take the young birds for rearing is a needless waste of time and food, and it were much better to take a few good adults, and from these select one of those whose actions show him to be kind, i.e., tractable.

When Wagtails Foregather.

The Wagtails are on the whole a gregarious species, but the Pied exhibits this trait in the highest degree, and many shrubberies are the nightly rendezvous of a host during autumn and winter. It used to be one of the sights to watch the assembling of the Wagtails on the roof and cornices of the G.P.O. in Edinburgh every evening, and I have often, while watching their arrival in companies, from all points of the compass, wondered why they unanimously chose that pile. Unlike the Starlings, they do not indulge in aerial evolutions before settling, and their attitude is in direct contrast with their pugnacity during the day, where their time seems to be spent in a succession of fights.

The Pied is, from an exhibition point of view, somewhat under a cloud, no doubt because of his commonness. This, I may say, is a point in which I hold views at variance with the majority of British bird judges, and while admitting that, other points being equal, the most beautiful and rare should win, I maintain that excellence should be a sine qua non, and should outweigh any failing in that quality, however rare a bird may be. No doubt the difficulty of keeping certain species merits consideration, but even that does not justify elevating such, on that point alone. Judged from the standard of excellence, I have no hesitation in saying that one of the finest softbills I have ever seen was a pied Wagtail, a veritable giant among his fellows, yet his record on the bench was a series of cards only, and his owner retired from the softbill lists in disgust. How many have done likewise? To the novice who has a desire to annex the red card I do not, therefore, recommend the Pied Wagtail. Yet I myself find a pleasure in watching him, and my memory goes back to an old favourite which nobly undertook the task of rearing an orphan brood in captivity.

Giving the Mealworms a Rest.

I need scarcely go into detail as to the feeding of these species, as such would simply be a repetition of the method recommended by Mr. W. E. Teschemacher in his recent article, but a few hints on meating off may not come amiss and perchance spell a respite for the mealworms. These, notwithstanding the fact that I have plenty, I never use during summer. It is not everyone who has an opportunity of gathering the large ants' nests, but the cocoons of the smaller ants, a very useful and easily procured substitute, may be found under stones in dry situations. These small colonies if brushed into a tight covered box are in my opinion the finest medium in inducing a newly caught Wagtail to partake of food in captivity. Secondly, we have those grubs which are found embedded in the roots of plantain, bur, and common dock. Well scoured gentles are easy to procure and prepare. The larvæ of the click beetle or cockchafer are also greedily devoured. Many pasturages are overrun with these latter pests, and the best manner of locating them is to watch those parks most frequented by Starlings or Thrushes. Further, a visit to such after sundown will often reveal the treasure of swarms of large buff and white moths, which are easily caught, and judging by the avidity with which my Wagtails, 'Starts, Wheatear, etc., devour them must be good. Then we have the wasp grubs, of which I prepare a stock for winter use. My method is to drop the grubs into a pan of boiling water, and let them boil for about five minutes, strain all water off, and wash under a tap to remove all unpleasantness, then lay out in sun to dry. These will keep for any period, and if slightly broken up and softened with a very little boiling water or steaming, form a very useful addition to the winter menu. I am at present experimenting with a view to preserving these in their soft state, and if successful will deal with the subject again.

The Grey Wagtail shares with the Pied the merit of being a resident species, but I have noticed that a southward movement takes place on the termination of the breeding season, and though the numbers here (Dalkeith) during July and August, may be judged by the fact that I have marked and liberated nearly forty during the past fortnight, the approach of winter sees their number reduced to a very occasional individual.

The Handsomest of All.

The Grey is in my opinion the most handsome of the species, and a good specimen can generally get into the money under most judges. The advisability of taking adults only does not so strictly apply to this species, the reason being two fold: firstly, few indeed have such a choice of adults that they can afford to ignore the immature, and secondly some of the latter are so excellent that on the completion of the first moult they are actually superior to many adults. The only precaution necessary is to obtain them before they have started to cast their nest feathers, as the administration of a little cold colour feed has, in my opinion, an enhancing effect.

The Hunger Strike.

I have laid stress on the advisability of selecting tractable individuals, and in no species is this quality more varying than in the Grey Wagtail. I have had some which not only partook of preserved food, but actually enjoyed a bath within an hour after capture, while others resented confinement with a Pankhurstian determination which meant liberty or death. Now, I don't care how wild a newly-caught Wagtail may be, but when it refuses to eat even the most tasty dainties, I know its period of life may be measured within twenty-four hours.

The Threatened Danger to British and Foreign Bird-Keeping.

The Importation of Plumage (Prohibition) Bill.

A Stirring Appeal by Mr. T. R. TROWER (King's Cross.)

The preamble of this Bill sets forth that it is "A Bill to prohibit the importation and skins of wild birds, and to amend the enactments relating to the protection of wild birds, and for other purposes incidental thereto."

The Bill was introduced into the House of Commons on Aug. 4th by Mr. Hobhouse, Under Secretary of State, supported by Mr. Buxton and Mr. Montague. It was not passed this session; and it will in all probability be introduced again when Parliament reassembles early in 1914.

The following is a copy, Section 4, of the Bill, also of the Sections of the Acts therein referred to concerning British wild birds.

4. An Order may be made by the Secretary of State, or the Secretary for Scotland, or the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, under sections eight and nine of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1880, and sections two and three of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1894, and section one of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1896, which give powers with reference to the protection of wild birds and their eggs, without any application or representation from the council of any county or county borough.

Wild Birds Protection Act 1880.

Section 8.—One of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, as to Great Britain, and the Lord Lieutenant, as to Ireland, may, upon application of the Justices in quarter sessions assembled of any county, by order extend or vary the time during which the killing and taking of Wild Birds or any of them is prohibited by this Act; after the making of which order the penalties imposed by the Act in respect of such wild birds, shall in such county apply only to offences committed during the time specified in such order; and the order for the extension or variation of such time shall be published—if made by the Secretary of State, in the London Gazette, or if made by the Lord Lieutenant in the Dublin Gazette—and a Copy of the London Gazette or Dublin Gazette containing any order made under the Act shall be evidence of the same having been made.

Section 9.—The operation of this Act shall not extend to the Island of St. Kilda, and it shall be lawful for one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State as to Great Britain and for the Lord Lieutenant as to Ireland, where it shall appear desirable, from time to time, upon the application of the justices in quarter sessions assembled in any county, to exempt any such county or part or parts thereof, as to all or any wild birds, from the operation of this Act; and every such order shall be published and may be proved in the manner provided in the preceding section.

Wild Birds Protection Act 1894.

Section 2.—A Secretary of State may, after the passing of this Act, upon the application by the County Council of any Administrative county by order prohibit (1) The taking or destroying of wild birds' eggs in any year or years, in any place or places within that county, or (2) the taking or destroying the eggs of any specified kind of wild birds within that county or part or parts thereof as recommended by the said county council and set forth in the said order. The application of the county council shall specify the limits of the place or places or otherwise, the particular species of wild birds to which it is proposed that any prohibition in the order is to apply, and shall set forth the reasons on account of which the application is made.

Section 3.—A Secretary of State may, on the representation of the council of any administrative county, order that the principal Act shall apply within that county or any part or parts thereof to any species of wild bird not included in the Schedule of that Act, as if that species of wild bird were included in the schedule of that Act, and on the making of such order that Act shall apply accordingly.

Wild Birds Protection Act 1896.

Section 1.—From and after the passing of this Act the powers exerciseable by the Secretary of State on application under section 8 of the Wild Birds Protection Act 1880, shall extend to the making of an order prohibiting, for special reasons mentioned in the application, the taking or killing of particular kinds of wild birds, during the whole or any part of that period of the year to which protection of wild birds under that Act does not extend, or the taking or killing of all wild birds in particular places during the whole or any part of that period.

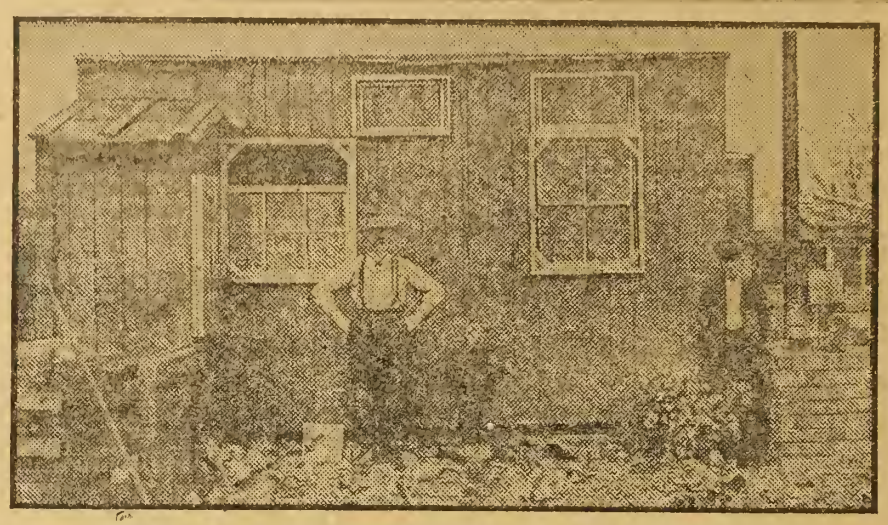
This Bill, as now proposed, is the most deadly and iniquitous piece of Bird Legislation introduced into the House of Commons, and, if passed into Law next year, will stop the importation of all Foreign Wild Birds. Further, in combination with our present existing Wild Bird Laws, it will give one individual, the Secretary of State for the time being, the power to make any order he may choose to protect all the year round throughout Great Britain any and every species of British Wild Bird.

With respect to Foreign Wild Birds these could only be imported into Great Britain under a letter of licênse granted by the Board of Trade, see Clause 3, Section 2. This clause clearly specifies "Birds" not Plumage, the expression Plumage being described in Section 5. We may rest assured such a license would only be granted to some Zoological Society or influential person for the purpose of scientific research or Zoological purposes, and no dealer would probably be allowed to import Wild Birds for trade purposes or for sale.

With reference to British Wild Birds under Section 4. The Secretary of State for the time being would have the power to prohibit the catching and killing, if he thought necessary, of any and every species of British Wild Bird throughout the whole area of Great Britain, a power that is now held piecemeal and split up among some hundreds of Borough and County Councils, but which can only be enforced by them over the district where they exercise control. Hence in some towns and districts birds are protected all the year round and others where they are plentiful and destructive are only protected during the breeding season, or say from March 1st till August 1st, and, where not in the Schedule, may be taken by an owner or occupier of land, or by a person authorised by an owner or occupier of land, but here under this proposed act we are to give one man, the Secretary of State for the time being, the power, without consulting anyone, to make an order or orders protecting any and every species of British Wild Bird throughout Great Britain for any part of or the whole year.

This drastic enactment is very cleverly worded, and every keeper of British and Foreign Wild Birds must not fail immediately to realise the fact that if eventually passed into Law in its present form would undoubtedly be the means of slowly and surely annihilating bird-keeping by cutting off the sources of supply. We should then only want another small measure—no Foreign or British Wild Bird to be kept in a cage—to complete the catastrophe.

Even outside the question of compelling the Bird-keeper to dispense with his hobby, let us look at the ruin it would affect on thousands of individuals whose livings would be destroyed, and whose capital is now invested in supplying the wants of Foreign and British Bird-keepers. Many of these are too old to take up other occupations, and with their small business partly destroyed, and their little capital lost, would see only the workhouse staring them in the face. One hardly realises off hand the large number of persons whose part or whole livelihood depends on the Bird-keeper.



I have seen this legislation gradually growing since 1882; we have also seen and heard a deal written for and against keeping Wild Birds in cages, but no one, not even the "faddist," has ever put forward any sound argument that it is cruel to keep wild birds in cages. Knowledge and experience causes everyone to come to a contrary conclusion.

Let us hope and trust we are going to have a big fight to preserve our hobby, which many of us have spent a lifetime in building up; now at once is the time to begin. It will need all our resources, and it means very hard work for those who will undertake the task on behalf of those interested; don't be fainthearted, but at once see what you can do to help and assist to combat the proposed evil. Besides the Cage Birds League, which has already done much good work, the only protected organisation we have at present in existence is the recently-formed Bird-keepers' Protection Association, in connection with the National British Bird and Mule Club, which has had this matter in hand for some time, and which is now endeavouring to organise a defence to the proposed Bill; every Bird-keeper and other persons interested in Bird-keeping throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain should not only be a member of Cage Birds League, but should become a subscriber towards the funds of this Bird-keepers' Protection Association. The sub. is a merely nominal one of 6d. per annum. Vouchers of Membership can be obtained of its Secretary, J. P. Carr, 45, Overdale Road, South Ealing, London, W.; the Treasurer, T. R. Trower, 442, Caledonian Road, London, N.; or of the Secretary of any Cage-bird Society or Association in Great Britain.

The defence of our hobby will need all the resources and help that can be organised. No doubt a large central meeting will shortly be held in London to give the matter the most earnest consideration. I have urged many many times this combination of Bird-keepers to protect its interests, and in making this last appeal to everyone concerned, no matter whether they are interested in bird-keeping as a hobby, or depending on it for a living, I ask them, will you help and assist trying to preserve one of the most innocent and instructive hobbies the world knows? It is simply now or never. Don't delay, or it will soon be too late.

T. R. Trower.

Decided also to hold a members' show on Nov. 15 in Bethesda Lecture Hall, off Church Street, Mr. Chas. Houlton, St. Helens, judge. Next meeting Sept. 5 to arrange classes, please all attend.—E. Rone, Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at Horse and Jockey, Aug. 14, Mr. Hibberson, in the absence of president, taking the chair. After the usual monthly business arrangements were made regarding annual show. Decided to hold it at Attercliffe Vestry Hall, Nov. 22. Judges were next elected providing their services are available on that date. Other arrangements re show were left over for next meeting.—W. Hailstone, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

Special general meeting held Aug. 21, Mr. S. Lindsay chair. Letter read from chairman, Mr. T. C. Crawhall, saying he was unable to be present. Mr. J. Hall, Bewley Cottage, Street Gate, Whickham, was elected a member. Estimates were read from printer re printing for open show. Rules and regulations for show were agreed. Will members please note that the classes for the judges will be arranged at next meeting, Sept. 4? I shall be pleased to receive specials as early as possible.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

CLYDEBANK C.B.S.

Meeting held 81, Kilbowie Road, August 21, Mr. McGown presiding. Secretary reported that owing to the holidays he had not got the estimates for uprights for annual show, but expected them shortly. Classes for annual show were discussed, and it was agreed to have them the same as last year, including a class for Parrots, open to the district. Also agreed that we get posters and tickets for annual show from the Leith Publishing Co. Mr. A. Easton, Clydebank, was elected a member. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—Wm. Kane, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Will members please note that subscriptions are now due, 2s. 6d. per annum. We are anxious to get all in, as specials must be allotted at September meeting. Any member wishing to give a special towards the cups and medals, etc., or for the old show, please send on, as we are desirous of having a record year. Our smoking concert is to be held at the Bee Hotel, St. John's Lane, on Wednesday next. Will members do their best to be present, and bring their friends? Our first turn-out for the novices at Anfield, October 18, champions; Newcastle and Halifax on same date.—F. Handley, Hon. Sec.

STANLEY (Victoria) CLUB F. & F.S.

Members Take an Enjoyable Trip by Char-a-Banc.

The members of the above society held their char-a-banc trip August 16, when we had a grand day. We left the club at 6.30 a.m., and we went via Rowlands Gill, Blaydon, Prudhoe, Riding Mill, and on to Hexham, where we stopped for an hour to allow our party a look at Hexham. We next passed through Ascomb, Chollerford, Wark, and stopped at Bellingham for dinner, at the Black Bull, and our members did full justice to a grand dinner, provided by Mr. Johnson. From there we went via Hareshaw Head, Watling Street, Otterburn, Elsdon, Knowesgate, Belsay, Whalton, and then we stopped at Morpeth for tea, provided by Mr. Wilson. We had a very heavy shower of rain at Morpeth, but after we got clear of Morpeth the weather was fine again. We next stopped at Newcastle for an hour, and then proceeded home, which we reached at 10.45. That they had spent the most enjoyable day of their lives was the unanimous verdict of every member present.—R. Peart.

BIRD LIFE THROUGH CAMERA AND FIELD GLASS.

A Lantern Slide Lecture given by Mr. G. Fletcher before the Members of the Sheffield O.S.

Such was the title of one of the most unique subjects ever selected by a lecturer, to be given before the members of a Cage Bird Society.

The Sheffield O.S. members were fortunate in having the pleasure of a most entertaining lecturer, at their monthly meeting, held at Headquarters, Aug. 19, Mr. T. Down presiding. The meeting was about the largest ever held under the auspices of the society, the large club room being packed by members and friends; those who were unavoidably absent, would be greatly disappointed, Mr. G. Fletcher was the lecturer, and very great credit is due to him for the excellent manner in which he handled his subject; the time taken in preparing the slides, etc., all of which had been very carefully selected, must have been very considerable. He exhibited 95 slides, explained the habits, food, mode of life of the birds, and the best means of keeping them in captivity and exhibition condition. The slides depicted practically every kind of British bird, included among them being many which are not at all commonly seen, such as the Hoopoe, Nightjar, and others, not to mention a beautiful representation of a young Cuckoo in a Hedge Sparrow's nest. These slides were followed after a five minute's interval by a quantity on nests, rearing young, etc., the latter half of the programme proving even more interesting than the first, the surroundings appearing so realistic and beautiful. At the conclusion a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Fletcher was proposed by Mr. J. Woodall, who said that it was almost difficult to realise, when looking at the beautiful surroundings which had been so ably placed on the screen by the lecturer, that they were after all only in a club room in a leading Sheffield Hotel; they could almost fancy they were now in the wood, and a few moments after in a shady glen, again transported to the river side with the Kingfishers carrying out their domestic duties, skimming the top of the refreshing streams, then gliding to their offspring with some dainty morsel. They were indeed very greatly indebted to the lecturer for the time and trouble he had taken in preparing so enjoyable an evening's entertainment for the S.O.S. members. This was ably seconded by Mr. Walsh, who was at home with all the subjects, and unanimously accorded.—J. A. T. Woodall, Press Corres.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Meeting held in Y.M. Halls 8-pt 23, Mr. Rundel presiding. A good start was made in business for annual show. Subscription sheets, donors, and admission tickets are already in printer's hands. Mr. Robert Cummings, one of our members, kindly presented the club with a handsome rose bowl for competition at annual show for the best British bird. Competitor to win bowl three times before it becomes his own property. We now have three cups, rose bowl, gold medal, and silver medal to compete for. Members of committee to meet Saturday, Aug. 30 at Cross to hear report from printers. Next meeting 8-pt. 6th, Y.M. Halls, 7 p.m., Business, classification for annual show. Allan Thomson, Sec.

HALTWHISTLE C.B.S.

Committee meeting, held at Mr. Nicholson's, Aug. 21, Mr. G. H. Bowerbank, chair. Letters read from the secretaries of Northern Norwich F.C., and Northern B.F.C.C., announcing that our society had been granted the patronage of those clubs, also from the Border Fancy Club, announcing that we had been granted both championship and novice medals. For our open show, Nov. 21 and 22, there will be fourteen classes for Borders, including two novice and one selling; nine for Norwich (one novice); four Yorks. (one novice); two selling; five British, two foreign, three Mule, and fourteen members' classes. Other minor matters were discussed, and meeting brought to a close with a vote of thanks to the chair.—Wm. Tallantyre, Sec.

STANLEY Victoria Club F. & F.S.

Meeting held August 24, Mr. T. H. Curry chair. Decided to start a fund at once to have a trip to Edinburgh to see the National Show. Decided that trip be for one or three days, as any fancier may prefer. We got about 20 names wishing to go. Fanciers desirous of joining us, please give their names in as early as possible to Mr. J. Boyle, treas., or the sec., so that arrangements may be made in good time. All names to be accompanied by a deposit. We had several specials promised, and the enthusiasm of our members looks promising for our annual show being a huge success. We have the use of the club hall free; one of the best halls in North-West Durham. Mr. F. Hopper gave a cage and flight combined, value 30s., for 4 nominated birds; Mr. W. Elliott, medal most points; Mr. J. Bowman, 5s. best Norwich; Mr. R. Goodchild, medal best Yorks.; Mr. J. Dover, medal best Linnet; Mr. W. Gowland, medal best Border. It was proposed that every member ask his wife to give a special, and several of the ladies have already promised to do so.—R. Peart, Sec.

NORTHERN BORDER & S.F.C.C.

Monthly meeting and table show held Aug. 11, Mr. W. Smith chair. President, Mr. Barr, could not attend through pressure of business, but he sent word that he would be pleased to give a case of cutlery for the runner-up in the champion competition. Vice-pres., Mr. Parkin, then offered a tea set for the runner-up in novice competition. These two gentlemen are of the right sort, both having the Fancy at heart. It was decided that Blaydon, Sunderland, and Chopwell be allotted our patronage, this making the six shows required complete. The awards at the table show were:—CLASS 1: 1, Affleck. CLASS 3: 1, 2, Affleck; 3, 4, Harvey. CLASS 5: 1, Snaith; 2, 3, Beevor. CLASS 6: 1, Snaith; 2, 3, Beevor. CLASS 7: 1, Cosser. CLASS 8: 1, Cosser; 2, Snaith. A hearty vote of thanks to the judge, Mr. W. Espie, brought a grand meeting to an end. In my last month's report I forgot to mention the medal kindly presented by Mr. Duncan for most points was won by Mr. W. P. Snaith. Next meeting to be a question night, members are requested to have their questions written out ready.—M. C. Potts, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Meeting held Maskill's Hotel, Mr. Whetton presided; 22 members present, Mr. Manning was enrolled as a member. Prize-money won at Y.B. show was paid. Mr. E. J. Banks attended the meeting, and in an able speech explained his idea re his offer of £5 5s. towards cup fund conditionally that members subscribe £10 to purchase three cups for open competition at the open show. Mr. Banks stated that it was time we gave the exhibitors something worth coming to Cardiff for, in addition to usual prize money. He also offered to help us get the fourth cup, the members present were delighted with Mr. Banks' sporting offer, and on the list being sent around the room we were promised £7 10s. by the members present, leaving £2 10s. necessary to complete the fund. Members who were unable to be present at the meetings can send on to me or Mr. E. J. Davies, the amounts they wish to give; Sec. read a communication from N.B.B. and M.C., allotting us patronage, and also have seen in Fancy papers that we have secured S.N.P.C., also S.Y.C.C. patronage. It is with deep regret that I have heard since the meeting that Mr. C. Wells has by death lost his sister, I am sure that all the members of our society will extend their deepest sympathy to him and his family. Three dozen "Cage Birds" coupons were ordered at the meeting. Will all members requiring coupons please let me know how many they will require? Classification for open show was completed; we were forced to amalgamate a couple of British classes. Members please try and attend next meeting, as final arrangements will be made for the open show. Also members are requested kindly to pay amounts promised to cup fund as soon as possible. Subs. are now due.—E. Thomas, Sec.

LONGTON C.B.S.

Meeting held Roc Buck Hotel Aug. 19, Mr. E. Tams chair. Decided that this year's schedule for open show be the same as last, with the exception that there will be two more classes, A.O.V. Mule, and A.O.V. Canary, and in the Novice British it will be Goldfinch or Bullfinch. Decided that the novice classes be limited to £3 3s.; also that all specials be given to the society, the society is to allot the same. All specials are asked to be brought and exhibited at the show, so that those winning same can take them home. Mr. Hickman has kindly consented to look after the specials. Proposed by Mr. Ratcliffe, seconded by J. Peake, and carried, that the sec., write to CAGE BIRDS regarding recognising of the championship scheme, asking whether it would not be advisable to distinguish the birds that are to compete for the same so that no exhibitor has his bird left unjudged.—Philip Barker, Hon. HASTINGS AND ST. LEONARDS U.C.B.S.

The President (Rev. J. M. Paterson) and Mrs. Paterson, gave a garden party to the members at St. John's Vicarage, Hollington, Aug. 20. Among the large number who accepted the kind invitation were the following: Mrs. Herbert, Mrs. Crofts, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Greenglass, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Cragg, Misses Dawson, Miss White, Miss C. Godden, Miss Kirk-Bullock (hon. sec.), and Messrs. A. E. Godden, B. White, T. Veness, and H. Pennells. Mr. Paterson's fine collection of foreign birds proved a great attraction. Their brilliant and magnificent plumage created much delight and enthusiasm. The various games: putting, croquet, bowls, etc., for which Mr. Paterson very generously gave prizes, caused considerable excitement. The members all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and a very warm vote of thanks was extended to the Rev. and Mrs. Paterson for their kindness and hospitality. Also the thanks of all are due to Miss Paterson and Miss Walker for their share in making the amusement so successful. The evening show will be held Oct. 8th, at 7.30; at 8.30 the Rev. T. M. Paterson will give his lecture, postponed from Sept. 3rd, and the Committee hope they will have a record attendance.—Irene Kirk-Bullock, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Postponed monthly meeting, held Aug. 20, at Sydenham Hotel, Small Heath, Mr. Willmott, chair, before a splendid gathering; new members nominated at July meeting elected; Sec. read report of the two Y.B. shows; after the expenses had been met a profit of 10/6 had resulted, although admission was free; a record number of birds being shown, good support had been given by the public, and the members could feel that though progress was slow in getting good attendances, it was steady and encouraging to all. The result of the second stages of the cup competition had resulted in Mr. Burke leading on the two shows in Champion section also securing the hand-painted medal, and Mr. Bayliss in the novice section, securing the President's handsome special. In Mule, Hybrid, and Brit. Bird Section, Mr. Raby led, and secured Mr. Kidner's useful special. Sec. drew attention that in the Canary section of the cup competition very little divided the leaders in number of points, and it would encourage all to make the stock show a success as a friend of the societies had promised handsome dinner service, and the points would be counted at the Young Stock Show, and Members' Winter Show for same, the rest of the specials were then presented to the winners. Mr. Bayliss proposed a vote of thanks to the sec., commenting on his endeavours to attract good attendances at the meetings, and said that his management of the shows was excellent. The Chairman, seconding, spoke of the pleasure it gave him to attend all the meetings, knowing full well that every thing connected with the progressing South Birmingham O.S., was being carried out in business like way. Decided to hold, if room is available, the Young Stock Show on Nov. 1st, same classification as F.F. shows, with an expert judge. The business concluded with a very interesting and instructive debate by members Hughes and Burke, on "Colouring and Moulting of Birds," all agreeing that another splendid evening's work had been done.—J. Sheppard, Sec.

The Shows.

RADSTOCK.

Annual show, held Aug. 20. Owing probably to the lateness of the date the entry in the Cage Bird section was disappointing, all the open classes except one being cancelled. However, there was a strong show of Yorkshires in this, and the three members' classes. It is remarkable that only Yorkshires are bred in this district. Mr. B. M. Clark, hon. sec., as usual, had everything in order. Judging was finished and cards up long before show was open to public. Mr. C. I. Young, Frome, judged, and gave entire satisfaction.

OPEN YORKS.: 1, res, Chivers, cl. yell., fine upstanding bird, good wings and position; 2, 3, Beal, very fine buff, lovely condition, not quite length of winner, shows slight frill on breast, 3rd yell. tkd. cheeks, fine racy bird; res, a buff variegated, as good as any, but showing signs of moult. MEMBERS YELL. YORKS., a really grand class for quality: 2, Hooler, champion yell., graud length and pos., not quite so well staged as might have been; 3, Fricker, cl. yell., spanking condition, good head and wings, not so racy; res, Chivers, nice bird, close up; vhc, Beal, sweet bird, on small side, looks like a hen; hc, Woodlands. BUFF: 2, Woodlands, long upstanding bird, good position, nice wings and tail; 3, vhc, Beal, smart one, showing signs of moult; res, Chivers, nice wing, tkd., also in moult; c, Hooler. YORKS., BRED 1913: 1, Hooler, smart buff, nice condition, very good position; 2, res, Beal, good yell., not quite through moult, will make a good one; res, sweet little bird, standing down through soiled wings and tail; 3, Chivers, long and racy, showing slight frill on breast; vhc, Lippiatt; hc, Woodland.

LLANRWST.

The Vale of Conway Agricultural Society held its 43rd annual show, at Llanrwst, Aug 21. We were pleased to see a few classes added to the cage bird section this year. Quality was excellent and the classes were well filled except Norwich, which we hope to see increasing in North Wales, as the numbers have been very small this season, so far, although there are several small breeders of this lovely variety. Special for best bird in show was won by Mr. R. E. Griffith, with a grand Greenfinch Mule in capital form. President, Mr. J. C. Wynne-Finch; Vice-Pres., Mr. B. H. Pullan; Treas., Mr. E. Jones Owen, J.P., and the Sec., Mr. J. R. Chambers, managed affairs well, having everything in apple-pie order. Mr. J. Kershaw judged, and his awards were well received.

GOLDF. (10): 1, res, vhc, E. Jones, clinking good Finch in capital order, good size, rich expansive blaze, well-known; 2, c, Mrs. Hughes, good type, col. and markings, well-defined bars, in nice form; 3, T. BETHEL (Carnarvonshire).

Second annual show, held Aug. 6, in good weather, the attendance being remarkably good. The schedule was well got together, with several variations to suit the locality. The open boy section brought many an old winner up once more. Secretaries D. Parry and W. Jones, Edwards, R. Jones, H. Griffiths, J. Pritchard, W. Jones, all seemed to work hard, but owing to some of the birds being entered in wrong classes, numbers were changed and altered, which put some of the birds out of order for judging, thus being over-handled. The classes were good, but entries were meagre in most of the classes, young bird classes were well filled, and the Border. Special best Canary went to Mr. H. Jones, for a grand Yorkie, also best 1913 Yorks., and sp. for most points, his old birds being in grand order. Best Mule, Mr. R. E. Griffiths, a monster Greenie in good fettle, also sp. for best Linnet or Bullfinch. Mr. E. R. Roberts made the awards.

- A Tame Crested Canary. -

This Crested Hen was hand-reared by Mr. Alec Bishop, of Winchburgh, Linlithgowshire, and is very tame. Mr. Bishop writes: "The photograph was taken in my garden. The bird hops out of her cage whenever I open the door, has a fly round the room and alights on my head or shoulder. She is the finest little pet ever I had."

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾ inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

PARROTS for pleasure and profit, 7d., by C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

FOREIGN birds for beginners, 1/1½, by W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign birds. Replete with useful hints: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2½d. From agents (see list frequently published), 2d.

TALKING Parrot, genuine talking Green Amazon, guaranteed to say fully 150 words, in long sentences, perches on finger, talks to you, kisses you, takes food from lips, will answer back when spoken to, recites "Polly Green," sings "Oh, Dear," "Mary," "Pop Goes," whistles three tunes; 5 years old; will send approval before payment, £3 15/-: E. Milton, Eagle Chambers, Liverpool. (847)

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

Twitterings.

We hear that Mr. J. C. Barnes will judge at the show of the Tideswell Cage Bird Improvement Society on Nov. 25.

Messrs. Redpath and Walker, joint secs., write that General Meetings of the Anfield, Everton C.B.S. will be held at eight o'clock on the second Wednesdays in each month at 3, Priory Grove.

The annual ramble of the Anfield, Everton and Dist. C.B.S., writes Messrs. Redpath and Walker, joint secs., will be on Sunday, Sept. 7. Meet at Landing Stage 11 o'clock prompt. Members bring friends with them.

We are sorry that, through a printer's error, Mr. Rudd's advt. of last week in the Norwich column was made to begin "Henco my delay." The correct beginning was "Hence no delay," which is, of course, the opposite of what was unfortunately printed.

Would you kindly announce, writes Mr. J. Woolhouse, assist. sec. Sheffield C.B.S., that the next ramble is arranged for Sept. 6, to Ryecroft Glen; meet at Eccleshill car terminus at 2.30; all friends invited.

Will any member wanting show cages, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall, pres. Northern Yorks. C.C., 121, St. George's Terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne, please let me know as soon as possible. I have orders for 1½ dozen but must have three dozen before I can get them at reduced rate.

Please allow me to say, writes Mr. J. Cosgrove, hon. sec. Uddingstone and Dis. C.B.S., that the prospects of our society never were brighter, and members are looking forward to having a successful show on Nov. 22. Classification will be made up this week, and we hope to publish it shortly. Thanking you for the publicity you give our notes.

We have received from the hon. sec., Mr. J. W. Norris, the Rule Book of the British Roller Canary Club. The membership now amounts to the large number of 250, which must be about a record for a specialist society. The book contains a list of officers of the club, balance sheet for 1912, which shows a balance of cash in hand of £7 13s. 10d., a drop of £2 14s. from 1911, the rules of the society, judging standard, cup rules, and a list of members' names and addresses.

As Saturday, Sept 6, writes Mr. A. Dickson, sec. Fife and Kinross N.P.C., 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty, is our meeting to grant patronage I would like a full turnout of members, also of those who are intending to join. Now is the time to join, not after the shows have started. Annual sub. 2s. 6d., now due. Anyone desirous of joining can have information by applying to me as above. We are catering for the novice this year.

The September number of "British Birds" Messrs. Witherby and Co., High Holborn, contains some "Notes on the Breeding Habits of the Common Eider" by Misses Best and Haviland, illustrated by reproductions of beautiful photographs by Miss Haviland. Mr. Eric B. Dunlop writes a most interesting article on "Incubation," and the Rev. F. C. R. Jourdain contributes a chapter on the breeding of the Cormorant, Shag, and Gannet. The usual letters and notes complete the issue.

We have received from Mr. W. Rudd, the well-known bird specialist of Norwich, who has for many years advertised in our columns, a further letter of complaint that his name is frequently associated with a firm of a similar name. These misunderstandings cause very considerable annoyance to Mr. W. Rudd, and it is only fair for us to grant his request and to say that we know that he has no connection whatever with any other firm of the name. We shall be glad if our readers will kindly make especial note of this, to avoid a recurrence of the mistake.

Messrs. Fattorini, Ltd., the well-known Medallists, Goldsmiths, and Silversmiths, and Die-sinkers, of Bradford, write that owing to their rapidly increasing business with shippers and the wholesale trade, they have opened a London office at 18, Mansion House Chambers, Queen Victoria Street, E.C., with Mr. E. C. Barry in charge, who will be pleased to answer any enquiries addressed to him, or he will gladly wait upon London enquirers at any time. Messrs. Fattorini are actual manufacturers, and are at all times anxious and willing to submit original drawings and estimates without in the least importuning to purchase.

To Society Secretaries, and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

Cupar Show Abandoned.

We regret to hear from Mr. J. Peattie, sec. Cupar O.S., that at a meeting of the society on Aug. 26, it was decided to cancel the show which had been arranged for Oct. 4 next.

Guinea Special for Rollers at the Scottish National.

We have been presented by a lady fancier in Peebleshire with the very handsome special cash prize of £1 1s., writes Mr. J. R. Meikle, sec. Scottish National C.B.S. This prize is for competition in the Roller section, and to be won by the best singing Roller Canary exhibited at our next New Year's show. Roller exhibitors please note.

A Social Evening at Llanelly.

To open the show season, the Llanelly and Dist. C.B.S. have decided to have a social evening, at their headquarters, The Greyhound Hotel, on Saturday evening next, Sept. 6. A supper for members and friends at 6.30 p.m., and at 7.30 a washing exhibition will be given by Mr. D. Jenkins, Swansea, who is well known to the Fancy. All interested in cage birds are cordially invited to the exhibition; admission free.—D. John, sec.

A Wary Thrush.

The Thrush family as a rule are known as bold, fearless birds, but one of them, the "Hermit Thrush" is possibly the shyest bird in existence. It is a native of America, frequenting the Mississippi district, and hiding itself in the most secluded woods and cane-brakes. Even when venturing into the open country for food it keeps near the ground, flitting from bush to bush with swift, steady flight in the most lonely places. It is not a singer, like our own Thrushes; it simply utters a low plaintive cry. It builds its nest in the very thickest shelter.

A Reed Dweller.

A little-known Summer visitor is the Sedge Warbler. Upon arrival, it repairs to the low-lying spots where reeds and sedges abound. It is nervous and shy, and seldom exposes itself to view. One can see by the movement of the reeds where the bird is located, and can easily trace it working from one side to the other of a reed bed, without once catching a glimpse of the bird. It generally moves about nine inches from the top of the reeds, but by careful watching it may be detected hunting upon the edge of the bed, low down among the sedges near the water. Here insect life should be plentiful, and the bird should have little trouble in finding food.

Missel Thrushes in Autumn.

Particularly interesting just now are the Missel Thrushes. Size alone makes one a conspicuous object, but now they are in family parties of from four to six. They mostly frequent the meadow land where trees are fairly plentiful to which they retire upon the slightest disturbance. At no time of their life are they quite so suspicious and shy as in the Autumn. In the districts now frequented by the parties of half a dozen, several of them will presently disappear, and when the Spring comes round again only an isolated pair here and there will be seen, the cock bird voicing his presence in all weathers. The remaining birds of the family no doubt migrate, and, during the passage or their sojourn in another land, come to grief. Curiously there is also a considerable migration to our Eastern coast in the Autumn, and yet we can see no general increase in numbers.

THE PATRONAGE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following specialist clubs at their 1913 shows should apply as follows, stating classification given, and judges appointed: Cinn. Mkd. Y.C.C., Mr. R. Garnett, 8, Leeds Road, Windhill, Shipley; Yorks. and Lancs., Brit. B. and M.C., T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Road, Thornbury, Bradford; Mid. Counties Y.C.C., Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Road, Small Heath, Birmingham; Fife and Kinross N.P.C., A. Dickson, 37, Adams' Ter., Kelty, closing date September 6; Lancs. and Lizard F.A., Mr. A. Martin, 119, Buckstone Road, Crompton Fold, Shaw, nr. Oldham.

(Will secretaries please notify us of the latest date on which applications can be received?—Ed.)

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column, a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager. Please note that we only insert those that guarantee, so our list is a bona-fide one.

As Never Before

the Societies holding Open Shows next season have need to adopt "Cage Birds" Guarantee System of advertising.

Over one hundred have already done so, and the enormous pull which it will give them over non-guaranteeing Societies as regards entries, will be tremendously increased by "Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

JUST THINK! A simple guarantee of 25/- (which need not be paid until you commence advertising), entitles Societies to 5 inches of advertising space (a reduction of 1/- per inch); the publicity of the "Dates Fixed" column; and a Special Prize value 5/-. And that is not all. By fulfilling simple conditions, Guaranteeing Societies secure the patronage of "Cage Birds" Mammoth Championship Scheme, which will prove the greatest source of entries in the history of Cage-bird Shows.

Send along for our Special Guarantee Form at once. Don't delay; never was time more valuable.

The Cultivation of Wild Plants for Cage Birds

By R. MORSE (Hitchin).

SECTION 2: PERENNIAL PLANTS.

THE COMMON DANDELION (Taraxacum officinale) throws up its flower heads to a height of about 8 ins., though on lawns and gravel paths it not infrequently becomes stunted, and under such circumstances the stalks may be only an inch or so in length. Dandelion seeds may be sown at any time during spring or summer, the former being preferable. The drills wherein the seed is to be sown should be about half an inch deep, and the young plants thinned out as soon as they can be handled, for if they are allowed to become at all overcrowded, the seedlings will invariably be weak, and the "seed-harvest" a disappointing one.

Some growers prefer to allow Dandelions to fruit in the same spot as sown, whilst others consider it better to transplant the seedlings as soon as they are large enough to handle. In either case, the plants should finally stand six inches or more apart, according to the space at disposal; a few plants could easily be removed later on if they appeared to be suffering from overcrowding.

Dandelions are Sun Lovers.

When dandelions are grown especially for seed, a sunny spot is much to be preferred to a shaded, or even partially shaded, one, for in common with numerous other species already mentioned in earlier parts of these notes, the dandelion is inclined to become too leafy when grown in shady gardens, and under those circumstances few seeds are produced.

Those who have not the convenience for growing dandelions from seed, may have a fine bed of plants next year if they will search in meadows and waste places during September, and remove a number of the plants to an odd sunny corner of the garden. It is somewhat difficult at first to secure the long, stout, black roots intact, but one soon becomes accustomed to the operation. If the weather is dry when they are transplanted, a liberal watering should be given on the completion of the work, after which no further attention will be necessary.

It should perhaps be mentioned here that there are several other wild plants, which are frequently mistaken for dandelions, and as some of those species are not of perennial duration, and therefore flower but once, those who transplant them will be disappointed to find that the roots die completely away on the approach of winter, and that all trouble taken has been in vain.

How to Grow Watercress.

COMMON WATERCRESS (Nasturtium officinale) can be grown in almost any garden if the plants are kept continually wet, but since this necessitates practically constant attention, only those who have ample leisure time, and convenient water supply, can be recommended to attempt its cultivation. If its supply of water is curtailed, the whole crop may be lost; moreover, watercress grown with insufficient moisture becomes unpleasantly hot and biting to the taste.

Those who have the necessary convenience may remove the roots during the autumn from streams and rivulets, in which situations this plant is abundant throughout the land. They should then be planted in a spot as nearly similar as possible to that in which they grew. Watercress may also be grown from seed (which any nurseryman will supply) by sowing the latter, preferably in a sandy or gravelly soil, beside a stream or river at any time from April to August. It must be sown very thinly, and only very lightly covered. If the situation chosen be a suitable one, no further attention will be required. The flowers usually appear in May, and the plants continue flowering right on to October.

Separate Quarters for Nettles.

THE GREAT NETTLE (Urtica dioica) grows to a height of about three feet, and when grown in the garden always gives most satisfaction if a plot of ground is devoted exclusively to its cultivation. It is indeed of little use to grow nettles unless they can be thus accommodated, for if any plants of a more delicate nature be near at hand, they will almost certainly be choked by the rank growth of the nettles, the creeping roots of the latter spreading rapidly in all directions.

Nettle seed may be sown at any time during spring or summer, and the plants should finally stand about six inches apart, though it may be necessary to thin out a few specimens each year, as the plants increase rapidly. The drills should be about half an inch deep, and the seed lightly covered with fine soil.

Nettles may also be cultivated by removing the roots in autumn from their natural habitats (hedgebanks, waste places, etc.) to the garden. It would be wise to wear thick gloves for this operation, as all the species of British nettles possess stinging hairs in immense quantities, which are capable of causing fairly severe pain (lasting in some cases for many hours) when brought into contact with the bare skin.

Their Sexual Distinctions.

There is a peculiarity in connection with the growing of nettles for seed of which intending cultivators should take note. The Great Nettle produces flowers of two kinds, known respectively as male and female, and these almost invariably occur on different plants. If, therefore, only male, or only female plants are removed to the wild garden, no seeds will be produced, even though the crop be cultivated in the most careful manner. When performing this operation, then, care should be taken to secure plants of each sex, and to arrange them side by side in the plot devoted to their cultivation.

The sexes may be distinguished in the autumn by the fact that the female plants bear clusters of seeds, whilst the males bear simply the withered remains of the flowers. When grown from seed a proper proportion of the two kinds of plants is always produced.

More than One Kind of Nettle.

It should perhaps be mentioned that another species of nettle known as the Small Nettle (Urtica urens) is very common in some districts, but is an annual plant, and those who wish to cultivate it will therefore have to sow the seed each year about March or April. In the case of the Small Nettle every plant produces seed.

The plants known as Dead Nettles may be distinguished from the true nettles by the fact that the flowers of the latter are small and green, whilst those of the former are comparatively large and brightly coloured. The true nettles flower from June to September.

RYE GRASS (Lolium perenne) commonly reaches a height of about eighteen inches, and flowers in May and June. It is only necessary to sow the seed fairly thinly in shallow drills a few inches apart at any time during the spring or summer. It will be some time before the plants produce much seed, but those who desire a more expeditious method should remove the plants from waysides and waste places during late summer, and set them in the wild-garden, where they will flower freely the following spring. An open, sunny situation is best.

NOTE.—For full description of the plants dealt with in these articles, reference should be made to "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants for Cage Birds" (1s. 2d., post free, from our office), which contains in addition, much useful information regarding the medicinal and other properties of the various plants and seeds commonly used in the bird-room and aviary.

"DR. WISE OF MONTREUX."

AN OLD, OLD STORY.

Notes by the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

In our correspondence columns this week will be found a letter from a reader, and an extract from a daily paper which was enclosed with the letter, referring to the allegation that tuberculosis may be conveyed to human being by Canaries.

A Silly Season Fill-up.

This scare is an old one which crops up at times when certain papers require matter to fill their columns. The last we heard of it was in Jan., 1912, when "The Animal World," the organ of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, had an article headed "Cage Birds and Disease." At that time I disposed of the subject in the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE column (see issue of Jan. 6, 1912), finishing by saying, "I shall be glad at any time to pursue the matter further in the unlikely event of the Editor of "The Animal World" desiring evidence that tuberculosis in birds is not only a very rare disease, but is not, even when it does occur, communicable to human beings." The Editor of "The Animal World" evidently did not desire such evidence, and I never expected that he would.

The "authority" given for the re-hash by "The Animal World" was a "Dr. Wise, of Montreux," while the latest resurrection of the story quotes a Dr. Tucker Wise, a Devonshire medical man practising in Switzerland. "The Animal World" then said it was "some years ago" since the French doctor had made the statement, and now, some years later, we have a "Dr. Tucker Wise, of Devonshire, practising in Switzerland," quoted as setting up the same old turnip to frighten those who do not know it is just a "bogey."

In my remarks I quoted the pronouncement of Dr. R. H. Clarke, M.R.C.S., who said in his famous lecture on Septic Fever in Cage Birds, "I have examined microscopically hundreds of dead cage birds, and have never yet met with a case of tuberculosis, nor known of one demonstrated by any competent observer."

A little later, Mar. 16, 1912, Mr. Hy. Gray, M.R.C.V.S., in a refutation contributed to our columns, said, among other things, "I have yet to see my first case of tuberculosis in the smaller cage birds."

The opinions of Mr. Gray and of Dr. Clarke are worth those of a generation of Doctors Wise, and I hope that Mr. A. Roach, the writer of the letter which has called forth this reference to the matter, as well as any other reader who may come across the same old scare, will be satisfied that there is absolutely no possibility of Canaries communicating tuberculosis to their owners.

To Interest the Children.

In connection with the decorated cage competition at Dartford which is being organised by our fellow-member, Mr. Peck, I have received the following letters:—

"I have just received from Mr. Peck a fine young Goldfinch in return for the Redpolls I sent him for his children's competition. I hope he will receive all the Redpolls he wants for his purpose. It will encourage the children to look after their pets.—G. Haslett, North Finchley."

"Kindly allow me to thank Mr. H. Hill, of Glasgow, for the six Redpolls he ordered to be sent me through Mr. Sandiford, London. They arrived quite safely, and are 'toppers.' Also Mr. F. Bailey, of Stoke-on-Trent, for his kind offer of some Redpolls for the children's competition. Also the committee of the Dartford Working Men's Club, who kindly contributed £1 towards the prize fund at a meeting held Saturday last. I myself (Mr. Peck) am giving a Canary and cage for the best lady's hat made by the mothers of the children out out of paper. The competition is fixed for Oct. 8.

THE PLUMAGE BILL.

Societies Waking Up.

As will be seen from the report of the meeting of the Sunderland C.B.A., appearing in our Club Reports column this week, the committee of the society resolved at the last meeting to draw up a letter to the local members of Parliament calling their attention to the clauses in that Bill to which we as bird-keepers are objecting. I trust that this good example will be followed by every society throughout the country. Let members of Parliament know that cage bird keepers are numbered in their hundreds of thousands, and some consideration will be given to their opinions. If we remain silent this Bill will be passed over our heads, and it will be too late afterwards to alter it.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

TERMS OF MEMBERSHIP.

ORDINARY MEMBERS shall pay an annual subscription of Two Shillings and Sixpence.

JUNIOR MEMBERS.—Members under the age of fourteen years at the date of joining shall pay an annual subscription of One Shilling.

VICE PRESIDENTS.—An annual subscription of not less than Half-a-Guinea shall constitute the subscriber a Vice President.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than Five Guineas in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The payment to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE of a legacy of £20 and upwards shall constitute the administrator or executor making the payment an Honorary Life Member. A form of bequest will be sent, post free, on application.

PATRONS.—A donation of not less than Ten Guineas in one amount, or an annual subscription of not less than Two Guineas, shall constitute the donor or subscriber a Patron.

CERTIFICATES OF MEMBERSHIP, ETC.

THE LEAGUE BADGES.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, without any charge beyond their subscriptions as above. The badges may be had either in button form, or mounted in rolled gold in two forms, one as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps or coat lapel, and the other as a pendant for bracelet or watch-chain. The kind required should be specified clearly.

SEALS AND HEADED NOTEPAPER.

GUMMED SEALS printed in gold and colours in facsimile of the LEAGUE BADGE are supplied for affixing to note paper, postcards, or envelopes. Price eightpence per hundred, fivepence for fifty, post free.

100 Sheets, Two Shillings and sixpence.
250 Sheets, Four Shillings.
500 Sheets, Five Shillings and sixpence.
1,000 sheets, Eight Shillings and sixpence.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be pasted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

The following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

NORWICH CONE BLIND (G. E. W.).—If the film you say is growing over the eyes takes the form of milky-white spots in the centre of eyes the trouble is cataract, and no treatment whatever will be of any avail. But if it appears to be an external film spreading over eye-ball generally you might do something for it. Get a chemist to mix you two grains of red oxide of mercury in a quarter ounce of spermaceti. Then dissolve ten grains of sulphate of zinc and 30 grains of boric acid in an ounce of rose water, and add three ounces of distilled water, or water that has been well boiled and become cold again. Take a drop of this lotion separately and a small pladget of clean cotton wool and bathe eyes gently for a few minutes each morning. Absorb the surplus moisture, and put in each eye a tiny scrap of the mercurial ointment made as above. Repeat the ointment at night, but not the bathing. Do not use any lotion a second time. Continue treatment daily for a fortnight, and if there is no improvement in that time you may give it up as beyond help. The bird will thrive contentedly enough in spite of this affliction.

EXCESSIVE LOOSENESS (W.T.W.).—Keep cage and perches as clean as possible. Whilst looseness lasts it would be well to cover cage floor with a good layer of clean pine sawdust, and renew it daily. Also keep all food and water vessels scrupulously clean. Every day for a week give a morsel of stale bread the size of a large hazel nut soaked in scalded milk, drained, and well dusted with carbonato of bismuth. If bird does not seem to eat it freely, sprinkle it finally with maw as an extra inducement. In addition to the staple diet of canary seed give a small teaspoonful of boiled summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days a pinch of maw and a few grains of good sound hemp. Withhold all green food for the present. Boil drinking water before use, and add to it six drops of dilute sulphuric acid, and five of tincture of opium daily until droppings resume the normal condition.

RELIEF ONLY TEMPORARY (Canadian Reader).—The bird being only temporarily relieved by the treatment you have tried probably points to one of two things: Either the bird has already passed into a chronic stage when treatment can only be palliative and does not cure in the ordinary sense of the term, or you omit to remove the exciting causes of the trouble. See reply to "A. Norton" in this issue, and act on the same suggestions as to eliminating all unwholesome influences, and exciting causes of bronchial trouble. Keep the bird in an equable and comfortably warm place, though you need not overheat it. Add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to its water every second day for a week, and after this treat as advised to "A. Norton" for a fortnight. If bird is not better by that time, please write again, referring to this reply.

ALL GONE WHEEZY (A. Horton).—The fact of all your adult birds going wheezy points strongly to them being kept under unfavourable conditions, and if these conditions are not altered it is only a matter of time, and perhaps but a short time, before the young stock become similarly affected. There is no danger of infection or contagion, but exposure to the same adverse influences must sooner or later affect all the birds. See that they are kept free from direct cold draughts, damp, sudden extremes of temperature, fumes from burning lights, or a dusty atmosphere. This alone will give the birds a chance to throw off the trouble. Those that are badly affected should be moved to a comfortably warm, but not overheated, place until the moult is over. Give a small teaspoonful per bird of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together. If birds are not better in that time, write again, and repeat particulars.

RECURRING MOULT (L. U. E.).—The bird's age is somewhat against him. See that it is kept in a bright and cosy, though not necessarily very warm place, well aired, but free from cold draughts or fumes from burning lights in the evenings, and as equable as possible. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days give a half ripe plantain stalk, few sprays of shepherd's-purse seeds, or a morsel of banana, and also twice each week a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, millet and linseed. Allow bird to bathe freely if it desires, and twice a week for a month add 20 to 30 drops of sulphuretted potash to the bath. In the drinking water give five drops of syrup of saffron and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a fortnight. For the next fortnight after this substitute half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of cherry and two of cod liver oil mixed in it for the bread and milk, and give 20 drops of chemical food in the water instead of the saffron and potash. (2) Bathe feet and legs well in a warm solution of boracic acid, dry gently, and anoint with Lanocyllin to remove soreness. If claws are overgrown, trim them back to the proper length.

YOUNG BIRDS DYING (J. E. S.).—The cause of the disease from which your young birds appear to have died is a microscopic bacillus, probably taken into the system in the beginning with some portion of the food or water, though it is quite possible that subsequently the cage or cages became infected sufficiently to communicate the disease to any future occupants. The fact that only young birds have died so far may possibly mean that you have had the young stock caged together in one or two flights, in which the contagion has become located. If there is any doubt whatever about the purity of your water supply, boil it before use. See that the eggs from which your egg-food is prepared are fresh, and from a healthy stock of fowls. Also crush a little of your hemp and see if the kernel is sound and sweet; if not, discard it for a sample that is above suspicion. Beyond this you can do very little, and that little lies in observing strict hygienic principles, isolation of any bird showing symptoms of ill-health, and thorough disinfection of all cages in which birds have died, or may yet die. To tone up the birds and give them the best chance to win through, give in addition to the usual seed diet a little bread and milk, with two drops per bird of cod liver oil emulsion on it two or three times a week, and in the water give 20 drops of a tonic composed of half-a-drachm of citrate of iron and quinine dissolved in one fluid ounce of sherry, to which add a teaspoonful of glycerine. For information on disinfecting cages, etc., see the Nutshell Booklet No. 9, 2½d., post free.

TO BREED GOOD CRESTS (L. Cape).—You are not likely to gratify your desire to breed good Crests fit for exhibition very easily or quickly by mating a good Crested hen with a Norwich Plainhead. Nowadays, the progeny from such a mating could only be termed crossbreds, and only of use for breeding in very exceptional circumstances, or as an experiment pure and simple. To produce exhibition Crests from them would cost you a few year's careful breeding to again breed out the Plainhead cross. What you want to begin with is a pair of pure-bred birds matched for Crest-breeding. One of these will be Crested—it does not matter much which sex—and the other will be a Crestbred—that is, it will not have a proper crest, but will have been bred intimately with Crested birds, and will possess the same profusion and length of feather generally, and the same massive frame, size, and type, as the Crested birds, besides which the head should carry as dense a covering of long broad feather as possible. Altogether, you cannot do better than get a known reliable breeder to select a properly matched pair of birds for you. Do not expect a really good pair of stock birds that will breed you birds fit for exhibition for a few shillings. They will cost you anything from £5 upwards. Perhaps, after all, you had better breed with Plainheads, which are cheaper, for a year or two to gain some experience. For full detailed information on all points concerning Crest-breeding, get Parts XII. and XIII. of "Our Canaries."

CAUSE OF ENTERITIS (G.B.H.).—The causes of the disease in birds known by this term are not one but many. It may arise indirectly through bacillary infection, or it may be due to poisons taken into the system with unwholesome food or impure water. In the great majority of cases it is probably due to neglect of the principles of hygiene, either in the cages or the food. In your case I should suspect the quality of the hemp in the first place. Crush a little, and if the kernel is of a brownish colour, there you doubtless have the key to your mystery. If this is all right, then I should imagine you allow your egg-food to remain in cage until it has become stale. Here, again, preventive measures are obvious. There are many other causes which space will not permit me to go into here. In a general way, overhaul and thoroughly disinfect all cages in which cases have occurred; pay the strictest attention to cleanliness in cages, perches, and all food and water vessels, and, of course, see that all foods and water are above suspicion in purity and freshness. If any more cases occur at once isolate the patient; keep in a cosy, but not too warm, temperature, free from draughts; and put on a staple diet of bread scalded with milk and dusted with carbonate of bismuth, and half a teaspoonful of maw daily until symptoms abate. Add one drop of Tysol to each large teaspoonful of the drinking water, and if diarrhœa is excessive add also six drops of tincture of opium to the drinking water daily for the time being. When symptoms abate, bring bird back on to ordinary diet by easy stages.

YOUNG CRESTBRED (G. Goodbody).—I suspect the bird is not yet capable of fully supplying its wants on seed, and your supply of soft food is therefore insufficient. Keep an unlimited supply of good sound canary in the hopper, and place half a teaspoonful of dry summer rape on top of it each morning. In addition to this, give each morning a teaspoonful of egg-food, which may be varied with a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake, plain biscuit, or bread and milk. At mid-day give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and towards evening throw out all remains of soft food and scalded rape and give a small teaspoonful of equal parts broken groats and freshly cracked hemp. See that the hemp is sound and good. Give a half-ripe plantain stalk, seed heads of shepherd's purse, or grass, two or three times a week for it to peck over. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand, and supply pure fresh water daily. You may add 15 drops of Chemical Food to the water for a day or two, though the above method of feeding will probably soon set matters right.

A LONG MOULT (Jack, C.B.).—I suppose you have removed the bird from the window as previously advised? If not, you must do so, as it is useless expecting any treatment to be successful until the cause of the trouble is removed. Place the bird in a moderate-sized box cage and keep it in a fairly warm and equable place, though you need not overdo the heating, until the moult has quite ceased and the bird begins to resume its song. You cannot expect it to sing whilst moulting. Give a staple diet of two parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this, give every second day for a month, if necessary, half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw. On the alternating days give twice a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle. Give a spray of green food three or four times a week, and allow bird to bathe as often as it desires to do so. Dissolve a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a hemp seed in its water every third day. Should the latter give rise to undue constipation, increase the supply of green food, or add six drops of syrup of buckthorn to the water with the iron each time.

NEVER SANG (Cassidy).—Are you quite sure of the sex of the bird? I should feel inclined to doubt it being a cock myself. In any case, it is not at all likely to sing now until it has finished moulting, but, if it is really a cock, it should be quite possible to bring it in song soon afterwards. Your suggestion about keeping it where it will hear other cocks singing is a good one. If you do this right through the moult the bird may not, and should not if a cock and in good health, need any further inducement to commence singing itself. Whilst moulting, in addition to its staple seed diet, give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar every third day, and on the intervening days give first a pinch of the seed mixture advised to "Jack C. B.," in this issue, and next a spray of green food. Towards the end of moult, add 20 drops of Chemical Food to the water three times a week. If it does not commence singing in, say, a month after the moult ceases, write again, referring to this reply, and I will advise you further.

ABOUT YELLOWHAMMERS (X Rays).—(1) Perhaps the head markings are the most important point in an exhibition Yellow Bunting, for if the bird is not good in these it is at once handicapped in the view of most judges. The less of the black markings there are the better, but during the show season it is, of course, natural for the markings to be present in a more or less degree. They should be clear cut, as to definition, and from the forehead to the back of the head should extend in the form of the letter V. The cheeks also have each an oval shaped black marking, and there are generally a few black feathers on the forehead and crown. Richness of brown in the back colour is a desideratum and the darker markings should be clear and well defined. Size and condition, richness of the yellows, and steadiness are also important points. (2) Price depends upon quality, anything from five shillings to as many pounds. (3) Your feeding seems to be correct; many Yellowhammers eat little except canary seed, with a few mealworms, or other grubs or insects. A little soft food is very useful if the bird will eat it; any good insectile mixture will answer the purpose, and during the moult a dash of sweet pepper (not too much) will enhance the richness of the yellow. (4) They should be shown in cages of the box pattern well finished inside with enamel. The colour of this is a matter of taste; a nice deep green is perhaps as good as any.

BIRDS IN AN OUTDOOR AVIARY (Bullfinch).—Personally, I do not like keeping Budgerigars with Finches. They may conduct themselves without reproach for some time, but they have an insidious habit of sidling up to a bird on a perch as though they were thinking of nothing in particular, and suddenly gripping a toe of the Finch in their beak, with the result that the latter loses a claw if nothing more. You could keep a pair of Bullfinches with every prospect of breeding (next year, of course) in the aviary you mention, especially if you could rig up something to simulate a small bush or hedge, so that the hen could have some degree of privacy for nesting. Linnets and Goldfinches would also probably breed in the same aviary, but you must be careful not to crowd them. A pair of each would be all you could keep with any chance of success.

SEED SAMPLE (H. F. C.).—The seed you send is a mixture of various wild seeds, mainly persicaria and dock, with a little grass seed, and would be useful for Linnets, Goldfinches, and Bullfinches, but not as a staple food. You would require also canary, rape, teazel, and linseed as the mainstay. Give the mixture of which you send a sample in a separate seed hopper, and there is little or nothing in it that they will not eat with enjoyment.

HEADS BALD (A. K.).—As the trouble seems to be persistent with your birds it is possible that it may be due to grey lice. Whether this be so you may easily discover by taking one of the birds in your hand, when, if grey lice are present, you will soon see them crawling about your hand. If you find this to be the case please write at once, or refer to the answer to "G.L." in this issue. If not, try a little sulphur ointment gently rubbed into the bare skin, but not enough to smear the adjacent feathers, and if your birds will take a little egg food or bread, which has been scalded with milk, dust a little of either with flowers of sulphur every other day for a month. Examine more closely for red-mite. You say there are "practically none." If this means that you can see just a few, the probability is that there are a great many instead of practically none, and the red mite may be the cause. In that case the remedy is obvious; make sure that there are no red mite, and the means of ensuring this have been many times described, and the trouble will cease if it has hitherto been caused by these insects.

SNOW BUNTING AND A LUMP (J. Mc. C.).—Snow Buntings, like others of the Buntings, eat little but canary seed as a staple food, but they should have a separate supply of hemp, rape seed, cracked sunflower, and crushed oats, so that they may help themselves if they so desire. A little of a good insectile food may be also offered, and if they will eat this so much the better. They will also require a few mealworms or other grubs or insects daily. Persevere with the treatment you have already found effective for the lump on what you term the "knee." (Is this really the knee, i.e., the joint formed by the large bone of the leg, the thigh bone, and that part of the leg which contains two bones, the fibula and tibia?) Anyway, the lump was disappearing under your treatment, and should vanish altogether if you keep on with it.

A BUDGET OF QUESTIONS (Regular Reader) (1) A stock cage for a Wagtail should be about 20in. long (more if convenient), 10in. high and 10 deep. It should be furnished with four or five perches sufficiently close together to allow the bird to walk from one to the other (Wagtails like to walk from perch to perch rather than to hop from one to the other). The perches should be just so high as to permit of the bird walking under them with ease, and a large shallow dish of water should be placed in the cage bottom. It is better if this can be always left in the cage, for Wagtails like to paddle in water. In such case a piece of turf could be placed between the water and the sanded portion of the cage bottom. Wagtails do not eat "seeds" (1) They require a very good insectile food, such as advertised in our columns, this to be supplemented

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BOWEL TROUBLE (Dark Goldie Mule).—The looseness of bowels in your bird has been going on far too long. You should have written for advice earlier, so as to stop it before the moult. If the bird is otherwise in good health give him a dose of glauber salts; as much as will cover a sixpence in his drinking water, just for one day. Afterwards, boil all his drinking water, and give him in it half a teaspoonful of chemical food three times a week. I would advise you to discontinue his colour food for, say, a week, as this in itself is rather relaxing and possibly increases the trouble. If he is an exhibition specimen, and you are disinclined to knock off his colour food, mix it with a teaspoonful of powdered arrowroot biscuit, and give it as dry as possible. If he has this twice a week he will lose little or nothing in the way of colour, until you feel it is safe to give it to him again regularly. Another dose of the salts in a week's time may be required if the motions are still offensive.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

NAME OF BIRD (Mrs. Weeks).—The bird is a Green Singing Finch. I have forwarded your query as to the hybrids reared to our Mr. Page, who will answer you in the Foreign bird columns of these replies.

JACKDAW WITH FEATHER TROUBLE (R. G.).—Examine the bird for grey lice (see answer to A. K.). If these are present put in the bird's bath 40 drops of extract of quassia to each half-pint of water, or boil some quassia chips in water, one pint of water to each spoonful of the chips, and use the solution as a bath when cooled. Wash the cage thoroughly with carbolic acid solution. Continue the medicated bath for at least a fortnight, and wash the cage out every second or third day during that time. For the bare places, use a little sulphur ointment, not enough to make the surrounding plumage messy, but before using the ointment gently bathe the eyelids with comfortably warm water in which a little borax has been dissolved.

GOLDFINCH QUERIES (C. Williams).—(1) Goldfinches or Goldfinch Hybrids would scarcely be in song just yet; they are not through their moult, and you must not expect them to sing until this is quite completed. (2) The use of limed twigs for catching Goldfinches is fully explained in Nutshell No. 1, The Goldfinch (2½d. post free from our publisher), and much valuable information as to the proper treatment of freshly-caught Goldfinches is also contained therein.

by some additional nuts' cocoons and yolk of egg (or see Nutshell No. 9), post free 2½d., for full particulars of the proper food for these and other small insectivorous birds). (2) If you are only fitting a number of Nutshells, the postage to be included would be, say, threepence for each dozen in addition to the published price of twopence each. You could get these at twopence each from your local dealer or newsagent, and save the postage. (3) A collection of mixed Finches in an aviary would need every kind of seed you could supply—Canary, rape, hemp, wild seed, etc., etc., but you would need be careful with certain seeds. For instance, Bullfinches and Siskins would eat together too much hemp to be good for them if they had an unlimited supply, while Goldfinches could scarcely have too much of this. (4) Here you beat me. I have never kept a Plover in captivity. If I were to do so I should feed in something of the way recommended in these columns last week for a Missel Thrush.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

GREY PARROT LAYING EGGS (G. S. Kerr). No, it is not uncommon for a Grey Parrot to lay eggs in captivity; some hens do not commence to do so till after very many years of captivity, but there are a fair number of cases recorded annually of their doing so. These so-called King Greys are merely a colour variety of the ordinary Grey. It would be wise to keep cuttlebone continually in your cage, also a lump of old mortar for it to nibble at.

DOUBLE-FRONTED AMAZON (T. H.).—Continue to give the Dinneford's Magnesia, as already advised, and also several times per week put half a teaspoonful of hyno-phosphates in the daily supply of drinking water. You must only use a glass or china drinker when giving drugs. Whenever there is any running at the nostrils, spray and cleanse them with dilute glyco-thymoline. Give a little soaked corn daily, and well dust it with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird. Give it two or three drops of cod liver oil daily, direct to the beak, for some little time. I should continue to foment the legs, and after dabbing dry with a soft cloth paint them with whisky. As the bird is out of its cage a great deal, fix a small barrel on the top of its cage, or some other suitable position; the bird will rest in it and occupy itself generally in and about it for hours at a stretch. Persevere with the treatment and keep the bird out of reach of draughts, yet not in a stuffy or vitiated atmosphere. Report progress in about a month.

WILL IT DO FOR BUDGERIGARS? (F. H. K.).—Yes, the aviary should answer well; the glass in the front must be covered with wire-netting on the inside, and fasten round the back and ends (not in close proximity to door) twiggy branches (pea sticks) to perching accommodation; also hang up four to six cocoanut husks, each as far apart from the other as you can arrange them. I should only should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Goldfinches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

put in two pairs, as you will require accommodation for the rearing of the young; or you can put in three pairs, and then later on get rid of the least prolific of them. Procure from some reliable source, and purchase unrelated pairs only. See that they are large birds, well feathered, and with rich coloured, glossy plumage. Do not accept ill-conditioned or ill-feathered birds, however cheaply they may be offered you.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON (W. H.).—Give this bird an occasional spraying with a tepid quassia solution, but take care it does not get a chill while drying. Put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day so long as the voidings are not watery-loose; on other days just colour the drinking water with the chemical food (use only a crock or glass drinker while giving the above). In addition to the seed mixture give a little boiled maize daily, or every other day, and dust it with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird—boil till soft and then drain all water—this only keeps fresh one day. Also supply ripe fruit (most Amazons are fond of sweet apple), nuts, such as shelled walnuts, or shelled Barcelona nuts, and pieces of dry plain biscuit. Keep a piece of cuttlebone hanging in the cage. If yours is a young and newly-imported bird, only supply grit in very small quantities for a time.

AVIARY CAGE (H. Atkinson).—If you add a shelter having a floor area of not less than 3ft. square at base, and of the same height as your cage, you can then keep the birds out of doors during the winter, but the shed must have a window (glass must be covered with wire netting on the inside) of some kind fitted, as the birds will not use a dark place. Your aviary will not be large even then, and during the colder months it would be well to drop a curtain over the wire netting front and ends at night time. You must not put fresh birds in at this time of year as the cold will be here before they could become acclimatised. Pairs of Zebra Finches, Gold-breasted Waxbills, Silverbills, and Bengalese could be added to the birds you already possess, but when you can get birds which have been out of doors for three months at least, you must wait till next spring before increasing your stock.

AVIARY QUERY (Hove).—(1) I take it from your query that you are acquainted with me, but you send no name, neither can I from memory connect your present with a previous query. It is not easy to give general directions without a small diagram, but I may at once say that I prefer the attendance door to be quite independent of the birds' way of ingress and egress, and I should make a glass window for this purpose on one side of the door, or in the west end of the shed, and this could be opened and closed at will quite independent of the door. If there was a space one inch deep left at bottom of door, and a few round holes bored, some just under the roof, if these outlet holes were towards the covered flight there would then be little danger of draught. If I have not made myself quite clear on the point, query me again. Unless the weather is very severe it should not be necessary to confine the birds during the daytime. (2) If by Indigo Blue you mean the Indigo Bunting, it is not often a quarrelsome individual turns up—I have possessed numbers and kept them in an overcrowded aviary, too, without any mishaps. If your bird is the Blue Grosbeak, then some of these are troublesome; but even then, by arranging a little dense cover, tragedies are usually avoided.

GREEN PARROT (A. Watson).—I should keep this bird isolated from the Grey Parrot till it is quite fit. Give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day for a fortnight, and then only once a week till it is quite fit again. Get from your chemist a box of honey and borax, and put a little in its mouth daily; this is usually easily accomplished from the end of a stick, but you must cleanse the stick (a butcher's wooden skewer answers well) each time before putting it in the mixture. In addition to seed it should have ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts and green food; grit and cuttlebone should be continuously in the cage. Get a bottle of hyno-phosphates and put half a teaspoonful in the drinking water three times per week, but not on same days as the magnesia. No, it is not unusual for a Grey Parrot to lay eggs in captivity.

IS IT AN UNCOMMON CROSS? (E. Weeks).—Yes, as the Green Singing Finch is not a free breeder in captivity even as a species, Hybrids are fairly often reared between the Grey and Green Singing Finches, however, and there ought to be no difficulty in inducing it to cross with the Canary, for both are Serins; once the attempt was regularly made to cross them with the Canary they would soon become less common. The St. Helena Seedeater (another Serin) has been crossed with the Canary several times, so also has the Grey Singing Finches and the Alario Finch. There is nothing very striking or out of the way in the appearance of these birds, and, save as singing pets, they have no special value, unless classes are provided for them at shows. Almost any of the Serins (they are quite numerous) would mate with the Canary; of course, a small variety should be chosen for the smaller species.

PROBLEM FOR CANARIES.

Dearer Food Trouble in the Cage.

There is a bad time coming for Canaries. It is almost inevitable that very soon every cage in the land will be faced with the problem of the dearer cost of living.

The Balkan war is the cause of the coming trouble. Canary seed comes chiefly from Turkey, Morocco, and Argentina, and the peasants in the producing section of Turkey having emigrated almost to a man, this year's crop is estimated at barely 30 per cent. of the usual production.

This is enough to make any Canary feel that it wants to go in the garden and eat worms. Five years ago an economical Canary was able to bring up a wife and family on about threehalfpence per week, which included a little chickweed on Sundays. To-day even a young bachelor Canary cannot make both ends meet on less than twopence per week.

The black outlook was explained to an "Express" representative yesterday by a Norwich Canary of large experience.

"It almost makes me wish," he said, "that I had stayed in the Sparrow business, and never got dyed at all."

"Daily Express," London.

THE CAT AS A LIVING SCARE-CROW.

Pussy's Latest Occupation in the Garden.

All through the spring and summer, when the birds root up our seeds, nip off our tender seedlings, and devour our cherished fruit, we are at our wits' ends to devise some means to combat the pest. In a vain attempt to keep in check our feathered foes, writes a correspondent of the "Standard," we, or our gardeners, spend much precious time in erecting scarecrows of many kinds, or in laboriously weaving networks of black cotton here, there, and everywhere. Most of us stop short, of course, at destroying the birds in our gardens—with the single exception, perhaps, of the villainous Sparrow—for we like to see them about the place, and we are not unmindful of the good they do.

A miniature wind-wheel, a bunch of fluttering rags, or even a piece or two of yesterday's daily paper will keep the birds away from our cherished possessions for a time, but there is no contrivance the novelty of which as an agent of affrightment does not wear off in the course of a short time. One of the most effective birdscares, of course, is a piece of plate or looking-glass suspended by a string so that it moves and flashes in the sunlight at every breath of wind. The flash in the air and the reflection upon the ground are alike disconcerting to most birds. But even this is of no use on a dull day.

There is, however, one expedient which is lasting in its effect. The birds' arch-enemy is the cat, and it is to her that we may turn in our distress. But puss is not to be simply turned into the garden that she may catch birds—for, when allowed to follow her own inclinations, she will waste her time in destroying such inoffensive creatures as Robins and Hedge-Sparrows, which of all birds fall the most easily into her clutches. No; Grimalkin is to be tied up like a dog, with collar and chain, the latter attached to a running wire, so that she may trot backwards and forwards along its length. The wire is stretched along the length of the bed, and at one end of it is placed a comfortable shelter, while at the other, to prevent puss from becoming lazy, a saucer of bread and milk is occasionally deposited.

A cat who knows her business will, however, spend a good deal of her time in running backwards and forwards, and the rattle she makes in doing so, will scare the birds as much as her actual presence or her attempts to capture them when they come anywhere near. There is no cruelty involved in this practice, which has been tried with great success by those who have heard of it, for any cat can be trained to collar and chain, just as easily as a dog, provided one breaks her to it when she is in kitten stage.

Have Canaries a Sense of Smell?

Sir,—In CAGE BIRDS of Aug. 16, page 94, I notice that Mr. Bagshaw, in his article on the Norwich Plainhead, says: "The greatest objection (to colour food) I think is the smell." The Preservation of Wasp Grubs.

Sir,—Could any of your readers kindly tell me how I can preserve wasp grubs? I live in a district where I can get heaps. I find they are excellent food for softbills such as Thrushes, Blackbirds, Jays, and Jackdaws. This food helps them through the moult.

Good Start for Newtongrange.

Sir,—The committee of Newtongrange Cage Bird Society have decided to hold their first annual show on Dec. 20. Mr. A. M. Gardiner has been appointed president. We shall have ten classes for Norwich Plainheads, ten Border Fancy, two Scotch Fancy, two Yorkshire, one A.O.V., 20 British and Foreign. Judges have not been fixed yet, but they will be appointed at next meeting which will be held in Dean Tavern on Sept. 8, and I will give their names as soon as they are fixed. Our appeal for funds is meeting with a generous response so far.

A Visit to a Rugby Fancier.

Sir,—I have been visiting Rugby and paid a visit to the secretary of the local cage bird society, Mr. J. W. Veasey. I found him busy in his large bird-room situated at the bottom of a nicely arranged garden. The room contains some 150 birds (all Norwich) and I was greatly struck with the fine cages this fancier possessed, especially the large flight cages; they are mostly made of good figured oak, and kept spotlessly clean. As Mr. Veasey is a carpenter by trade one can realise the good workmanship put into these cages, and they must have occupied a great deal of this bird lover's spare time. He had something like 82 youngsters, all strong and healthy, and more than one or two will make a name for themselves. During a pleasant hour's conversation I realised that the bird Fancy in Rugby is in a very progressive stage.

Mr. J. Young, Rutherglen, Returns Thanks.

Sir,—Allow me, through the valuable medium of CAGE BIRDS, to thank sincerely the members and friends of The Scottish Crested Canary Club, who so very kindly and generously subscribed to my testimonial. I can assure the subscribers and promotors, that it was a very pleasant surprise to be waited on by Councillor Lambie, of Whitburn, and presented by him in the name of the club with such valuable and useful articles, which will ever stand as a token of the kindly feelings and good fellowship which prompted the act. I should also like to express my gratitude to Councillor Lambie (who took charge of the fund on behalf of the subscribers) giving his services willingly and ungrudgingly, and carrying out every detail in his own masterly fashion. In conclusion, I am indebted to you for your kind indulgence in this matter. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

JOHN YOUNG.

The Noted Cornish Chough "Jock."

Sir, — On opening my weekly number of CAGE BIRDS last week, (issue dated Aug. 16) my eyes naturally first fell on the front page plate. On casually looking at the Chough depicted thereon, I instinctively said to myself, "My word! here's something good," and on closer inspection, "Why, it's my own 'Jock!'" When I had confirmed my first impression, I scarcely knew what to think. It was my good old "Jock" sure enough, and drawn to life. It does your most able artist, Mr. Norman, infinite credit, and I congratulate him on producing a perfect model of my well-known Chough. I can assure you I was greatly astonished on finding him occupying the place of honour in your influential paper, as I was not even aware of your Mr. Norman ever having "taken" him. That your valuable paper may continue its good work in the Fancy, and that your accomplished artist may long be spared to produce such life-like sketches, is the honest and sincere wish of

An Old Scare Revived.

Sir,—As a regular subscriber for many years to CAGE BIRDS, I shall be glad to have your opinion on the accompanying cutting from the "Western Morning News," a Plymouth daily. If the statements contained in this paragraph be true, then Canary-keeping will soon be a thing of the past so far as I am concerned. Yours, with anticipatory thanks,

A. ROACH.

"Death in the birdcage" seems a rather alarming idea, but if the experience of Dr. Tucker Wise, a Devonshire medical man practising in Switzerland, as given in the Paris "New York Herald," may be relied on, the infection of tuberculosis, resulting in death, may very readily be transmitted through pet birds, especially Canaries, which are particularly liable to the disease. Many owners of pet Canaries love to make their pets appear to kiss them by putting their beaks to their mouths, and where the bird is infected with tuberculosis this may be a ready source of conveying the infection to a human being. It seems of little use to be at great pains and expense to prevent tubercular affection spreading through beef and milk if it is allowed to be freely disseminated by diseased cage birds. Some people are attached to their pets as even to risk, and sometimes sacrifice, their own lives on their behalf; but few, we imagine, would in cold blood run the risk of consumption from a pet Canary or Parrot if they knew it. Yet the danger is a very real one, for both these species of birds are, Dr. Tucker Wise says, frequently subject to the disease.

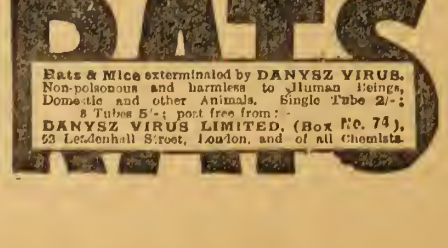
The Plumage Bill.

Sir,—Immediately this Bill was introduced into the House of Commons for First Reading, the Committee of the Birdkeepers' Protection Association wrote to Mr. Hobhouse, the Under Secretary of State, the Member who brought forward the measure entitled The Plumage Bill, and pointed out to him that, while agreeing with certain clauses relating to "Plumage," they desired further information in relation to Wild Birds, and asked if he would kindly grant them an interview. The following letter was received in reply.

In reply to your letter of the 11th Aug. I am very sorry I cannot make an appointment now, as I am going away on Thursday. I shall, however, be very happy to meet you sometime in the Autumn, if you would write me later on the subject.—Yours faithfully, C. Hobhouse.



Pending this interview steps will be taken to get together all possible information and material facts relating to Bird Laws and Birdkeeping. Any suggestions that Bird-keepers or Trades may have to make will be very welcome to the Committee. They can be addressed to T. R. Trower, 442, Caledonian Road, London, N., or J. P. Carr, 45, Overdale Road, S. Ealing, London, W. Everyone must bear in mind that this proposed legislation will need all our resources, and nothing must be left to chance; it must be viewed from its worst standpoint so far as it affects the interests of Bird-keepers and those Trades depending on them.

A Heating Apparatus for Two Shillings.

Corned Beef Can as Boiler.

Sir,—A small outside aviary can be effectually and sufficiently heated by a practical method which does not necessarily cost more than a shilling or two, and can be made and fitted up by anyone who can use a soldering bolt. The cost for eight to twelve hours' burning is about a penny for gas, and if gas is not available, it could be heated by means of a lamp. This apparatus is of the hot-water heating type. The source of the heat is outside the bird-room, so that all fears of fumes poisoning the birds are set at rest. It does not take up much room, and if fitted according to sketch, it can be repaired at any time should occasion arise, without difficulty. I was asked by a brother fancier last year if I could heat his bird-room (with the usual qualifications as to the working man's purse). This apparatus is "the goods," it costs about two shillings, and the consumption of gas is infinitesimal. Now I will give you details of this apparatus as fitted in, but I would recommend that more substantial tins be used; in fact if cost is not everything I would advise that the boiler and cylinder be of copper. The material required is as follows: One tea cylinder (they are about 20 inches high by about 10 inches through) two ordinary corned beef cans, about 9 or 10 feet of $\frac{3}{8}$-in. composition gas-pipe, seven $\frac{3}{8}$-in. gas couplings, a number of bricks, and some lime. The tea cylinder is the heating surface, and should be situated low down; in fact on the floor would do, and placed so that the inlet ventilator would be near it, in order that the incoming air would be heated by passing over it. One of the corned beef cans acts as the boiler, and the other as the feed tank. The former should be situated outside; great care should be taken in connection with this boiler, so that every possible unit of heat is conveyed to the cylinder, and that none may escape to the outside air. I will try to describe how it should be built: First of all you require a Bunsen burner, to heat the water. A good Bunsen can be had in the ordinary incandescent burner (not using the parts which hold the globe, mantle, etc.). This Bunsen will heat the apparatus with a consumption of between 2 and 3 cubic feet of gas per hour. You will require to build a little chamber, just a little larger in the inside than the boiler (the sketch will explain what is meant). The boiler will be supported with two pieces of light strap iron across the bottom, the burner being placed a little below the boiler, and the flame plays directly on to the boiler. Any heat which is not absorbed on the bottom will naturally go up the sides of the boiler, thereby making all the surface of the boiler absorb the heat. The top of the brickwork will require to be covered also, a flat slab of stone, fireclay, or even metal would do, not forgetting to leave a little hole to allow the products of combustion to escape. The boiler conveys the heated water to the cylinder by a pipe which leaves the boiler at its highest point, and goes direct to the cylinder, joining it at a high point. As the water in the cylinder cools, it goes to the bottom of the cylinder, and returns to the boiler, by a pipe from the bottom of the cylinder to bottom of boiler (see this connection in sketch). Thus a constant circulation is going on, and when the air in the birdroom is at the required temperature the gas burner should be regulated so that it will remain steady if no great change occur in the outside air, in which case, of course, you would raise or lower it, as the case may be. The sketch is given more as an explanation than as a working drawing, for the pipes may be taken in any suitable direction, always providing that F and G have an unobstructed run between boiler and cylinder. These pipes F and G should be kept level, and, if they are in the open, must be protected from frost. I hope this will meet the requirements of some fancier who may wish to heat his birdroom, but cannot see his way to go in for some of the expensive articles which are usually fitted for that purpose.

W. L. GLASGOW.

A, feed tank, connected by pipe E with return pipe G (the water in this tank should not, when the system is cold, be higher than shown in the diagram); B, cylinder; C, boiler; F, flow pipe, conveying hot water to cylinder B; H, Bunsen burner; 1, gas tap; X, couplings or joints; D, expansion pipe, with escape into feed tank A.

[NOTE.—B and C must be soldered so as to be watertight. The ventilation holes in slab over the brickwork enclosing the boiler are not shown in the drawing.]

What is the Matter with Members' Shows?

Sir,—Every week on receiving my CAGE BIRDS one of the things I mostly enjoy is to read through the correspondence columns, and I was struck by the letter written by "Looker On" under the heading of "What is the matter with Members' Shows?" Seeing he specially mentions Manchester, and belonging to the above town myself, I thought I would like to write in response to it. I cannot hold with him in saying there is something wrong with the societies, especially those that I belong to, although we do have a little squabble sometimes, but I would rather blame the bad breeding results that we have had this last season or two for the poor entries at our members' shows. Surely he does not expect to see birds at members' shows which are sweeping the decks in the open, not only this, but he seems to expect to make a fortune with showing birds, even at members' shows. I should like to know how many are there who are making money by showing birds; I think that getting a good sale for your stock is much more profitable. Regarding the public not visiting shows, this can be answered by the public themselves; as in my own case I must say it is one of the hardest jobs imaginable to get the public so interested as to buy a ticket for a Canary show. Take Manchester and Northern C. show held at Belle Vue as an instance. There is no trouble to sell tickets for the above; why is this? Simply because there are other attractions, the zoo, gardens, dancing, fireworks, etc., etc. All the same, I would like to know the percentage of members visiting the bird show, compared with the tickets sold. Make shows more attractive, and let every member try and get the public more interested in the hobby, then we shall see a great change for the better. His denunciation of the members' birds does not do him credit, as he must be aware we are all aiming at bettering our stock and trying to get those magnificent specimens he desires to see Still, these cannot be got without paying a big price, much above an ordinary working man's pocket; champions are not made in a day. "Looker On" must bide his time as well as myself and others are doing. His idea of small cliques ruling members' societies is not in accord with what I have seen, and I can honestly say that for the most part the bigger percentage of the members seem to work with a will to help to make the shows a success. His remedy for mending these bad defects seems to me to be worse than the mis-statements he has made. Amalgamation of these societies and having one or two shows would never work. Take, for instance, these large Friendly, Insurance, and different trade societies which are all amalgamated. These can be worked only by having different branches up and down the town and I say that the bird societies can be worked only as they are being done. Again, members living a long way off from the central meeting room which would be chosen would not care to come, seeing it was so much farther away from home, which would mean getting back so late at night, especially after doing a hard day's work. No, sir, taking all points together I don't think it possible to amalgamate without losing a large percentage of the members of these different societies. Probably some abler pen than mine will take this matter up, and I shall look forward with pleasure to some future arguments both for and against this question. Thanking you for allowing me to trespass on your valuable space.

Through a Bird-room Window

This article on the tiny British bird, the Common Wren, is No. 40 of the new series of personal birdy experiences related by that eminent aviculturist, the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

No. 40.—MY JENNY WRENS.

I AM not much more ignorant than other men of my age, but I never pretend to omniscience, and hence, if I don't know a thing, I am not ashamed of asking questions. Before I begin to keep a new sort of bird, I always like to know a few things about them; what they eat, where they sleep, and if they are generally peaceable or the reverse. Of course, I had occasionally seen Wrens popping about in the shrubberies, and as a boy I had often found their nests, but that anyone could keep such tiny little birds alive never entered my mind.

But one day the Tempter came to me, in the form of a friend, and suggested that I should make the attempt. I tried to resist, but, alas! there came into my mind a story that destroyed me. Cardinal Rampolla was one day talking to the Holy Father, and urged principle. "Ah, yes, Rampolla," said His Highness, "principles are like mountains, they rise very near heaven, but when they stand in our way, we drive a tunnel through them." That wretched story was my undoing. Principle said: "You have far too many birds already, get no more." His Holiness, in the place of my conscience, whispered, "True, but you can always make room for more; drive a tunnel through the mountain," and I did.

Preparing a Home for the Wrens.

I went to work and made a dear little aviary, such as I felt sure a Wren would love. In making a place for Wrens, there must be no slovenly work. The smallest hole and they will make their escape incontinently. I spent quite a long time in making all metaphorical doors and windows fast, and then I set to work to make the place such as a Wren loveth.

To this end I got a lot of furze, to the great destruction of my person and clothes, and with the help of long laths I made it into a very tolerable hedge. I then provided sleeping accommodation in the shape of several snug cocoa nut husks, which I placed in the midst of the furze. From long experience I knew the mice would be a source of trouble. I felt sure that if they were not stopped from climbing up the walls, they would soon not only monopolize the cocoa nut shells for family use, but would also make short work of the poor little Wrens. Accordingly I got some cheap sheets of glass—nobody knows how cheap glass is till you go to a wholesale shop. (You mustn't go by what they charge you when they put in a broken pane; that, as Kipling says, "is another story.") Really they almost give it away. I carefully lined the lower part of the aviary, and then I said to myself: I am safe at any rate from one enemy.

Having provided my aviary, the next thing was to get hold of the Wrens. Some people are experts at bird-catching. They have only to put out a trap and the desired one at once enters. I am not one of those happy souls. I set the most alluring traps, but they remain tenantless.

The Trials of an Amateur Bird-catcher.

When I started Wren catching, to add to my sorrows, the weather-glass began to fall, and the rain fell literally in buckets; in fact, atmospheric conditions were enough to make the crops creep underground again.

Try to imagine anyone setting out in this continual downpour watching the wretched trap that never caught anything. Hour after hour I warily baited the trap, creeping under the dense foliage such as the Wren loveth, getting a cold deluge of drops down my neck each time, and only to find the trap empty. Once, when I got there I found the trap had sprung itself. I can't tell you how I felt. "There wasn't no words for it," as the costermonger said when a passing omnibus collided with his barrow and scattered the fruit broadcast. Even his choice stock of profanity failed him.

After about a week I got fairly tired of trying to catch Wrens. I recalled the words of Oliver Wendell Holmes: "One is not necessarily a drone because he revels in the store accumulated by the industry of others. It is quite true that the farm of science is divided into a thousand fields, and it is only by diligent labour in one of these, often in no more than a compartment of one, that substantial additions to the harvest of knowledge can be made." How I wished I had read these words before I went Wren catching. I was sure I was not a drone. I had laboured long and well in the fields of Nature, but clearly, as the writer said, bird catching was not one of them.

The Cobbler to His Last.

It reminded me of the story told of a certain distinguished entomologist. His department of insect life was the Coleoptera, or beetles, and he indignantly resisted some questions addressed to him about a butterfly, as if he were one who should concern himself with these meretritious Lepidoptera. What right had I to usurp the functions of the common or garden bird-catcher? Every man to his trade. Clearly my forte was not bird catching. Accordingly, I got CAGE BIRDS and began to scan its advertisement columns; but I could see nothing about Wrens. Every other sort of bird seemed offered—but no Wrens.

One morning a happy inspiration seized me. I remembered a friend near Keighley who always had on hand a big stock of softbills, and being a man of surpassing skill in keeping them, I felt sure that if they were to be got I should find them there. Accordingly, on my first off day, for even we poor priests sometimes get a day off—Some people say we get nothing else, but they don't count, for they are vain and foolish talkers,—I jumped into the train and set off on my travels. Arriving at the house of my friend, or rather, at the bird-rooms, I smelt them long before I could see them, for he has a very flourishing maggot factory, I discovered a long room lined on each side with cages.

A Lucky Find.

There were all sorts and conditions of birds—Robins, Wagtails, Flycatchers, Pipits, and a host of others I didn't want; and just as I was turning away in disgust at a fruitless journey I caught sight of a cage, right before me, apparently with nothing but a bunch of hay on the sand tray. Some movement of mine startled something under the hay, and ont popped four dear little Wrens, in the very pink of health and condition, and not a feather out of place. I asked my friend what they were doing nnder the hay? "Oh," he said, "They've been having a bath, and they go under the hay to get dry."

I was quite shy about asking the price of the four, especially as they had been reared by hand, and I felt correspondingly relieved when told that I could have the lot for £1. I was not long in popping them into a travelling box I had taken care to bring with me; and at the same time I secured a pint of gentles to keep them going.

When I got home I took them at once to their new abode, and it was quite pretty to see how delighted they were with their new quarters. The moment I put in the dish with maggots they were down and helping themselves quite freely.

The Tale of a Tough Task.

After carefully looking them over next day I felt sure that there were three cocks and one hen. As I hoped to breed them, I felt that I must secure two of the cocks and leave the pair to themselves. I wished I had done the separating while I had them caged! We are always wise after the event. Too often experience comes, as Coleridge says, like the stern lights of a ship, leaving a glare only on the path behind. I wonder which of my readers has ever tried to catch Wrens with a net. I flatter myself that I am fairly skilful; in fact, a friend said to some people I know: "Mr. Farrar is the best catcher of birds with a net I ever saw." Of course he may not have seen many, but there the record remains.

Imagine a little aviary some five feet square; picture along one side a thick furze hedge; then visualize four Wrens and a big man 6ft. high and correspondingly broad, but very active. The problem—how to wield the net, so as to catch the birds without tearing its substance, and to keep a rather fiery temper.

I thought I should never succeed. I spent a good hour; I was absolutely dripping with perspiration: several times I nearly trod a Wren under foot by accident, and the net was torn to ribbons. At last, the Wrens, who fairly seemed to enjoy the proceedings—they probably thought it a game of hide and seek—evidently thought I had had enough, and popped into the cocoa nut husks. I made a wild grab and secured them before they could break cover, and then when they were in the calm seclusion of a cage, I sat down and made my selection, and told them what I thought of them. I picked out the finest cock, then the hen, and relegated the two bachelors to their own company.

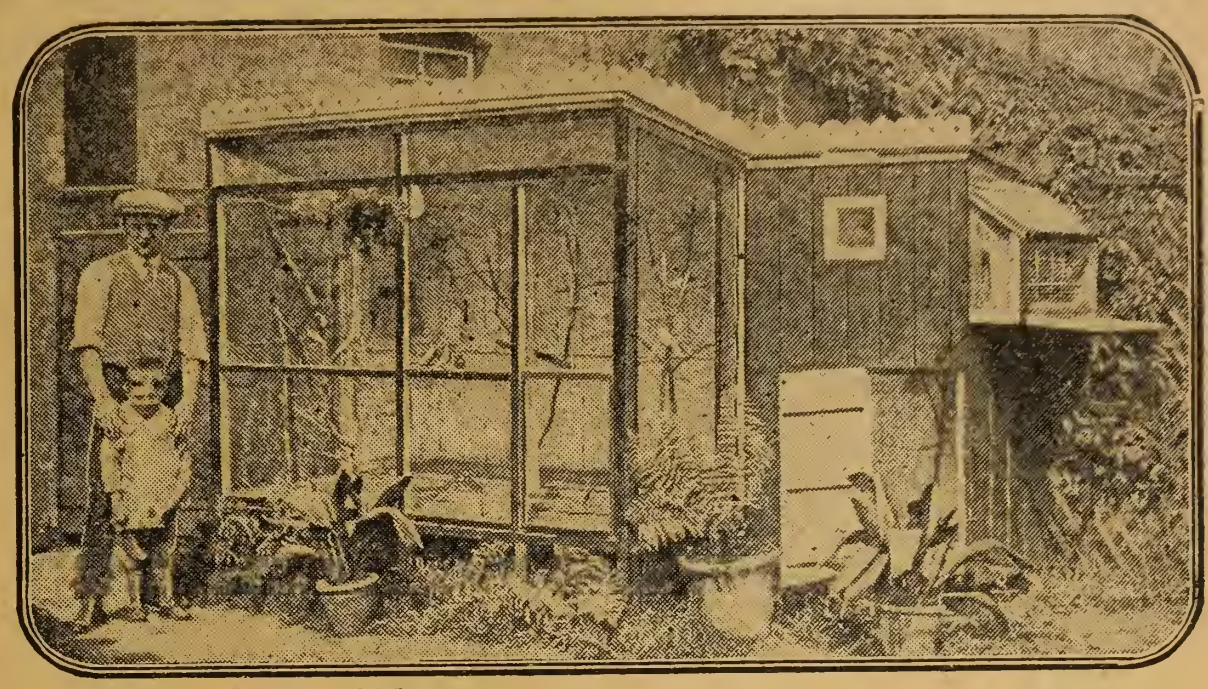
On Matrimony Bent.

On returning the pair to the aviary, I was glad to see that there was no more of the old free born bachelor life, like "Colin, kiss me in the shade," or other pretty pastoral work of that kind; but at once they settled down to sober married bliss, and I quite thought that a family of little Wrens would result. True, there were occasionall "amantium irae," but they were of no greater moment than gnat bites on a summer's day.

One morning when I came into the aviary I caught one of the birds carrying about a bit of moss, and that little trifle lighted up my heart like a bit of sunshine on a gloomy road. I am sorry to say that it led to nothing; it had no more meaning for those Wrens than the face of a stagnant pool. I can't truthfully say that Wrens are good tempered. Of course, good Dr. Watts tells children that birds in their little nests agree, well, perhaps they do till they are big enough to quarrel, but not after, and they certainly don't agree outside the nest, but then good Dr. Watts did not know everything. One day the hen said or did something to Master Wren which made him fly on to a neighbouring perch and use language suited to a three bottle buck of the old school; I did not think that so much fury could live in so small a body.

Hope Deferred.

As the weather grew warmer so did my hopes of nesting mount. The hen was continually hopping in and out of the husk, and carrying about bits of hay, but something didn't suit. I believe it was not private enough; because each time the door opened she would come off with a rush to see what was going on, and this, of course, is fatal to nest building. I did not, however, relinquish hope, as I am so used to disappointments.



Once upon a time a certain club was redecorated in the yearly holiday time. When it reopened, the painter came one day to lunch, and after paying his bill, asked the waiter whether the members liked the new colouring. "Oh, they are getting used to it," was the cautious reply; so I am "getting used" to failures. I am so used to things turning out contrary to my wishes that I never despair, but I must own that when September came, and nothing happened, I did begin to think that affairs looked pretty hopeless.

I think now that I made a mistake in having an indoors place for these Wrens. They would have done better if I had enclosed a piece of living hedge, and left them to their own sweet will, but then how could I have guarded against prowling cats, marauding school boys, and thieving weasels, and how could I have been quite sure that I had not left one little hole of escape? It seems impossible—it is in reality so easy.

Consolation After Failure.

Though I had failed to get them to nest, these Wrens were a constant source of pleasure. I loved to watch their pretty ways. A brutal outspoken friend once said to me: "Give you some birds and a wall to lean against, and you settle into an easefulness that would madden a saint." This, of course, is a libel, "actionable," I should say! These birds gave me a lot of trouble, but then, as a quaint old fellow once said to me: "We're born to trouble, as Adam said when he found Eve in the garden."

But hope builds as fast as knowledge can destroy, and no doubt before long I shall be trying to breed Wrens again. One last word of advice: Don't keep a lot of cock Wrens together. Good Wrens are bad to get.

Our picture shows Mr. C. A. Leonard, of Erdington, Birmingham, with his little son, standing by the charming outdoor aviary in which he has successfully reared thirty fine Norwich Canaries in his first year of outside Canary breeding.

Enclosed please find cheque value 20s. for 40 coupons to enable me to compete in your championship scheme. I think the scheme will be of great value in stimulating interest in the hobby of bird-keeping, and a means of encouragement to a large number of fanciers. Please accept my best wishes for the success of the scheme. I trust it may prove not only of benefit to present fanciers, but by extending the circulation and influence of your valuable journal, be a means of introducing many others to the Fancy.—Joe Thomas, Halifax.

Mr. J. R. Chestney, hon. sec., Cramlington C.B.S., sends an enquiry as follows:—

At our last meeting I was requested to ask if you would kindly inform me re the following:—Can members show from other societies, with the tickets, at our show? Is the 10s. prize for each society, also the diplomas? How many birds will it take before 10s. is given in class, and how many in each section? Are we bound to have the classes stated on list? We will have same as Nos. 1, 2 (not 3), 4 (not 5), 6 will be Greens and Cinnamons (not 7), 8, 9 stand, 10 if necessary 11 will be any variety British bird not larger than a Hawfinch); we will not have section 12. If we can enter under the above conditions we would like 50 tickets forwarded.

To this the following reply was sent:—

At every coupon show there will be given a 10s. cash prize for the best novice bird and 10s. cash prize for the best champion bird; this is subject to rule 6, which says that we reserve the right to withhold the cash prizes if there are less than ten separate competitors for the same.

A diploma will be given for each section named in our list of twelve sections that is comprised in the schedule of any particular show, so that if your society leave out, as you say, Crest and Crest Bred, Scotch Fancy and Belgian, and the others you mention, all these will come into section 8, A.O.V. Canary, and instead of having twelve diplomas in each section you will have a lower number corresponding with your classification.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th next.

TWO PRIZES OF £5. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Compon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.
(4) BORDER FANCIES.
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

Club Reports.

MARKINCH C.B., Etc, S.

Meeting held in Lister's Room, with a large attendance of committee. Secretary read correspondence from various judges, and the following were appointed to judge at our show on November 1: Scotch Fancy, Mr. Jas. Cook, Cowdenbeath; Nor. and Crests, Mr. C. Campbell, Glasgow; Borders, Mr A. W. Thomson, Newtongrange; Brit. and Mules, Mr. W. Sharp, Bathgate. Vote of thanks to Mr. John Thomson, the chairman, concluded the meeting.—John Lindsay.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Well attended meeting held in Neilson's Temperance Hotel, Glasgow, August 26. Spls. for this season's competition were allocated. We have more spls. this year than ever, including 30/- worth of books (5/- worth at each show), and had a sovereign for most points in the young hen class throughout the season, ring birds only to count. Decided that novice trophy take the form of a rose bowl, and 15/- was subscribed towards same during the meeting. Country members might keep this fund in mind. Sec. intimated that pressure of business would probably compel him to relinquish his office at the end of year (possibly before then). Members might remember this when nomination meeting comes round. Subs. now due. Prospective members can have all information from the Hon. Sec., R. B. Gibb, 2, Alexandria-terr., Govan.

GATESHEAD C.B.S.

Meeting, held August 13, chairman, Mr. Holden, presided. Letters read from the following specialist clubs, granting us their patronage for our forthcoming show. Northern Nor. and Cinn., Northern Yorks., Northern Border, Northern Brit., Mule and F.B.C., Border F.C., Lizard C.C., National B.B. and M.C., Green Border, and the Foreign B.C. Decided to put on novice Yorks., hen class, in the members section, to alter the novice open Border classes as follows: Cock, A.V., hen ditto. At next meeting rules for the schedule will be gone into. Members, please attend. Subs. now due. New members elected: Messrs. E. Hooper, J. McGuire, and Mr. Houston, Gateshead. As the time is drawing near for our show, I hope all members will put their shoulders to the wheel, and get as many specials as possible, so as to make this show one of the best in the annals of Gateshead (Palace of the North).—W. Curry, Sec.

SOUTHERN BORDER F.C.

Meeting held at Gulldhall, Wandsworth Road, August 28, Mr. Bacon (Redhill), chair. There was only a small attendance, several members being away on holiday. Patronage was allotted to Plymouth and Wimbledon. This makes seven shows to receive patronage in the first year, which is a good kick-off. Decided to give a special of 2s. 6d. to each show for best vhc bird. Eight new members were elected: Messrs. Short, Jamison, Stevens, Kybert, Pearce, Martin, Mrs. Denham, and Mrs. Salter. This proves that Border fanciers are beginning to see the good the club is doing for them, and it is hoped all members will subscribe a little towards the cup fund. It was suggested that the club give a medal to the winner of the cup each year. The matter was left over till next meeting. Rule books are now being printed, and will be posted to all members in the course of a week or so. Members are requested to make a point of attending the next meeting, September 25, as there will be some matters of the greatest importance to be decided. It will greatly assist the committee if members who have not yet paid their subscription will forward same as soon as possible, and don't forget the cup fund; every little helps.—F. Moore, Hon. Sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held August 26, Mr. A. Anderson chair. The Secretary reported having received show goods. Letter was read from Hyde's granting the usual special prize, which it was agreed to confine to a two-miles' radius as formerly. Agreed to accept CAGE BIRDS advert. offer. Stewards for open show appointed as follows: Scotch Fancies, A. Cowan and A. Ross; Borders, J. Anderson and J. Robertson; Yorks, etc., J. Campbell and J. Arnott, jun.; Crests, D. Kirk and D. Moffat; Plainheads, A. Ramsay and T. Barclay; Mules, British, etc., G. Malcom and T. Rankine; extra stewards, W. Herd and F. Arnott; Assist Sec., J. Cordery; Schedule Committee: J. Stenhouse, J. and A. Anderson, J. Cargill, T. Barclay, and Secretary. Those with collecting books to hand them in at meeting-room at 6 o'clock on Sept. 9. Schedule Committee to meet to draw out schedule at 7 o'clock same night. Report of League meeting and smoker was given by Secretary. Agreed to try and get a washing exhibition by two of our members at next meeting, Sept. 20, at 6 o'clock, when a full attendance is required, as it is of the utmost importance that every member should be there to see if the schedule as drawn out by the committee meets with their approval. Messrs. Lister, Kelty, and Baxter (Crossgates) were accepted as members. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought to a close a very enjoyable meeting.—A. Dickson, Sec.

"CAGE BIRDS" WATCH COUPON Sept. 6th, 1913.

Manager, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

GRANGEMOUTH C.B.S.

Meeting held Aug. 27, at headquarters, Rechabite Hall, Mr. J. Ovenstone chair, before a good muster. The cups were allocated as follows, (1) for best young Crest, Crestbred, or Nor. Plainhead, (2) best young Border Fancy, or Mule, or Hybrid, (3) best British or Foreign. Secretary was instructed to have the books of door tickets forward for the next meeting. As it is past our regular time for members paying their subs., I would be greatly obliged if they will come to the next meeting, Sept. 10, or send part of their dues on to me.—J. Woodhouse, Sec.

CLACKMANNANSHIRE C.B.S.

Meeting held August 30, a full attendance of members being present. The classification list for 1913 was made up, and 16 new classes added, giving a total of 49. This we hope will give us the support of fanciers in the extended radius (15 miles), which comprises Dunfermline on the east, Falkirk, Boness, etc., on the south, and Stirling and district on the west. It was moved and carried that the cup and gold badge be given to the winner of most points in certain classes, and not to the best young bird as formerly. This year the competition falls to the Norwich Canary section. Decided to use the Leith Publishing Co.'s prize cards at our show, Dec. 6. Three new members joined. Class lists will be ready soon, and can be had by postcarding the Sec., at 68, Mar Street, Alloa.—W. W. Duncan, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Fortnightly meeting, held August 30, Mr. Farrer presiding over a good attendance, which included an honorary member in Mr. P. Hunter (India). Letter was read by the Sec., reporting that the patronage of the N.B. and S.F.C. had been granted to us. Decided that Sec. write to the three local M.P.'s, drawing their attention to the proposed "Plumage Bill" from a fancier's point of view, and asking for their support to our cause. Classification for our open show will be decided upon at our next meeting, when it is hoped every member will make an effort to be present. Markers kindly complete list of visits during September for the final marking. It was moved from the chair: "That we do heartily welcome our friend Mr. Hunter amongst us, and that his attendance here to-night be recorded in the minutes." It may not be out of place here to say that Mr. Hunter is a native of Sunderland, but some 27 years ago left for Bombay, India. A few years ago he wrote to the then sec. of the club offering to provide some trophy for competition, with the result that a silver cup was sent us from India, for the member gaining most points in open classes at our show. About the same time he also presented a bowl to the Northern Lizard Club, which club originated from this Association. These gifts, though valuable, were still more so to us, because except by correspondence the donor was unknown to us, until his attendance at this meeting. Mr. Hunter is at present in England on a holiday, and if all goes well with him, he expects to retire in a year or so, and settle down in this locality. He has assured us that when home again, he will help to his utmost in the work of our society, and I am certain he will be a most valuable help to us. Would that there were more fanciers like him. Our members all wish him the best of health, and a welcome to his native place, and may he live long to enjoy his well-earned retirement. To-day I have heard from another old fancier in Mr. Snowball, and am sorry to hear of his illness. He is at present recruiting his health at Richmond (Yorks.), and hopes to be amongst us very soon, to take a practical interest once more in the welfare of our club. We wish him a speedy recovery. —John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

SHETTLESTON C.B.S.

Meeting held in Johnston's room, Aug. 9, Mr. Luna presiding over a good turnout. We have fixed the date of annual show for Dec. 13. Judges, Mr. C. Campbell, Glasgow, Mr. G. Marlin, Hamilton. Agreed to hold a table show and judging competition Sept. 27. Entry money 3d. and a large number of specials to be competed for.—A. Berry, Sec.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held in Village School Room, Alexandria, Aug. 26, President Donaldson in the chair. Suggestions for Annual Show were fully gone into after a very friendly discussion, also arrangements for hand-washing competitions to be held next meeting, when Mr. C. Hunter, of Glasgow, the well-known expert, has kindly consented to demonstrate how to wash a bird, and afterwards judge the competitions. Prizes for the competitors have been kindly given by President Donaldson, Mr. E. Baker, and Sec. Two lady members and several gentlemen have already handed in their names as competitors.—A. H. McLean, Hon. Sec.

The Shows.

BRISBANE (Australia) CANARY IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY.

Twentieth Annual Show, held July 11-12. The entry was a record for number, and quality was of a very much higher standard than in any previous year. 53 classes were provided, and competition in many of them was very keen, although Belgians and Lizards each had only one entry, Scotch Fancies and Lancs. none. Mules only two, Australian Finches one, and Brit. or For. only four in the two classes provided. Mr. J. G. Miller, Sydney, judged and appeared to give all round satisfaction. Sec. Mr. J. G. Miller and an able staff looked well to the requirements of the birds, and the show must be voted a great success.

The principal winners were: BELGIANS, Hayes; YORKS., Hodgson, Thomson, Day, Bettany, Hynd, Stephens, Bunham, Tate, Crookall, Jones; LIZARD, Hynd; CINN., Hynd, Hayes, Ewart, Smith, Edmondstone, Batt; NOR., Durston, Hynd, Hodgson, Bunham, Lyle; CRESTS, Durston, Dixon, Hayes, Grace, Murray; C.B., Durston, Hayes, Dixon; MULES, Hynd, Soden; AUSTRALIAN, Soden; BRIT. or FOR., Day, Lyle, Durston, Soden.

FESTINIOG.

Held August 30 in connection with the 6th annual Horticultural Show. Pres., Mr. R. Bowton; Treas., Mr. R. Thomas; Sec., Mr. A. E. Foster. This was the first time that cage bird classes were provided, and entries were good considering the time of the year. The Sec., Mr. A. E. Foster, was the right man in the right place. He did his work exceedingly well, ably assisted by a good staff; the attendance was exceedingly good. Mr. J. E. Jones (Harlech) judged.

NOR. (8): 1, vhc, E. Edwards, cl. yell., hot fed, good head and wings, nice feather and condition; 2, hc, R. P. Williams, mkd. buff, loses to winner in head; 3, H. Hughes, tkd. buff, close up, tail just a bit long; c, Foster. YORKS. (10): 1, J. Evans, cl. buff youngster, good length and leg, nice head and wing carr., tight as a Java, easy win; 2, c, P. C. Jones, lengthy yell., fair head, bit unsteady; 3, Edwards, cl. yell., slim and leggy, wants training; vhc, D. R. Jones; hc, Hughes. GOLDF. (5): 1, J. M. Evans, good size, expansive blaze, good tan and buttons, shines all over, could win in better company; 2, hc, Jones, nice size, fails a bit in tan and blaze, will improve with a good moult; 3, Lloyd, too dark in blaze, otherwise good, but wants steadying; vhc, Hughes. A.O.V. (8): 1, R. P. Williams, Goldie-Can., shows parentage well, in fine fettle, shade small; 2, c, Hughes, Ring Ouzel, nice exhibit, glossy feather, steady as a rock; 3, hc, Nightingale, Missel Thrush, good size and markings, toe missing; vhc, D. R. Jones. Special best bird, 5 miles' radius, H. Hughes (3rd in Norwich).

EALING, HANWELL F.S.

Show held August 30. The cage bird classes did not provoke very much competition, but quality was very good. Mr. J. Dewhurst judged, and gave complete satisfaction in a somewhat easy task. YORKS. RUTHIN (Denbighshire).

Annual show held August 26th in the Castle Grounds. The cage bird section was [illegible] tables at a nice height. Entries [illegible] good, especially in Canaries and Fancies; quality was good throughout. Mr Bennett [illegible] won spl, best Canary, also Hybrid, with well known variegated buff Yorks. Best Mule was awarded to Messrs. Hughes Bros. dark Linnet Mule. Mr Butler held the secretarial reins once more, a very capable and energetic official, ably assisted by Stewards W. Roberts and E. A. Baxter. Mr. R. E. Griffiths judged and gave general satisfaction.

CAN. (12): 1, 2, spl, Jones, variegated Yorks., grand length, style and quality, position and feather well balanced, in nice form; 2, Mr. Richards, cl. yell. Yorks., stands well, extra long, good col., leggy and stylish, moulting; 3, T. G. Roberts, cl. yell., good length and position, nervy, good colour; vhc, J. O. Williams. MULE (6): 1, spl., Hughes Bros., dark Linnet Mule, good qual., col. and feather fit; 2, Edwin Williams, variegated Gold. Mule, good condition; 3, D. E. Williams, light Goldie Mule, good qual. and feather, smaller. BRIT. GOLDF. excluded (7): 1, R. and C. D. Green, monster Bullfinch, good shape, cap and markings, lovely condition; 2 vhc, T. Roberts, capital Greenie, good size and condition; 3, D. E. Williams, good Greenie, smaller. F.F. (13) a good class: 1, 2, J. O. Williams, cl. yell. York., fine upstanding bird, good wing and position, well drawn, 2 very fine buff hen, lovely qual. and condition, not quite the length of winner; 3, J. Williams, cl. yel., shade leggy, very stylish, beaten length; vhc, Mrs. Richards, nice qual., all Yorkshires. GOLDF. (9): 1, Mrs. Hughes, capital size, good colour and markings, rich blaze, well defined bars, fair polish; 2, 3, Edward Jones, rich expansive blaze, clean cut, sound colour, grand polish, Llanrwst winner, 3 grand Finch, good tan and markings, smaller.

BRYNSIENCYN (Anglesey).

At the 2nd annual show of the South Anglesey Agricultural Society held August 26th, a few classes were added for cage birds. The Committee intended increasing the prize money and classes another year. Rules were very complicated for a small fixture. Outstanding birds were Messrs. Hughes Bros.' dark Linnet Mule, well-known, and Mr. Edward Jones's Goldfinch, which has done so well this season. Eighteen birds were shown in the five classes provided, the moulting season no doubt telling a tale on a good many. A little addition in the prize money, etc., should make the event a nice show in the future. Secs. W. O. Pritchard and John Williams saw that everything worked smoothly. Mr R. E. Griffiths judged and gave satisfaction.

YORKS. (5): 1, Mrs. Williams, fine buff, nice length and qual., bit open on breast, would look better in a proper show cage; 2, L. S. Pritchard, nat. col. buff, nice shape, not the length of winner; hc, Jones; c, Hughes. NOR. (1): 1, George Jones, typical cl. yell., good col., rather coarse in feather. MULE (5): 1, Hughes Bros., dark Linnet, full of qual., capital order, an easy winner, held same position at Ruthin; 2, Pritchard, variegated Goldie, nice size, good qual. and feather, nicely fed; hc, John Williams, small Goldie Mule; c, O. Jones. GOLDF. (4): 1, Edward Jones, capital Finch, Llanrwst winner, added another to his long list of wins; 2, E. Hughes, already moulted, good col. and markings, rich yell. bars, wants time to finish col. of blaze and polish, a good one; hc, Hughes Bros., deep in moult, requires a rest till ready; c, Jones. LOCAL, 3 miles radius (3): 1, John Edwards, cl. buff Yorks., unflig., through moult, good wings, tight feather; 2, O. Jones, fine cl. yell. Yorks., typical, neat feather, requires training; hc, Glynn Williams, Yorks.

CREST AND CRESTBRED. CANARIES.

The Crestbred is distinguished by its wide skull and heavy head feathering; the Crest by the manner in which the feathers of the head rise from the centre of the skull and droop over the sides, often reaching beyond the end of the bird's beak.

This Crestbred won second prize at the Horticultural Hall Show for Mr. H. Coath, of Plymouth; and the Crest won first prize in the Novice Section at the same exhibition for Miss V. Onslow, of Bournemouth.

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the seuder after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

catalogue for everything connected with cage birds should be in the hands of every fancier; sent post free immediately upon receipt of address: W. Rudd, Specialist, Norwich.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾ inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

MEDICINES.

MOULTINE.—The only certain cure for soft moult, asthma, wheezing, huskiness, etc.; in bottles, 6d. and 1/-, post paid: Parker, Chemist, Morecambe.

EVERY birdkeeper has need of practical hints upon the prevention of diseases and their eradication from cage, aviary, and birdroom. These are to be found in "Nutshell No. 9," post free 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

"AILING Cage Birds and How to Cure Them," "Nutshell No. 6," an account of the troubles which beset captive birds, with the treatment and list of medicines to restore our pets to health. This will save you much discouragement and money, and costs only 2½d. post free.—From "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Or 2d. from agents (list frequently published).

SOFT MOULT — NOT SINGING

Wanted, a trial; we are confident our medicines will give satisfaction. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, going light, dullness, feather plucking, not singing, diarrhoea, and inflammation of the bowels. For birds that are stuck in the moult and for moulting British birds, this medicine is invaluable; sold in 7d., 1s. 1d., and 2s. bottles. For bronchitis, wheezing, hoarseness, and inflammation of the lungs, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic, also in 7d. and 1s. 1d. bottles. The grandest medicine ever introduced for chest and lung affections in cage birds. As an advertisement, we will send a 7d. bottle of each medicine for 1s., or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9. All medicines post paid at our risk. Also two valuable seed recipes, how to feed Linnets and Rollers for contest singing, given free to all purchasers of our medicines: Frank Ditchfield, Bird Specialist, Oldham. (See last week's advert.) (848)

NOT CHANCE BIRDS

but selected first-round singing Norwich or Yorkshires, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, cages 3d.; six months' approval; it is bad enough to be a fool, but to be one and not know it is 100 times worse, hence I say that it would be as reasonable to expect an infant in arms to sing in opera as to expect young birds at present to be on full song: W. Rudd, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

THOSE who have bought or those who are about to buy a Grey Parrot, should get "Nutshell No. 17," it only costs 2½d. post free, but the tips it gives are priceless; from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents, a list of whom is published frequently).

PARROTS for pleasure and profit, 7d., by C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

FOREIGN birds for beginners, 1/1½, by W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign birds. Replete with useful hints: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

PARROTS. Parrots! 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- upwards; beware the "Red and Grey" so-called Parrots, which are screeching Cockatoos that do not talk, denial challenged; see my pamphlet, "Parrot trick exposed," free; splendid Budgerigars for show, etc.; also cages; list free: W. BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2½d. From agents (see list frequently published), 2d.

TALKING Green Amazon Parrot, beautifully plumed, exceedingly clever, distinct speaker, full 200 words, long sentences, whistles "Pop Goes," "Bogie Man," recites "Polly Green," sings part of three songs, perches on finger, kisses you, and answers back when spoken to, 4 years old, quite a lady's pet, sent approval before purchase, £3 15/-: E. Milton, Eagle Chambers, Liverpool. (858) solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle." This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

PARROT PROBLEM

We ask You

IS IT WISE to purchase a freshly imported bird, which has had no possible chance of becoming acclimatised, and further more, has probably "existed" in a dingy, crowded town "shop," or ARE YOU NOT BETTER ADVISED TO PURCHASE HEALTHY SPECIMENS that have become acclimatised under practically natural conditions? One visit to our establishment would convince any person interested that the methods we employ in feeding, housing, and attending to the stock cannot be beaten. You may have to pay us a little more for your birds, but when we say acclimatised we mean acclimatised, and is it not better to have one single, perfect, healthy, vigorous specimen than a dozen "chance" specimens, which are more likely to die rather than remain a pleasurable and pretty addition to your own collection? Small, large, rare, and ordinary birds. Pet Monkeys and small animals from stock.

OXFORD F. SOCIETY

Oct. 30th. 50 miles' radius.—Secretary, A. H. Calcutt, Kidlington.

We have received from Mr. W. Dean, financial sec., Matlock F.S., the balance sheet and report of the society for 1912. Membership has increased from 42 to 61, an extremely satisfactory advance, while the balance sheet, upon a total handling of £106 odd, shows that the 1911 balance of £1 12s 7d. has been increased to £5 3s. 3d. The 1912 show, the eleventh of the society, was eminently successful, the entries totalling 1,046, of which 108 were cage birds. The 1913 show is fixed for Oct. 30 at the Victoria Hall; Mr. J. C. Barnes will judge cage birds.

A book that should be bought, if for its illustrations alone, is Vol. 1 of "The Bodley Head Natural History," (John Lane), 2s. net. The letterpress is by Mr. E. D. Cumming, and, while sketchy, is interesting and helpful, giving in well-chosen words much information as to the song, nesting habits, food, etc., of the birds treated upon. In this volume are included the true Thrushes and the others of the Turdinæ sub-family, together with the Tits, Starling, Wren, etc., and Vol. 2 which is to follow will treat of the Warblers, Nuthatch, Tree-Creeper, etc. The artistic illustrations by Mr. J. A. Shepherd are charming in their unique humour, and express to the life the characteristics of the birds depicted, although employing the absolute minimum of lines. The book is compact enough for the pocket, and will be found useful in many a country ramble. Those who get this work will await with pleasurable anticipation the appearance of the second volume.

Twitterings.

Mr. Lomax, St. Helens, will judge our annual show, Nov. 29, writes Mr. G. Lord, sec. Radcliffe and Dis. C.B.S.

We hear that Mr. A. Wellings, Prescot, will judge the following shows:—Belfast, Oct. 31; Oldham, Nov. 8; Preston, Nov. 21; Leigh, Nov. 22; Liverpool, Nov. 29.

Will show secretaries and others, writes Mr. P. McQuiston, kindly note that I have removed to 44, Content Street, Ayr, which will henceforth be my permanent address.

Will exhibitors please note, writes Mr. P. E. Barker, hon. sec. Longton C.B.A., that we have changed the A.V. British into two classes, viz., British Hardbill and British Softbill.

We hear from Mr. Jonkinson, assist. sec. of the City of Bradford O.S. that the date of his society's show has been changed from Dec. 6 to Nov. 15, as the original date clashed with that of Bradford National.

We hear that two of the members of the Llanelly C.B.S. are engaged to judge at the Dafen Society show on Sept. 13. Mr. Sam Jones, cage-birds; Mr. Daniel John, sec., the Game and Game Bantam section.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Wm. Shaw, Oldham.

It is with great regret, writes Mr. J. Cope, sec., Oldham C.B.A., that I have to announce the death of one of our members, Mr. William Shaw, of the Church Inn, who passed away Aug. 29 in his 44th year. He was interred at Greenacres on Sept. 2, and I can assure Mrs. Shaw and family that the sympathies of each and every one of our members are with them in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Mallatratt, senr., Mansfield.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. B. Gabbitass, sec., Mansfield C.B.S., that I notify you of the death of Mr. Mallatratt, father of Jack Mallatratt of Hybrid fame. He had almost reached the allotted span of life, being only a few months short of 70. Our sympathy goes out to friend Jack in this his sad hour of trial.

Mr. Stewart Grahame.

It is with very much regret, writes Mr. W. Hudson, Hon. Sec. Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., that I have to acquaint you of the death of Mr. Stewart Grahame, a well-known fancier of British birds, and a respected member of our society. For some years Mr. Grahame had been suffering from bad health, and some eighteen months or two years back had to give up all his birds on that account. He went to South Africa, as advised by his doctors, and was just settling down when his sad death occurred. He leaves a widow and two children out in South Africa.

I shall feel greatly obliged if you will kindly state, writes Mr. T. Arnot, Hawick, that the Buff Uneven hen, 1st Scottish National, portrayed in your issue of Aug. 16, belonged to Mr. Thos. Arnott, Kirkcaldy, not to me.

The following are the judges appointed for the show of the Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S., Oct. 17-18: Messrs. W. Vardy, T. C. Crawhall, R. Tindale, J. W. Bruce, W. C. Duncan, and J. Maddison. There will be 121 classes provided.

Our young stock show, writes Mr. Rowland Bamber, sec. and treas., Ealing and Hanwell F.S., takes place on Sept. 13 at Drill Hall, Churchfield Road, West Ealing; open at 2 o'clock; all cups in competition. Cage bird judge, Mr. P. Rorke.

Exhibitors looking out for a drying cage should not overlook the claims of that designed by Mr. A. Wilson (naturalist, Argyle St., Glasgow) and named "The Perfect." It is moderate in price, and has received very high commendation from users.

We hear from Mr. T. J. Hose, hon. sec. Clapham C.B.A., that the managerial duties for the forthcoming show of the society, Oct. 8 and 9, will be in the capable hands of Messrs. Askew and Silverthorne, 24, Chelsham Road, Clapham, S.W. All correspondence respecting entries and other show business should be addressed accordingly.

Messrs. Deer and Cundy, hon. secs., write that at the annual show of the Southend and Southern Counties O.S., Nov. 4-5, the following specials will be open to all comers: Challenge Cup for most points in champion Yorks, Gold Medal most points novice Yorks, silver butter dish most points champion Norwich, jam dish most points novice Norwich, jam dish for Mules and British. Over £50 will be given in open specials, and for members' prizes.

Hard Times at Swindon.

We hear that the Swindon F. and F.A., owing to great loss on the last two open shows, are this year only running a fixture confined to a 12-mile radius (including Cirencester). The date selected is Oct. 25.

Hanley's New Headquarters.

We have changed our headquarters to the Temperance Hall, writes Mr. C. J. Robinson, hon. sec. Hanley and Dis. C.B.S., and we hope and think we shall benefit by the change, as there are many exhibitors and visitors to shows that object to hotels.

Putting their Heads Together.

I saw in "confab" at Huthwaite, Judges Vardy, Marshall, Fox (of Long Eaton), and Battye, of Yorkshire fame, writes a local correspondent, and I thought what a store of information could have been gleaned by the novice fortunate enough to over-hear!

A Good Move at Uddingston.

It is the intention of the Uddingston and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Corgrove, hon. sec., to have a course of lectures, and the first of these will be given on Sept. 17, in the Reading Rooms, Uddingston, at 7.45. The lecture will be "The Study of Nature, and its relation to men and birds," by that well-known fancier, Mr. R. Davidson, of Mossend.

The L. and P.O.S. Autumn Show.

Will anyone wishing to join the society, so as to compete, writes Mr. C. W. Law, Brimley House, Woodhouse Road, N. Finchley, at our autumn members' show, Oct. 22-23, kindly let me know by the 15th inst., as I have several members for election on the 18th. Six £5 5s. cups, £6 in money specials, besides numerous other specials will be given.

Of Course!

I should be glad if you would kindly thank the numerous applicants for the Budgerigars advertised in last week's Cage Birds. I had many more replies than I could answer. By the way, "——" sent me a copy pointing out a certain letter and their criticism with regard to fanciers patronising one paper. But what can they expect? It's only natural fanciers will support the best, also advertise where they are likely to get replies.—F. J. Whibley (Maidstone).

New Society for Penicuik.

A meeting of Penicuik Cage-bird fanciers was held in the Cowan Institute on Saturday, 6th inst., when it was decided to form a local society, and Mr. Weir was elected sec. and treas.; Provost Chisholm was elected hon. President, Mr. Cowan hon. vice-president; Mr. Jas. Thompson, chairman; and Mr. Geo. Greig, vice-chairman. It was decided to limit the membership to a five-miles radius with a half-crown annual subscription.

Burnley O.S. Members Will Take a Ramble.

At a well attended meeting, writes Mr. G. Whittaker, hon. sec., 18, Sandhurst Road, it was decided to have a ramble around Hebden Bridge and Hardcastle Crags on Sunday, Sept. 21; all fanciers are cordially invited. We intend to have a jolly day together. The society is open to receive members who preside within a radius of 11 miles. Fanciers wishing to join can do so by applying as above. Sub. 1s. per quarter.

September Cuckoos.

A young Cuckoo is still haunting the gardens in the writer's district. The old birds have departed long since, but the young remain with us until the summer is almost past. The Cuckoos constitute a large family. They all have a rather long, slender and somewhat curved beak, which in some species takes a curve so decided that it gives quite a predacious air to its owners. Examples of the Cuckoo tribe are to be found in almost every portion of the Globe, and are most plentiful about the tropics. Two American examples build nests for themselves.

Mavis Killed by Golf Ball.

Playing on the Dollar Links, Clackmannan, the other day, a lady, the wife of an Indian railway official, hit and killed a bird with an iron shot. The bird, which on examination proved to be a Song Thrush, was on the ground some 50yds. away. This is not the only incident of the kind that has occurred on this Scottish links. Some years ago a player brought down a Snipe on the wing, a feat which, though, of course, unpremeditated, will be appreciated by those who know that the Snipe is a veritable will-o'-the-wisp among birds.

British Wagtails and How to Keep Them

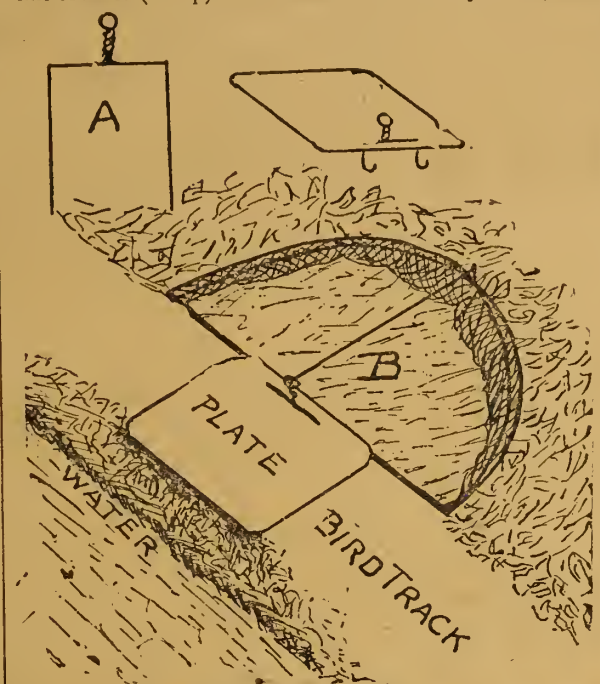
An Entertaining and Instructive Article on the Greyhound of the British Bird Fancy.

I firmly believe that many Wagtails die from sheer grief, as such a period is much too short to attribute the fatality to a lack of nourishment. Therefore, I never take a Wagtail unless I can spare time to ascertain whether its actions during the first four hours after capture justify further efforts.

This shows the danger of getting specimens from those catchers with whom getting order, a bird, and dispatching it, only total the period between the first and second process. The chances of such a bird surviving a long railway journey are remote indeed. Yet when settled down and put through a process of hardening, which I may state consists of feeding for a time, so that it ultimately gets used to a ten or twelve hours interval the Wagtail is a good traveller. It is simply applying a system to birds which has for long been applied with success to a much less intelligent subject the Whitstable oyster.



Are Wagtails a Back Number?

The Yellow Wagtail, strangely enough, despite the plenitude of the preceding species, I have only recorded one instance here of the Yellow Wagtail, though I have had quite a few futile pergrinations, owing to my informants being unable to distinguish between Grey and Yellow. This latter is the smallest of the species, and is strictly a summer visitor to our shores. That Yellow Wagtails are quite plentiful in the south may be inferred by the fact that I have known them to be hawked through the streets at sixpence, and the purchaser assured that, given plenty of seed (!) it "'ud sing it' bally yed off."

I remember when a good Yellow used to top the class at most of the Scotch shows, friend Strachan, of Bathgate, making quite a name with them, but few could beat Jim at selecting or putting down a good Waggy. I fear the advent of the Bearded Reedling, Wryneck and Dartford Warbler, has been too much for both him and the Wagtail. As with the Grey, the judicious application of a colouring agent has a beneficial effect on this species. I have the opinion that this and the White Wagtail are more delicate than the species I have already dealt with, and I therefore advise a more generous share of live food for these, care being taken to ensure a sufficient space for exercise, as they are very liable to acquire fat, more so during the moulting period when the lassitude incidental to that process becomes evident. An occasional aperient in the form of Glauber's salts has a beneficial effect in preventing this. Any extreme cold should also be guarded against, as though I have kept them in an unheated room in company with resident species, any severe spells of frost seemed to have an enervating effect, and the bath soon became an infliction, as these species like to dry quickly, and in a state of nature invariably choose sunny spells for their ablutions.

How the White Differs from the Pied.

I have recorded the White Wagtail here on one occasion, but his resemblance to the Pied may easily cause his presence to be overlooked, and it was only the purity of his whites in what appeared to be an immature Pied that led to his identificaton. Briefly, Motacilla, differs from M. lugubrious, inasmuch as the lavender-grey of the back is a permanent colour, and though, as I have stated, the latter in first winter plumage bears a very close resemblance to the white, an examination shows that the grey is not extended to the tail. The upper tail coverts (rump) of a Pied are invariably black, while in the white, these are grey. The latter is also a smaller species, and I used to smile when I read in show reports, "Nice Pied, rather small, fails in back." Such a description would indicate a White not a Pied.

MR. STEEL'S WAGTAIL TRAP.

My experiences with the White Wagtail incline me to think that he is the most intractable of the species, and subject to those stampedes which are the bane of the British bird-keeper, more especially during certain periods when a mysterious instinct calls firstly for a departure, and latterly for a mate.

How to Take Wagtails.

The method I adopt is simply to take advantage of a habit of the birds. I have noticed that Wagtails have an aversion to walking over long grass or dead leaves, and by laying small squares of sand-paper on the edges of ponds and brooks in a manner which entailed either passing over these or flying, I found they readily used them as a sort of stepping stone.

I therefore took a few of the ordinary oval Nightingale traps and substituted a tin plate about 5 inches in diameter for the usual trigger. To this plate I gave a coat of green paint, and while wet sprinkled same with fine sand, so that when dry it bore a passing resemblance to stone.

The manner of completing and using the trap is as follows: A length of wire is twisted and bent as shown in sketch A. Two holes are punched in the piece of tin plate, and the ends of the wire passed through. These ends are then bent into hooks, and the wire thus manipulated is soldered to the plate so that the loop stands upright. The hooks underneath go round the cross bar of the net trap, and the fly wire, when engaged into the loop, keeps the plate just free from the ground. The trap when set for action appears as at B. The slightest pressure on the plate releases the fly wire and the net is sprung.

They Come to the Rescue.

It is a good plan to set a few traps about two feet apart, as Wagtails have a habit of coming to the rescue of a caught companion, and more than the one may be taken. The trap should be set by the water's edge so that the plate is close to the margin, and some loose leaves or grass should be arranged around the trap itself; the birds in avoiding these walk over the tin plate. If the water is sufficiently shallow at the edge some leaves and grass can be arranged close up to the track covered by the plate and will make it the more certain that the birds will walk over it.

A Word About Britishers.

Among British species, many are none too safe for the emixed series, and though some include Chaffinches, Bullfinches, Bramblefinches, Yellow Buntings and Greenfinches in a mixed aviary, their deportment is very variable ,and they are often guilty of bird-slaughter. The popular and beautiful Goldfinch is by no means ideal in his behaviour; he is very fond of going to the seed dish, and, having satisfied his own appetite, to remain there and scare off "all and sundry." The Siskin is not much better, but is more tolerant; and if there are several feeding places not too close together, this may be included, as also may the Redpoll, Linnet, Twite, and if Softbills are required, then choose from Stonechat, Lark, Nightingale, Blackcap, and other Warblers, but most of the latter will need to be carefully wintered indoors.

In the past, when British species were almost the only birds I kept, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Siskins, and Greenfinches were successfully bred on many occasions in my aviaries.

Canaries have frequently occupied a place in small numbers in my aviary, but of late years, owing to their doing such damage to growing trees and bushes by their disbudding propensities, they have been banished. Norwich, Hartz, London Fancy, Yorkshire and Border Canaries have been wintered out of doors with me, and have successfully bred and reared their young; moreover, under these conditions all the young hatched out were successfully reared, and, with very few exceptions, all the young birds were successfully moulted. No special diet was supplied. There was simply the all round menu for all groups; egg has had no place in my aviary dietary for many years.

I think I can best pursue my subject by giving as graphic a description as I can of the "Fascinations" of a mixed series of birds as they disport themselves before one, even in a comparatively short period of time. That my sketch might be true to life, I settled myself in front of my aviary on a recent Sunday morning in a lounge chair, with sundry creature comforts, to take a few notes, and I now seek to figure the panorama of avian life which passed before me.

It is perhaps necessary for me first to say that my aviary is 26ft. by 30ft., and 14ft. high, and contains a large amount of natural cover. There are two masses of dense foliage at least six feet through, by fourteen feet high; from these masses the birds pass to and fro in the open parts and to the thinner hedge-row and isolated bushes. Near the front of the aviary is a concrete bath four feet by three.

Up in the Morning Early.

The time was early morning, and the food vessels which had just been replenished were mostly placed in open spots visible from my chair. The first birds to come into the picture were a group of Waxbills (Orange-cheeked, Grey and Gold-breasted) on the way to their matutinal ablutions, and soon they were merrily splashing away, the Gold-breast a little later on the top of a twig looking like some brilliant orange-coloured flower. Then away they flew to some seeding docks and flower-heads of grass, to which they clung, as they fed, in quite Tit-like manner, and very entrancing they were, as they swayed to and fro on some grass stem almost too fragile even for their lilliputian size. Next to arrive were the Indian White-eyes (Zosterops) with their two babies, only two days out of the nest. Thus early the young were being taught how to forage for "grub," amid the foliage of a rambler rose ("Hiawatha") in full bloom. I fear some other arrivals got overlooked as I watched the old birds taking blight and flies, and feeding their babies; very soon they were joined by the Yellow-winged Sugarbirds, and after a short "spar" all settled down to satisfy their hunger amicably, evidently being agreed that there was enough for all. Then right into the centre of the picture came my pair of Gold-fronted Fruitsuckers (we are chums and they are finger tame), and they came to the wire netting to interview me, snapping up a fly which unwisely ventured within their reach.

Still They Come.

Now events happened in quick succession, for fresh from the seed pans came Grey, Olive, and Ribbon Finches, the latter with two young ones, to slake their thirst and take a tub; soon they were joined by a hen Blue Robin, followed by some Bengalese, Bronze, and Magpie Mannikins, and Napoleon Weavers. These spread round the bath quite amicably, and drank and splashed with much gusto, but, now from the dense foliage come the Grey-winged Ouzels, accompanied by two youngsters, and, as their shadow falls upon the water, with a sudden noisy whirr of wings the small birds take to the surrounding bushes, not really alarmed, and from twigs almost over the water preen their plumage and watch the noisy, vigorous tubbing of the newcomers. Very soon the latter are joined by the Malabar Mynahs and Silky Cowbirds, and a fine picture these larger birds make. While they indulge, a pair of Argoondah Quail come from the undergrowth and take their morning drink.

As these disperse their place is taken by another troup of small birds: Gouldian, Yellowish, and Guttural Finches, and Java Sparrow, come to satisfy the cravings of nature, and to enjoy a tub. With a sudden rush these disperse, giving place to a fine Virginian Cardinal which has seen many years of cage and aviary life. He is soon joined by a pair of Pied Wagtails (handreared birds), which had been in the picture previously as they hawked flies overhead or searched for them amid the grass and herbage. Now they have come to drink and bathe with all that display of grace and elegance for which the Motacillidæ are famous and in which they are not surpassed by any other group of birds.

The Rarest Among the Rare.

Now another bird comes into view, a skulking bird, appearing and disappearing, and giving one but momentary glimpses of his elegance and agility. It is the Yellow-naped Ixulus, a largish White-eye, clad in browns, ochre, and white, with a Cardinal-like crest and a very Tit-like demeanour. Only one other aviculturist possesses this species at the present time, I think. For a short time nothing is seen of the birds save an odd one here and there as it changes its position amid the dense foliage; then arrive, shall I say, the gems of my collection, viz., a pair of Plumbeous Redstarts, charmingly graceful birds, with "perpetual motion" tails. They daintily alight from the twigs and pick their way through the grass and herbage, snapping up every now and again some unfortunate fly or other insect as they too come "to water." Their thirst satisfied, and ablutions completed, they sun themselves and flick their tails with true Redstart movement, up and down, and cris-cross, with unwearying grace and elegance that defies description.

Questions and Answers.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff as ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

CAUSE OF ENTERITIS—CORRECTION.—In this reply to "C.B.H." in last issue the words "one drop of Tysol" should read one drop of Lysol. Will querist please note?

SORE FEET (A. Thompson).—You ought to have said how and where the birds are kept, as there must be some common cause of the feet going as you describe and the toes dropping off, and this cause must be removed before treatment will do any permanent good. But your letter gives no clue whatever as to the probable cause. Try the following treatment for two or three weeks, and if no improvement takes place in that time, write again and give full particulars about how and where the birds are kept, and whether in separate cages or together in a flight. Keep cage floor and perches as clean as possible. It would be an advantage to keep floor well strewn with clean fine sawdust for the present, and supply gritty sand in a small shallow tin in one corner of cage floor. Bathe the feet daily in a lukewarm concentrated solution of boracic acid—that is, dissolve as much of the acid in warm water as it will take up. After bathing a few minutes, dry carefully, and anoint feet all over with Lanocyllin. Feed on the ordinary diet frequently given in this column, and add a small pinch of Epsom salts to the water for three days.

ROLLER PLUCKING FEATHERS (Associate).—First of all examine the bird well for the presence of grey lice, and the cage for indications of red mites. If either are discovered, take the necessary steps to exterminate them. Whether grey lice are present or not it would be very useful, if you are expert at hand-washing, to wash the bird and add a teaspoonful of ercolin to each pint of the first two waters used. See that it is kept in a cosy and fairly equable place, well ventilated, but not exposed to direct draughts. Give a staple diet of a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Every third day give in addition a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw. On the intervening days give one day a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts niger, millet, linseed, teazle, and broken groats and a spray of watercress, and next day a morsel of banana. If any mealworms are available give one each day, killed, and fastened on end of perch for it to peck at; if none are handy, stick a morsel of the rind of boiled pork or bacon in the wires for it to peck at instead. In the water add as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence, and half as much chlorate of potash every third day; continue the treatment for two or three weeks as may appear necessary.

NOT RESUMED SINGING (Jake).—It is rather early yet for birds to resume singing after moulting, especially if they are not quite young. I think also you may be mistaken in thinking they have been quite through the moult some time—that would mean that all must have begun uncommonly early. Perhaps you mean they have ceased dropping feathers for some time, but the moult is not quite complete for a month or so after feathers cease dropping. Treat your birds a little generously for a few weeks, cage the cocks you wish to bring in song separately, and have just a little patience, and I fancy things will come right before long. In addition to the staple of canary seed, give a pinch of summer rape every second day, on the alternate days a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, or a little egg-food, and twice a week a little seed mixture. In the water add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

LOSS OF SIGHT (Mrs. Stanley).—Sorry, but the prospects of curing the bird are by no means rosy. Try what the following treatment for a time will do. Make a lotion by dissolving 10 grains of sulphate of zinc and 30 grains of boric acid in an ounce of rose water, and add three ounces of distilled, or well-boiled water. also get a chemist to mix you two grains of red oxide of mercury in a quarter-ounce of spermaceti. Each morning take a little of the lotion separately and a small wad of cotton wool, and carefully bathe the eyes for a minute or two. Then absorb surplus moisture and put in each eye a tiny scrap of the mercurial ointment—about the size of a pin's head. Repeat the ointment at night, but not the bathing. Keep a close watch over the bird to see that it does not become pestered with grey lice, as is often the case with birds recently become blind. If this occurs hand-washing is the best remedy. To combat the wasting condition stick a morsel of crusty bread scalded with milk and sprinkled with soft sugar in the wires daily, in such a position that the bird will find it easily.

ABSENCE OF TAIL (H.T., Dublin).—If this bird has been hatched this year the tail feathers must have been plucked out, or lost forcibly by some accident, as birds of the year do not moult the tail feathers. As regards the possibility of the feathers being reproduced this will certainly happen in a short time irrespective of whether the loss arose from plucking or being knocked out by accident. You should see the new feathers showing well through in three weeks from the time the original feathers were lost. If they do not appear in, say, a month, catch the bird and examine it to see if the feathers have merely broken off and left the stumps of quills in the skin. If this is so, carefully extract the stumps, three or four at each operation, and allow four or five days to intervene between each operation. Do not mistake newly sprouting quills for old stumps, as if you plucked a new quill just growing you would do much mischief. You should not keep the bird in an open wire cage in front of a window if you value its health or comfort. Keep it in a bright, well-ventilated position which is free from direct draughts by all means, but let it be further in the room where the temperature is more equable than it is in front of a window.

BIRDS DYING (A. Snow).—I am strongly inclined to think you have an infectious disease among your birds, and would advise you to send the body of the next that dies to Mr. Yates for post mortem, and thus make yourself certain on this point. Meantime get the Nutshell booklet, No. 9, on "Disinfection," and thoroughly disinfect all cages wherein deaths have occurred, and all food and water vessels. Also isolate all apparently healthy birds (assuming they are flying together in aviaries or flights) from ailing or suspected specimens, and if either of these show signs of illness after isolation at once place it back, cage and all, with the affected birds to take its chance. Keep cages and all appliances as scrupulously clean as possible, and see that all foods employed are sound and sweet. Keep in a comfortable temperature. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this give a little bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar every second day, and on the alternate days a morsel of banana and pinch of maw seed. Twice a week give a small quantity of a mixture of equal parts niger, millet, linseed, teazle, and broken groats, twice each week. Limit the diet to this for a time and withhold egg-food. In the drinking water dissolve as much Epsom Salts as will cover a sixpence for one day, and after this in each tablespoonful of water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea, ditto of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. Give this in place of the usual drinking water every second day for a fortnight.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

GREYPATES FOR MULING (J. S. Gibbs).—Your Greypates may turn out to be cocks, but I do not think you are wise in relying upon what you are told as to their sex. If you have bought a certain number for Hybrid purposes, anticipating that they will all be of the stronger sex, I would advise you to make sure by adding to your number if you have the opportunity to do so, for out of half a dozen selected birds one or two are almost certain to deceive you. They should be now breaking into moult, but it will not be until the head is finished that you will be able to sex them with any certainty, although an expert could probably give a shrewd guess by their size, carriage, wings, etc., before they arrive at the finished stage. You must feed them well just now, and give them plenty of opportunities for bathing if you want them to go through quickly and well. Our Nutshell Booklet on "How to Moult British Birds," or the one on the "Goldfinch" would give you a lot of useful information. (2) You would be able to breed from them next season. Let them fly with the hen Canaries all the winter, or run them in with their partners occasionally.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

BLACKCAPS WHEEZY (Anxious).—Your letter raises the suspicion that you are not feeding your Blackcaps as they should be fed, but as you say nothing as to this detail I am doubtful as to what advice I can give you. Will you please write again with full particulars, or, better still, get Nutshell No. 25, the smaller Insectivorous Birds, 2½d. post free, from our office, or twopence from your local newsagent or bird-dealer. This will give you much valuable information as to the proper keeping of a Blackcap, and many other Insectivorous Birds.

NAME OF BIRD (W. W. Duncan).—The body sent was that of a Chiff-Chaff, one of the very earliest of our migratory birds, and one of the last to leave us in the autumn; in fact, some stay with us throughout the winter. The bird is strictly insectivorous in its feeding, and only those with considerable experience in the proper treatment of insectivorous birds should attempt its keeping.

GREENFINCH AND SHOW CONDITION (Scestu).—Being myself responsible for the Nutshell on the Greenfinch, I can only express my regret at hearing that you are unable to grasp the plain directions therein given. Briefly, proper feeding, free access to a daily bath of clean soft water, perfect cleanliness in its cage, and, finally, a skilful hand-washing, all go to the getting of a Greenfinch, or any other bird for that matter, into the height of show condition. All these items, except the details of the hand-washing, are very fully set forth in the Nutshell, and the hand-washing is best learnt by attending such exhibitions of the process as are given from time to time at meetings of bird societies, and afterwards practising for oneself. As you say your bird has not long been caught it would be unlikely to hold its own this coming season with birds that have been skilfully kept for two or more seasons.

GOLDFINCH WILD (Clinging, W. L.).—Your bird is probably a freshly-caught one, and will settle down in due course. The moult, which should now be in course of progress, will help to steady it, and you should get it used to your coming and going. Make a point of offering it some dainty every time you approach the cage. Find out something which it especially likes—a thistle head, a spray of shepherd's purse, a grain or two of hemp, or any of the many things to which Goldfinches are partial—and never go near it without one of these tit-bits. You must not expect it to take things from your hand; just leave in its cage whatever you take to it, and it will soon learn to associate your coming with something nice to eat. If, which is unlikely, it is an old bird which has contracted the habit of clinging to the wires, you will find it very difficult to eradicate the fault.

GOLDFINCH WITH ASTHMA (Miss Haines).—Asthma of any considerable duration is one of the most troublesome of diseases to eradicate. Your treatment, having been so far successful in ameliorating the symptoms, should be persevered with. Or you might get made up at the chemist's a mixture as follows: Oxymel of Squills and glycerine, two drachms each; ipecacuanha wine and chlorodyne, one drachm each; potassium iodide, eight grs. Give 10 to 15 drops in the water occasionally, leaving off for a few days if bird appears over drowsy under the treatment. Keep the bowels moving by giving a gentle aperient once or twice a week—either half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's fluid magnesia in the drinking water, or as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence. Keep the bird in an equable temperature, free from all draughts, and give freshly gathered wild seeds if these are obtainable. It is only to be expected that the moult should be a slow process in the circumstances, but if you keep the bird comfortably warm and treat as above it should get through all right.

BIRDS IN A LARGE CAGE (C. E. A. Andrews).—The "easiest small birds to keep" would be a collection of small foreigners—Waxbills of sorts, small Finches of various kinds, Mannikins, etc. The food for these need only be white and spray millet and canary seed, with flowering grass from the lawn or meadow. Prices are quite reasonable; from 2/6 a pair upwards, and the choice is considerable, as you will see upon reference to our advt. columns. You might keep about a dozen of these small birds in such a cage as yours. You should get Mr. Page's "Foreign birds for beginners," 1/1½ post free from our office; this will give you much useful information. If expense is so much of a consideration that the cost of a collection of small foreigners would be too much, then you could make up a nice little lot of British Finches for quite a nominal sum, say a Siskin, Redpoll, Linnet, Greenfinch, Goldfinch, Bullfinch, and Chaffinch. These seven would be about enough for your cage, and you would need for their keeping, canary seed, rape, cracked sunflower, teazle, and charlock, with a little hemp, maw, and niger, and also a separate tin of a good Finch mixture, containing wild seeds. The birds would require also such freshly gathered wild seeds as you could obtain—dandelion, plantain, shepherd's purse, flowering grass, thistle, etc. Insectivorous birds, whether British or Foreign, would be out of the question upon three grounds, expense of buying, expense of food, and want of experience in their proper keeping.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

BIRDS FOR CAGES (C. B. H.).—You cannot do better than give one cage up to Waxbills, and these are better kept in pairs, say Grey, Gold-breasted, and Orange-cheeked Waxbills and Avadavats (2/6 to 5/6 pair). Put in some small twiggy branches as perches, and hang four small rush nests round the cage, near the top. Canary, white millet, spray millet, green food, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing will about meet their need. A pinch of maw seed is beneficial occasionally, as is also a little slightly damped and crumbled sponge cake. Our Nutshells Nos. 16 and 20, 2½d. post free from our Manager, would tell you all about above species. In the other cage you could keep cocks only—Grey Singing Finch (5/-), Alario Finch (7/6), Green Singing Finch (6/-), Spice Finch (2/-), Napoleon Weaver (5/- to 6/-, in colour), and Tri-coloured Mannikin (2/6). The same dietary would suffice with a little British Finch mixture in a separate tin, and for such as cared for them, a mealworm each morning and evening regularly would be beneficial. I should furnish this cage also with twiggy branches for perching accommodation. Keep the cages where the occupants will get plenty of light and air, with immunity from draught.

RING-NECKED PARRAKEET (R. Foster).—A seed mixture of one quart each canary and white millet, one pint each hemp and oats, and half-a-pint of small maize; well mix and keep a supply in cage continually. Also give some kind of ripe fruit daily (you must be guided by birds' taste in this). Sweet apple is very wholesome. Shelled nuts (various) should be given to vary the diet at odd intervals, also pieces of plain sweet biscuit, plain cake, or stale crust of household bread; greenfood, such as lettuce, grass flowers, groundsel, chickweed, etc. Grit, cuttlebone, and water must be regularly supplied.

BUDGERIGARS (Puzzled).—I should get another pair of Budgies and a hen Madagascar (Grey-headed) Lovebird, and hang up half-a-dozen husks in various positions about the cage. In due course, when in breeding condition, the birds will go to nest. Diet: Canary and white millet seed in equal parts, and a few oats twice weekly. A millet spray occasionally is also appreciated. Green food, such as lettuce, flowering grass, groundsel, chickweed, to be liberally supplied when available. Grit, cuttlebone, and water to be regularly supplied. There is considerable variation in the time individual pairs take to settle down, but once this occurs then they will continue to bring up several broods annually. If you do not desire to get a mate for the Lovebird of its own species, then you must put in an extra female Budgie and leave matters to take their course, but in so limited a space there must be no odd birds; sexes must be equal. I had a Madagascar Lovebird-Budgerigar Hybrid hatched out in my aviary, but, unfortunately, it got drowned the day after it left the nest.

RED-BILLED AND OTHER WEAVERS (Weaver).—The female Redbill is brown above with dark centres to the feathers; cheeks, and under-parts buff, whitish in centre of abdomen; beak deep reddish-ochre. The male closely resembles the female when out of colour. The beaks of Madagascar and Grenadier Weavers are black, therefore cannot be confused with the Redhill. The plumage of most of the female Weavers is very similar and may be said to range from tawny or buffish-brown to Linnet brown. The plumage of the hen Madagascar is dull brown, with dark brown centres to the feathers of the upper parts, and well defined eye-marks; below, yellowish, paler at base of the abdomen, and with indistinct streaks on the flanks; male similar, but colour brighter and markings bolder; beak black. The female Grenadier is tawny-brown with black shaft streaks and a well defined yellowish eyebrow streak; below, pale tawny-brown with darker streaks, except on throat and abdomen, middle of abdomen yellowish.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON (W. H.).—You are diluting the glyco-thymoline about right, and what reaches other parts of the body will do no harm. Providing it is a cold the bird is suffering from the squills mixture is quite in order, but the heavy breathing may very probably be digestive troubles, which I assumed when I gave reply in last issue, and I note you are carrying it out. Keep the bowels moving quite freely, but not watery-loose. Keep it warm, yet where it will get light and air without draught. If it is tame enough an hour or two of liberty outside its cage will be of benefit. If the door is fastened up it will come out of its own accord and then return later for food, when the door can be easily closed. Report progress two or three weeks hence.

ARRANGING CAGES (Poor Paddy.)—(1) I am of the opinion that you will get more out of your cages by keeping them separate and making the large cage one compartment by taking out the partitions. It would be a good plan to screen one division of the large cage with thin wood or cardboard panels, to be held in place by small buttons on cage framing, and a glass panel for the other side fixed in the same way. A piece of flat board could lie over top. If a round hole were bored in the centre, large enough to go over the apex of dome, this would keep it in place and it would give the birds sheltered retiring quarters when they required them. (2) If you adopt this arrangement you should give the small cage up to the Java Sparrows (these birds are sometimes vicious towards smaller species in a confined space) and give the large cage to the smaller birds. Do not include Cockatiels. A nice assortment would be pairs each of Avadavats, Bib Finches, Gold-breasted Waxbills, Zebra Finches, and Silverbills. All are cheap and pretty or beautiful birds. I should advise fixing up about eight rush nests about the cage (3 small and 5 medium) as nest receptacles, and supply hay, grass, and a little moss as building material. Use only twiggy branches for perching accommodation.

BUDGERIGARS, HOW MANY? (E. Burns).—(1) You could put in three pairs, but only two would be better, as you have to consider the encroachments on your space while young are being reared. There never ought to be more than 15 (young and adults) in your cage at once. (2) Get husks, ready wired, for Budgerigars (these are regularly advertised in our columns). You must put up half-a-dozen. There should then be no quarrelling over a favoured husk. No nesting material is required, as after removing the inside fibre according to their fancy, they deposit their eggs on the bottom of the unlined husk. (3) Canary seed and white millet in equal parts; a few oats several times weekly, and green food ad lib., lettuce, flowering (seeding) grass, chickweed, etc. Grit, cuttlebone, and water must be regularly in the cage. So narrow an aviary would be the better for a wood and glass shutter to be put before it during the night time, or the birds may be badly scared by cats. The shutter should also be used to keep out driving rain and snow; also during day and night of very cold weather, though the shutter must be so arranged that ample ventilation without draught is provided.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination need be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. M. Covan.—Enteritis causes death, with extensive congestion of both lungs. The latter no doubt hastened the course of the disease, but had nothing to do with its causation. The bowel condition had arisen from the intaking of impurities in the food.

S. McDonald.—Impaction of the bowels, the organs were heavily packed with undigested food; your reference to German table seed is in a measure correct, being indigestible if given too liberally; it does not, however, necessarily eat away the liver. This is impossible, only indirectly being rich in oil. It would set up fatty degenerative changes in this organ if fed too freely and for any length of time. Treatment is preventive by lessening its quantity, and giving glauber salts in the drinking water.

E. Wilson.—Congestion of lungs following on a chill.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

F. H. Marhoff.—Many thanks; shall be pleased to utilise in the near future.

Name of Bird (R. Davison).—Your bird is a Rosecate Cockatoo, quite a different bird from a Rosella and not nearly so valuable. It is very rare that Roseate Cockatoos make good talkers.

Benevolent Birds.

Interesting Anecdotes of Curious Happenings in Bird-land.

In last week's "Referee," the entertaining writer of the "Sporting Notions" therein says:—I know that many Refereaders are enthusiastic about Natural History, and if they have not read Mr. W. H. Hudson's "Adventures Among Birds," I cordially recommend them to obtain that fascinating volume, which I have been studying with delight. There are all sorts of quaint stories in it about the author's feathered friends and acquaintances, and other fowl of various descriptions whose proceedings have been related to him by credible witnesses.

Jack and His Master.

One of Mr. Hudson's anecdotes is of a young Jackdaw who was picked up by a little boy and carefully tended; but the bird, for some reason or other best known to himself and not revealed to the author, did not care much for his rescuer, while conceiving a violent affection for another little boy who lived in the next cottage. The bird would not leave this chosen companion, regularly followed him to school, and by his attentions made himself a nuisance to those who did not sympathise with him.

Near Penzance there lived a Thrush, the victim of an accident which had destroyed his beak so that he could not feed himself, and the kindly office of feeding him was undertaken by a friendly Thrush, who gave him his meals with pleasing regularity. Yet another benevolent bird was a certain Magpie, who formed the acquaintance of a Robin, like the Thrush, a sufferer from a mishap. The Magpie not only provided food for the Redbreast, but broke it up into little pieces so that the tiny bird had no difficulty in dealing with it.

Strange Story of Affectionate Swan.

Even stranger than these stories is that of a certain Swan of a curiously affectionate disposition. In the first place he attached himself to a girl who lived in the house on the estate which contained his aquatic residence. Whenever she went near the lake he at once made for her, remaining until she left. She often used to sit on the bank and sketch, to the great delight of the bird. No doubt, if she had cared about it, he would joyfully have been as serviceable to her as Lohengrin's Swan was to him; but apparently there was no little gilded boat in which she wanted to be pulled about among her possessions. When she left, the Swan, searching about for another friend, selected a gardener, and constituted himself this man's associate. He, too, went away, and—this is strangest of all—the bird then fell in love with a trout! The fish could be seen beneath the surface of the water with the Swan gently swimming round about him or peaceably resting in his vicinity. One day a man caught the fish, and the Swan attacked him furiously These are only some of Mr. Hudson's anecdotes.

Sealing Up His Wife.

I am told that many of the Indian birds have extraordinary habits and customs, and I should imagine none more so than the Hornbill. The description of his matrimonial proceedings was related to me by a fellow-guest in the house where I lately stayed for the York Meeting—certainly a credible witness. There is no reason why I should not give my authority.—Sir John Hewett, who until last year was Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces of Agra and Oude. He assures me that when Mrs. Hornbill has laid her eggs her husband shuts her up—not as human husbands do by making rude remarks, but literally.

Presumably in years gone by it must have come to be recognised that Mrs. Hornbill—speaking generally—was invcterately given to gadding about instead of attending to her domestic duties. The husband therefore obtains the requisite materials and encloses her in an establishment—it is something much more than a nest—from which she cannot escape. There is just room for her head to come out of a little hole which, in constructing the place, he thoughtfully leaves for her in front; and there she has to remain until the family emerge from their shells. Of course he feeds her punctually and sufficiently.

How she is released when the proper time comes I forgot to inquire, and one would much like to know, for this outside shell, one would think, must have been hard and difficult to break. I give my authority. If anyone knows anything quainter than this about birds it would be interesting to hear it.

[The mother bird leaves her nest when the young are about three weeks old, breaking down with her beak the substance which is partially blocking the entrance hole. The latter is then again sealed up, and remains so until the young Hornbills are ready to face the dangers and difficulties of the outer world. This "glueing up" (a gastric secretion resembling vegetable resin, which is combined with woody fragments of fruit, is said by Mr. Hose to be used by the Rhinoceros Hornbill, of Borneo; but Mr. Frank Finn, in one of his works, speaks of the female using her own dung) is adopted as a safeguard against predaceous carnivora, etc. —Editor, CAGE BIRDS.]

Rare-feathered Birds in Hampshire.

Victims of the Man with the Gun.

Sir,—It might be interesting to some of your readers to know that many cases of rare-feathered birds have occurred this season in Hampshire. In the establishment of Mr. Yeoman, taxidermist, Southampton, can be seen a splendid pure white hen Woodpigeon, shot in the neighbourhood of Romsey; the most particular thing about this specimen is that it had blue, and not the usual pink eyes. He also has a cinnamon and white Plover, also a hen, which was seen in the neighbourhood of Eastleigh for some time before it fell to the gunner. Then there is a cinnamon Willow Wren, captured in the neighbourhood of Lymington, and various other pied birds have found their way into Mr. Yeoman's shop during the past few weeks.

A Red-Letter Day at Llanelly.

Two Nearly Clear Goldfinch Mules.

Sir,—I would like to thank, through the medium of your valuable paper, the members and friends of the Llanelly and District C.B.S. for the kind and welcome reception they gave me and my son on my visit on Saturday last. On our arrival we were met and escorted around several of the bird-rooms, and I was quite pleased to see the way in which they were kept, cleanliness and neatness being the order of the day. I noticed several promising youngsters among the stocks, and it looks as if the Westerners are going to be a bit "warm" this coming show season. There have been also two practically clear Finch Mules bred there. Stick to them, boys. At 6.30 we wended our way to the society's headquarters, where a grand meat tea was laid, and everyone did justice to it. No wonder they look so jolly! After tea a presentation was made on behalf of the members to their old colleague, Mr. Thomas Gregory, of a beautiful smoking cabinet, as a token of appreciation of his past services. Then came songs and speeches galore. It was a red-letter-day for the Llanelly Society. I wish the members (and CAGE BIRDS too) the success they deserve.

Have Birds a Sense of Smell?

Sir,—In reply to your correspondent's query of Sept. 6, I think I am right in saying that Wild Ducks and Geese have proved, beyond doubt, to possess the power of smell, but that Finches, and indeed the majority of birds, are wholly without it. I notice in another part of your paper that the Hermit Thrush is stated to possess no song. Surely this is a mistake, for the bird to which the name is commonly applied is one of the most beautiful of American songsters, though not, in my opinion, superior to our Blackbird.

E. T. (Carlisle).

Sir,—In reply to your correspondent, "W. M.," I would say that I have tried quite a few experiments in order to ascertain whether this sense is highly developed in birds, and am of the opinion that if it exists it must surely be in a very minor degree. Some of the experiments which force me to that conclusion were as follows: After withholding food from Gulls till they were really hungry, I found they entirely failed to locate the presence of rancid fish, though the same was simply concealed by a piece of perforated newspaper. Secondly, enlisting the services of a friend, whose experiments in chemistry have earned him a name for raising stinks, I challenged him to do his worst. Whew! That vile smell haunts me still! Sulphuretted hydrogen, he named it. Suffice to say, it nearly stopped the village clock, and might have caused a shipwreck by affecting the compass of a passing steamer. Inhabitants fled to the hills, yet Sparrows placidly partook of food which was only separated from the source of that aroma by a piece of perforated zinc. Another, which I can recommend as a valuable means of dispersing any gathering of shricking sisterhood and blithering brothers, is asafœtida; this hums to heaven, yet Starlings dined contentedly of food which was saturated with it. These were smells which might have been sketched, and compared with which gentles, dried flies, and silkworm pupæ are as attar of roses. No, friend "W. M.," it takes something stronger in smell than colour feed to cause food to be rejected by birds, at least that is my opinion.

Do Mules Make Good Call Birds?

Sir,—As an amateur catcher would you allow me to inquire through CAGE BIRDS if anyone could tell me whether a hen Goldfinch Mule will be any good for catching Goldfinches? I have tried mine by putting it in the nets, but the Finches don't take any notice of its call. Would it be more profitable to use a hen Goldfinch?

The First Open Show of the Abertillery C.B.S.

Sir,—Our society is looking forward to a good show on Oct. 22. We have a good number of specials, and the members are working hard to make the affair a success. We have 34 classes, six being for novices in Yorkshires and Norwich. Mr. R. Cleaves has guaranteed a Bullfinch class, so I hope that all British bird fanciers will make a note of this. Mr. J. H. Roo is judge. I may say that the schedules will be ready shortly. Will members desiring coupons of the CAGE BIRDS Championship Scheme acquaint me at their earliest (expect I shall want to repeat my order, Mr. Editor, in a week or so's time). I hope the fanciers around Monmouthshire, Glamorganshire, etc., will give us a good entry, as it is our first show. The members are old fanciers, so all fanciers can depend upon the exhibits being taken good care of and packed safely for the return journey.

GEO. BROOME, Hon. Sec.

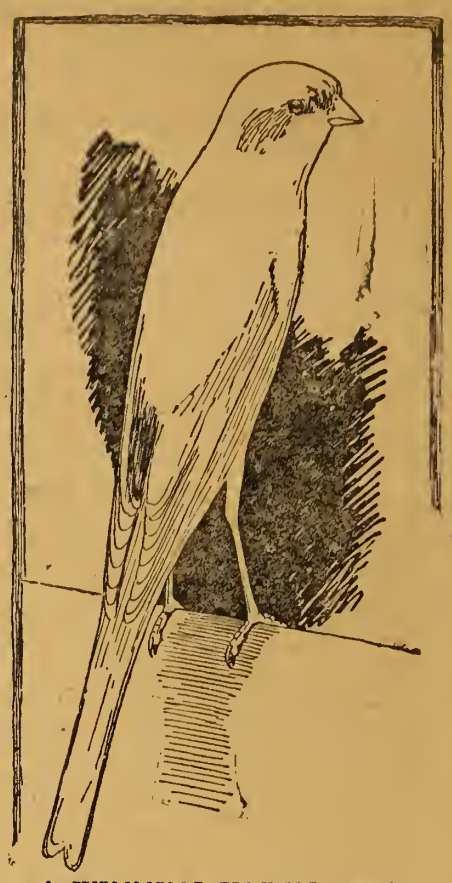
Can Show Schedules be Dispensed with?

Sir,—The show season is again upon us, and before show secretaries place their orders for schedules, I am once again going to ask them to consider the advisability of advertising their schedule of classes in CAGE BIRDS. If it was advertised for a couple of weeks prior to the show, I am sure that it would be cheaper, because, in addition to the printer's bill, there are the stamps for sending the schedules out to exhibitors, not to mention the time expended in addressing them. Then, again, the classification reaches a greater public than it does by the sending of schedules to a few exhibitors. Another point: Many a time a fancier sees a show advertised, and he thinks he would like to exhibit, yet it is perhaps too late to send for a schedule, or he will not take the trouble. Many fanciers will not trouble to send for a schedule, but if the classification be advertised, all they need to do is to open their CAGE BIRDS and see if the classes suit them. The entry form question could be got over; the exhibitor could, for that matter, enter on a blank sheet of paper. Now societies, wake up, and don't let the printer's bill prejudice your chances of making your show pay.

SUB ROSA.

The Song of the Roller Canary.

Are there Gramophone Records?



Sir,—Through your valuable paper, I would very much like to glean a little information. Last season I imported several pairs of Rollers, and have bred with them; the offspring I have endeavoured to train. I imported for this purpose two bird-organs, but I find they get out of order very frequently, and become useless. I have had one away for repairs, but no one out here seems to understand the instrument, and it has struck me very forcibly that an idea for training the Roller would be the gramophone. What I wish to know is, can any one inform me if there are any records for sale with the Roller song; and, if so, where can they be obtained? I certainly see no difficulty in obtaining the song of the bird on a record, when any of the singing contests are being held, and I feel certain it would prove a far more reliable instrument than the bird organ I have had to deal with. I have had four now, and each has proved a failure. I shall esteem it a great favour if this information can be furnished. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

A WINNING YORKSHIRE.

This fine, upstanding variegated bird won 2nd prize at Clapham Show, for Mr. P. Rorke, of Fulham.

Bristol F.A. Still to the Front.

Sir,—It appeared at one time that last year's loss, following on so many earlier ones, had about finished us. However, all were paid in full (except an amount still due to myself), and I have obtained a substantial guarantee fund to enable us to run a show again on Nov. 26 and 27. I hope, however, that it may not be necessary to call upon that fund. Exhibitors surely ought to remember that, while some shows have saved themselves by deducting a portion of prize-money, we have done nothing of the kind. We have paid up in full, as the result of personal sacrifice.

G. T. H. MAGGS.

A Twenty-years Old Linnet.

Sir,—I have just heard of a common Brown Linnet which died here, Stafford, last week, aged twenty years. The owner is Mr. A. Cooper, of Foregate Square, Stafford. He bought the bird as a fresh-caught youngster. The bird was kept in a small open cage (known as a singing-cage) and was fed on ordinary packet-seeds. It was a good singer, and never had any illness up to about 18 months ago, when it began to have fits, but would be all right again next day. He had not bred with it; in fact, he is not what we call a "fancier," only keeping a bird because it was a bird. Anyhow, I am convinced the bird was well attended to, and rewarded its owner in song. How he knows its age is this way. One of his neighbours was presented with his first child, a son, and that son has turned 19 years of age now, and he bought the bird the same day; so you see the bird must have been twenty years of age when it died. The Linnet always had a quick moult, and at ordinary times never seemed short of a feather.

GEORGE GIBBONS.

What is the Matter with Members' Shows?

Sir,—The other week in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, there appeared a very interesting letter under the above heading, by "Looker On." This letter, to my mind, provides serious thought for bird fanciers, and it is on a subject I should like to see taken up. I noticed the following week a reply by "Forward," but I cannot see him even "Marking Time"; he meant "Standing Still." It will be seen that "Looker On" is a fancier, and a local one at that. Now, can we not ask him to meet, say, the committees of the various local bird societies (or delegates from each society) and explain his views more fully? At the same time, perhaps some of the others, including "Forward" and high officials will come and give their views. I think there wants something doing to our clubs, and "Looker On" is quite right in most of his views. What is more disheartening to a fancier than having the class to himself at these members' shows? Of course, a lot of the fault lies with the members; they will not show and make the thing a success. I, for one, made up my mind long ago to give over showing at members' shows until they were run differently. However, if Manchester could run shows as "Looker On" suggests, I should soon alter my resolution. I might say that I usually sent a good entry. I do not want anyone to run away with the idea that I want the small societies to join in with one big society. I contend we have some small societies as good as, if not better, than the larger ones. What I should like to see is one good large sound club of fanciers helping one another instead of the present-day small cliques. I was at a club meeting the other night, and the chairman made a very good speech on this subject, but I am sorry to say he was not appreciated (by one or two) as he deserved to be. The reason may have been that there were some "Forwards," etc., there, who were tired, anxious to be going home. However, this subject, I think, will be on the agenda for next meeting, so perhaps we shall hear more of it. I will sign my name, in case a lot of "bullets" hit the wrong mark, and cause ill-feeling.

A Hoopoe Caught in the North of Scotland.

Sir,—I was considerably surprised to read in a local paper that a Hoopoe had been captured at Wick, right at the far North of Scotland. The account says: A specimen of this rare visitant was recently captured off Wick under somewhat peculiar conditions. The crew of the boat Loch Loy, of Embo, while engaged in fishing operations about 25 miles east of the port, noticed an unusual commotion amongst the Gulls. As the skipper graphically put it, "All the 'maws' in the sea were there." The cause of the disturbance proved to be a strange bird, which they were all engaged in pursuing. Ultimately the stranger alighted on the rudder head of the boat, and his assailants dispersed. The fisherman, now taking a hand in the game, tried to capture the bird, which, however, evaded them. Immediately it had left the boat the Gulls returned reinforced by a Skua, and resumed their persecutions. There was no other course left but to return to the boat, and by this time, thoroughly exhausted, the feathered stranger was easily captured by the crew. Although every effort was made to keep it alive, it succumbed after a few hours, apparently from exhaustion. Some half a dozen specimens of the Hoopoe are recorded from the northern counties; but there is no knowledge of any having been got at sea. Morris in his book mentions one as having been secured on board of a boat at Bridlington Bay. The bird captured off Wick was in splendid plumage and quite uninjured. It has been acquired for the local museum, and is now in the hands of the taxidermist.

TWELVE DAYS TOO EARLY.

Extension of the Close Season in Herefordshire.

At Watford Petty Sessions W. Kirton and H. Ward were summoned for having wild birds in their possession, contrary to the Wild Birds' Protection Act, 1880. Defendants pleaded guilty.

William Gristwood, a keeper in the employ of Lord Ebury, said that on Aug. 4 he was in Moor Park about 1.45 in the afternoon, when he saw the two men on the railway bank and in the wood. Witness kept a certain place under observation, but defendants did not cross the spot. Defendants were in a spinney nearly all the afternoon. Witness waited for them till about 5.30. When defendants came out witness stopped them with fifteen birds in their possession.

The magistrates' clerk said that in Hertfordshire the close season for birds extended to Aug. 6.

Defendants said that they did not know of the extension of the close season under the Act. They had been accustomed to coming to Rickmansworth bird catching for some years.

The Chairman said that they did not want to see the defendants again. They would have to pay the costs.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

OUR CHAMPIONSHIP SCHEME IS A GREAT SUCCESS.

It appeals both to Champions and Novices: It benefits both Societies and Exhibitors.

Exhibitors everywhere mean to share in the $200 cash specials: plenty of opportunities (see list of Coupon Shows on page 158) and chances for all, as no one can "Scoop the Pool."

WE have again the pleasure of publishing a goodly list of "new arrivals" desirous of participating in the benefits attaching to our Championship Scheme. The names received during the past week include:

Bangor (Co. Down) C.B.S.
Birmingham (City of) C.B.S.
Bristol F.A.
Frome F.A.
Hanley C.B.S.
Newcastle C.B.S.
Pontypridd F. and F.S.
Walsall C.B.S.

Some Views and Some Orders.

My society is taking up your Championship Scheme. Please send me, as a first instalment, sixty coupons. We wish you success.—J. H. Jones, hon. sec., City of Birmingham C.B.S.

Kindly send me 60 coupons, for which I enclose cash.—H. Clegg, sec., Halifax O.S.

Please send me 14 more coupons.—T. E. Pyman, joint sec., Hartlepool C.B.S.

Your Championship Scheme was brought up at our last meeting and all present expressed their intention of supporting it.—W. Connelly, sec., Glasgow and Western Counties C.B.S.

Our members unanimously decided to go in for Cage Birds Championship Scheme at our show.—E. Cowling, sec., Morpeth C.B.S.

I have not written before re Championship Scheme, owing to not having had a good meeting for months, but members rallied round at the last meeting and were greatly in favour of your scheme. Please send me 50 coupons.—C. J. Robinson, sec., Hanley C.B.S.

Your Coupon Scheme ought to prove a big success for exhibitors in all sections.—E. Barker (Long Eaton).

In addition we have had a large number of orders from fanciers buying direct, and quite a considerable number of repeat orders from secretaries whose members have already appropriated all their stocks. The success of the scheme is thoroughly assured, and we are delighted to think that our efforts to increase the interest attaching to the coming season's shows have been so splendidly appreciated and bid fair to succeed beyond our most sanguine expectations.

One or two points are raised this week by correspondents. Mr Clegg, the sec. of Halifax O.S., writes: "I have been asked how a competitor will stand if he sends more than one team out on the same day to more than one coupon show and is lucky enough to win at both?" If he wins with two different varieties (i.e., a Yorkshire and a Norwich, or a Yorkshire and a British bird, etc.) he will, of course, take the cash special at each show and a diploma for each variety. If, however, he is lucky enough to win at the two shows with the same variety (i.e., two Yorkshires, or two Norwich, etc.) he can take the two cash specials but only one diploma; note rule 7. If the latter rather unlikely event comes to pass, then the remaining diploma in the section in question will go to the runner-up nominated by the judge.

Mr. Steel (Queen's Park) asks whether he can enter two Scot's Fancies and two Borders at the final show (the Palace) only. My birds, he explains, are late, and are never fit much before February. This would be contrary to the rules, which make it clear that the splendid special prizes to be offered at the Crystal Palace are confined to the birds of exhibitors who have won a diploma at one or other of the coupon shows held prior to the Palace. We venture to think, however, that Mr. Steel will find more than one coupon show at which to secure the necessary diploma even at the late date which he tells us best suits his birds.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, Cage Birds, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of Cage Birds Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in Cage Birds List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th next.

Two Prizes of 10s. each, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

Twelve Diplomas of Honour will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.
(4) BORDER FANCIES.
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

A MOUNTAIN OUT OF A MOLE-HILL.

Notes by the Secretary of "Cage Birds" League.

Caged Pets and Water.

Several members of Cage Birds League have sent me a copy of a letter written to the "Daily Mail," and which appears below:

Sir,—A fortnight ago a dealer in animals was fined for keeping fowls, pigeons, etc., without water and food. The publicity given to the case has called forth a protest from workers in the East End as to the enormous amount of cruelty practised daily upon defenceless creatures in many "animal shops." Rabbits, guinea pigs, squirrels, birds, etc., are the principal sufferers, water too often being withheld from sheer ignorance as to their requirements. Deprived of their natural means of assuaging their thirst these creatures suffer intensely and in silence. It is to be hoped that the increase of humanity and the dislike which is gradually springing up among us as to the caging of wild creatures amid unnatural surroundings will in time cause the demand for these creature as "pets" to cease. In the meantime the public can do much by observation and by reporting such places where animals are not kept under human conditions.

Arthur J. Coke, Secretary.
Our Dumb Friends' League.

When such a case as this occurs, it is always seized upon as a basis for a denunciation of the keeping of pets of all descriptions. Cases of the kind are very rare indeed, and when they do occur no one deplores them more than those who know that cruelty is not necessarily a concomitant of bird-dealing. With dealers in live stock who are properly punished for neglect, we have no sympathy, neither have we with those who exaggerate everything upon which they can lay hands as tending to support their continually expressed doctrine that pet keeping of any kind, and cage-bird keeping in particular, are hobbies which deserve improving off the face of the earth.

We know that birds properly kept in captivity will live happily to a much greater age than is ever reached by their congeners in a state of nature, and the opponents of cage-bird keeping must also be aware of the fact, for instances are continually being publicly recorded. An authentic case of a Linnet which has recently died after nineteen years of cage life is reported in our columns this week.

In all the untold millions of Linnets which have never been caged, was there ever one who lived for anything like twenty years? The answer is obvious. If wild Linnets lived to reach a quarter of this age Linnets would be as thickly spread over our countryside as leaves in autumn, and their extermination would become a national necessity.

The professional humanitarians who make capital out of solitary cases of misconduct ignore the real facts in connection with bird-keeping, and they do so because it is their business and their livelihood so to do.

To Interest the Children.

Our friend Mr. Peck, of Bexley, asks me to thank through this column our member Mr. Jas. Henderson, of Westminster Bridge Road, London, for his kind donation of six shillings towards the prize fund of the Children's Decorated Cage Competition at Dartford which Mr. Peck is organising. It is a great pleasure to find the members of Cage Birds League helping one another in any good cause which is instituted by any one of their body. One of our aims is the establishment of goodwill and fellowship among bird-lovers, and the response to Mr. Peck's appeal on behalf of the children goes to show that a good fellowship does indeed exist among members of our League.

Mr. Peck wishes me to correct a slight error in the announcement last week that the committee of the Dartford Working Men's Club had contributed £1 towards the Children's Prize Fund. It was the Dartford F. and F. Society ("a side club of the mother club," says Mr. Peck) which is subscribing so liberally towards the good object.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

TERMS OF MEMBERSHIP.

ORDINARY MEMBERS shall pay an annual subscription of Two Shillings and Sixpence.

JUNIOR MEMBERS.—Members under the age of fourteen years at the date of joining shall pay an annual subscription of One Shilling.

VICE PRESIDENTS.—An annual subscription of not less than Half-a-Guinea shall constitute the subscriber a Vice President.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than Five Guineas in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The payment to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE of a legacy of £20 and upwards shall constitute the administrator or executor making the payment an Honorary Life Member. A form of bequest will be sent, post free, on application.

PATRONS.—A donation of not less than Ten Guineas in one amount, or an annual subscription of not less than Two Guineas, shall constitute the donor or subscriber a Patron.

CERTIFICATES OF MEMBERSHIP, ETC.

Certificates printed in seven colours, and suitable for framing, are supplied at One Shilling each. Each certificate bears an enlarged facsimile of Cage Birds League badge and Motto, and is signed by the Secretary.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, without any charge beyond their subscriptions as above. The badges may be had either in button form, or mounted in rolled gold in two forms, one as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps or coat lapel, and the other as a pendant for bracelet or watch-chain. The kind required should be specified clearly.

SEALS AND HEADED NOTEPAPER.

GUMMED SEALS printed in gold and colours in facsimile of the LEAGUE BADGE are supplied for affixing to note paper, postcards, or envelopes. Price eightpence per hundred, fivepence for fifty, post free.

100 Sheets, Two Shillings and sixpence.
250 Sheets, Four Shillings.

Secretary 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of Cage Birds have written to say that they would like to join Cage Birds' League, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the League, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of Cage Birds League, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the League. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

THE PROBLEM OF MIGRATION

How Do Birds Know Where to Fly?

"The Observer," settles it in once.

Mr. E. Kay Robinson, in "The Observer," dated Aug. 31, solves a riddle which has engaged the minds of ornithologists for centuries. He says:—"There is probably no subject on which naturalists have written more egregious nonsense than this. In defiance of facts and common sense they have invented invisible "fly-lines" along which the birds are supposed to travel by some unerring inherited instinct. Yet the facts are plain: that, when summer is departing, all the summer birds begin to be restless and sensitive to the chills which the north wind brings. According to their habits, some are able to linger longer than others, but they all follow the inherited instinct of their kind to fly when the cheerless winds threaten them with complete deprivation of their accustomed food.

Not so Marvellous as it seems.

But how do they know where to fly? That is just the simple point of it all. They do not know where to fly. They simply fly with the cold wind; and as the cold wind of autumn comes from the north this means that they fly to the south. And, if you will look at the map of the northern hemisphere you will see that a bird which flies to the south from any place in Britain reaches Africa, if it only goes on flying long enough. Another factor, the desire to return home, enters into the spring migration with the warm south wind; but this has only the result of making the termination of many birds' flight more precise as to locality in spring than in autumn; otherwise it is as simple as the single impulse which at the present time is carrying many millions of birds—from ample-winged Swans to wee Golden-Crested Wrens—southwards over land and sea."

Club Reports.

WINCHBURGH C.B.C.

Meeting held Sept. 5, Mr. John Bobb chair. Classification for annual show, Nov. 22, was drawn up, giving 36 classes, also a few new members were enrolled.—A. Bishop, Sec.

BIRTLEY C.B.S.

Meeting held Station Hotel, Sept. 6, Mr. W. Davison chair. Decided to add more classes to our schedule, viz., Goldfinch or Bullfinch; Greenfinch; A.O.V. British Finch. Also another foreign class. There are also 11 classes for members; and we have a good few specials promised. I already have several applications for schedules, and I hope to forward them in a few days, probably this week-end.—S. Lindsay, Hon. Sec.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Meeting held at Grange Park Hall, Sept. 1, Mr. J. A. Bartlett chair. Secs. reported that the annual show, November 13 and 14, would be held under the patronage of the Southern Yorks. C.C., champion and novice, and cup competition, Southern Norwich P.C., champion and novice, Southern Border F.C., champion and novice, and National B.B. and M.C. CAGE BIRDS Coupon Competition will also be held at this show. It was considered very gratifying to find our efforts at the last open show so fully appreciated. Mr. A. J. Watcham has very kindly given a special for Crest and C.B. for competition in open and members' classes. We have also a valuable solid silver cup for members' competition, so this variety should begin to buck up. A guarantee fund for the annual show was started, and produced very good results. A very interesting discussion was opened on the question and answer principle, a great variety of subjects being dealt with. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed a very pleasant evening.—Forse and Son, Hon. Secs.

STANLEY (Empire Workmen's Club).

Meeting held Sept. 7, Mr. J. Emmerson chair; a good turn-up of members came to arrange schedule for 5th annual show, which we expect to beat all records. Decided to put up for competition the five cups which our club committee are going to give us. In the cage bird section a cup will be given for 3 best nominated Canaries, and one for best two nominated British birds. We also got a few specials offered. Mr. Stephenson gives medal best foreign bird; sec. gives medal best Mule; Mr. Boyle, special best small Softbill; Mr. Hopper, special best Norwich; Mr. Peart, special second best Canary, also second best British. We are also thankful to our club committee for taking a few more fanciers as members of our club, which will make our show second to none in the county. We have got Wm. Elliott (sec., West Stanley C.B.S.), B. Peart (sec., Victoria Club C.B.S.), Geo. Lane, J. Calvert, T. Taylor, T. Metcalfe, J. Teasdale, and several other fanciers as members. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to all who have given specials, and we expect members to try and get as many specials as possible.—Wm. Robinson, Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meeting, there was a fair turn out of members, who reported that there was a good prospect of specials for annual show. Sec. read a letter from R. Hyde and Co., Ltd., that they had again pleasure in giving a teapot for competition, also from secretary of the N.B. and S.F. Club, announcing that we had again secured their patronage, so I think we will have a record show.—G. Hawver, Sec.

NORTHERN BORDER & S.F.C.C.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 1, Pillar's Cafe, Pink Lane, Mr. W. P. Snaith chair. Letter was read from Chopwell committee saying that they had been too late in being informed that they had received our patronage, so they had cut the classes down. Mr. T. Pender, Baker, was elected a member. Questions were then put forward, and these proved very interesting, some of them causing a fair amount of discussion.—M. C. Potts, Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting held September 1; not such a good attendance as usual. Schedule for open show came up for consideration, and after a lengthy discussion, it was decided to adopt the same classification as last year. CAGE BIRDS Championship coupons were on view, and several members made purchases. Next meeting, September 22, to proceed with show arrangements. Members who require CAGE BIRDS coupons should make an effort to be present, or let me know how many they require at the earliest possible moment.—J. Pitchford, Hon. Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held September 6, at Lockhart's Cafe, Briggate, Mr. H. J. Mennard chair. Classification for open show, October 10 and 11, was formed, viz., 7 Yorks., 7 Nor., 7 Brit, 7 For., 5 Nov. Yorks., 5 Nov. Nor., 1 A.O.V. Can., and 4 selling; fee 1s. 6d.; prizes, 10s., 6s., 4s., 2s. Messrs. E. Norton and W Waind kindly presented 2s. 6d. each towards special fund. A good number of birds and cages have been promised to be given to purchasers of lucky tickets to show. Mr. J. R. Beckwith has generously promised 2s. 6d. to member who disposes of highest number of tickets. Sergeant Parker was unanimously elected a member. I especially beg of all members to interest themselves in our 23rd annual open show, and try to make it a record in every respect.—W. A. Wilson, Hon. Sec.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Meeting held at headquarters, September 4, Mr. Hill chair, and a fair number present. The question of selecting the points cup was gone into, and samples submitted were examined. Decided to leave the final selection until next meeting. Schedule for annual show, as drawn up by committee was submitted, and confirmed. A "special" list was opened, and was nobly supported. We shall be glad to hear from members wishing to give a special, and hope that every member will give a trifle so as to make our list of specials a record one. Fanciers who intend becoming members should note that next meeting night, October 2, is the last night for election of new members before the annual show, Nov. 6. Business being concluded, we settled down to hear Mr. Hill's lecture on "Colour Feeding." The subject was dealt with in a very expert manner, and was much appreciated by all. The lecturer was afterwards bombarded with questions, all of which he ably answered, and at the end Mr. Hill was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Members, please don't forget the washing competition next meeting. Bring some birds, and also some new members.—Burton Bros., Hon. Secs.

READING C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 5, before a good attendance. Four new members were elected: Messrs. Dr. Clarke and J. White (Reading), A. F. Fifield (Oxford), and E. Chance (Twickenham). This makes 20 new members this year, so we are evidently making good progress. Hon. sec. brought forward a home bakery competition for members' wives on show day. This seemed to be popular, judging by the way members put their hands up as being willing to judge the cakes. Finally, to save all jealousy and owing to want of room, it was decided to decline it. The big business of the evening was the preparation of show schedule for November 26. Open classes were re-arranged on more up-to-date lines, several being added, and money specials instead of goods. This ought to be popular. Members' classes were then gone through, and new ones added in all sections. Owing to the great number of amateurs and novices we have now, it was felt that they both ought to have better classification, so now they will have the same as the champions, 5 Norwich and 5 Yorks., in each section. In a discussion on the limit it was decided to reduce it £1 all round, making it now: champion £3, amateur £2, novice £1. Several good special prizes have been offered, and sec. would be very glad to get names of fanciers wishing to do likewise, also any fancier wishing to join us now. A splendid silver medal has been presented for best foreign bird and similar one for best novice Yorks. Judging from the enthusiasm displayed by members, we are right for a record show.—W. H. Pyke, Hon. Sec., 102, Radstock Road, Reading.

Manager, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

MIDDLESEX O.S.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 4. One new member elected and one nominated. Decided to hold annual members' show at Watson's auction rooms, Station Approach, Southall, Nov. 6. Judge, Mr. F. Easterling. Entry fee, 6d. first cage, 4d. per cage after.—Jeffery Jefferis, Hon. Sec.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Meeting held at Seven Stars, Riddings, September 6. One of the best meetings of late, when a good number turned up, and a large amount of business was transacted. Mr. L. Parsons in the chair. Mr. G. Lees was proposed and elected assistant sec. Decided to hold our open show, November 29, and a good number of specials are already promised. Will all members please renew their subscription, as soon as convenient, to enable them to compete for specials at open show, and oblige.—Smith and Lees, Secs.

STANLEY (Victoria Club) F. & F.S.

Meeting held September 7, Mr. T. H. Curry, chair. Schedule for annual show, Dec. 6, 7, was adopted. Thirty cage bird classes, and 22 poultry, pigeons, and rabbits. Mr. J. Elliott has given a special for best Modern Game Bantams, which brings our list of specials up very well. The committee has done a lot to encourage the Fancy amongst members, both financially and in other ways, and I hope the members will show their appreciation of their kind efforts by making a bumping entry, and making this show a success. We got some names of fanciers wishing to go with us on our trip to Scottish National, and we are still open for more.—R. Peart, Sec.

BARGOED C.B.S.

Meeting held at Parker's Temperance Hotel, Aug. 26, Mr. H. Bye presiding over a moderate attendance. We had a friendly discussion on breeding and feeding for colour, which proved very interesting. The arguments very much favoured breeding as being more wholesome and healthy for the birds generally, and more creditable to the owners of them. Decided to hold a members' show about the middle of October, and an open show towards the end of the year. I hope to be able to give full details and dates of both events after next meeting, Sept. 16, which I hope each member will make an effort to attend at 7.30. We have the promise of over half a dozen new members for that night. We also started a members' fund for the Palace show which caught on a treat.—E. J. Chisholm, Sec.

FIFE AND KINROSS N.P.C.

Meeting held Sept. 6, Mr. T. Wildridge (president) in the chair; patronage was allotted as follows: Lochgelly, Oct. 11; Kelty, Nov. 8; Cowdenbeath, Nov. 15; Bowhill, Dec. 13. Our specials list this year is the largest we have ever had, there being about 30 specials in all. Mr. P. McLuc gave two C.C. medals for best unlighted at Lochgelly; D. Firk 2s. 6d. for best young bird at Kelty; J. W. Holms 2s. 6d. best young bird at Cowdenbeath, spl. for best young bird at Bowhill; also 2s. 6d. for most points at each show with 3 nominated birds (in all cases previous winners debarred). The following were appointed as a Vigilance Committee: Messrs. W. Spence, T. Wildridge, J. W. Holms, and Sec. Agreed to hold table show on second Saturday in 1914, 6d. per entry, and 6 classes (2 for novices). W. Grewar gave a medal for best team of 4 young birds bred by a member (donor not to compete). W. Grewar and W. Duff were accepted as members. Next meeting, October 4.—A. Dickson, Sec.

SCOTTISH B.B AND M.C.

Meeting held 142, High Street, Edinburgh, Sept. 6, Mr. Sykes in the chair, before a good turn-out of members. The granting of patronage was then gone into, and the following clubs receive the full patronage of trophy, cups and medals: City of Perth, Boness, Glasgow and District, and Scottish National; cups and medals only, Lochgelly, Cowdenbeath, Musselburgh, and Newtongrange, the latter conditionally that the judge appointed be satisfactory to the Pres. and Sec. of this club; medals only, East Lothian C.B.S.; novice medals for club shows, Leith and Edinburgh Norwich and Mule Club. The following new members were admitted: Messrs. T. Russell, Edinburgh; J. G. Adams, Glasgow; P. McQuiston, Ayr; David Roy, Auchterarder; Alex. Forrest, Perth; Andrew Livingstone, Paisley; Messrs. Forsyth, Jamieson, J. McArdle, and A. Muir, Arbroath; Joseph Milne, Leith; W. Dunn, Portobello. Mr. Sykes presented a gold medal for most points at Scottish National for four nominated birds by members of the S.B.B. and M.C., who have not already won a gold or six silver medals at the beginning of the season, the secretary presenting a silver medal to the runner-up. A lively meeting ended with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—John Allan, Secretary.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

There was a large attendance of members at the monthly meeting, held at Crown Hotel, Hill Street, September 3, Mr. Broadhurst, chair. Unanimously decided to hold a members' show of old and young birds, on October 22, instead of the young stock show originally arranged for, and Mr. J. H. Roe to judge if available. Forty-five classes were allotted, of which 38 classes are for Canaries, 19 each for champions and novices. At this stage the chairman, owing to indisposition, called upon Mr. de Maillet to take his place. Final arrangements were then proceeded with, and the question of entry fees and prize-moneys caused a rather heated discussion, the majority of the members present being against the continuance of the practice, started a couple of seasons ago when the club's funds were very low, of deducting a portion of the entry fees for expenses. Many of the members felt that they were being penalised for making entries, whilst those members not exhibiting, escaped scot free. The Assistant Secretary pleaded strongly against any revision, and resigned his office upon the vote going against him, but the members hope he will reconsider the matter, as the society is now in a strong financial position. Birds must be staged by 9 a.m. on day of show, open to public at 1, admission 3d., closing at 9. Mr. Crowther again volunteered to act as steward, and Mr. Clay will also give his services if possible. CAGE BIRDS Championship Scheme was brought forward, and the members unanimously decided to take it up, the secretary booking orders for nearly 60 coupons. A committee meeting will be arranged some time this month, to draw up proposed classification and other business in connection with the open show for approval of the members at next monthly meeting. Fanciers wishing to join the society should give in their names for nomination next meeting night, October 1, and their election could then take place at the November meeting, in time to receive the membership benefits of reduced entry fees, etc., for the open show, December 3rd and 4th.—J. H. Jones, Hon. Sec., 109, Church Lane, Aston, Birmingham.

DARVEL C.B.C.

The first of a series of winter meetings was held on Friday, 29th Aug. Mr. N. Hopkins presided over a good turnout of members. A list of rules for the government of the club was read and passed. A discussion took place on the advisability of holding a club show, and it was ultimately agreed that if we could find a suitable date about November we give it a trial. A list of classes was drawn up, which, with other business connected therewith, will be fully discussed at our next meeting in September. Members are requested to bring as many specials as possible, and we hope to see a full turnout at this meeting.—J. Robertson, Jun., Sec.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Meeting held at headquarters, Flying Dutchman Hotel, August 20, only a moderate number being present. Mr. Geo. Hunter, chairman, opening. The principal item of the evening's business was the discussion of our members' show, which had been fixed to take place on December 6, this date being that of the Bradford National show. The greater part of our members being desirous of attending the Bradford National, were anxious that the date should be changed to Nov. 15, and this, being put to the vote, was carried by all present. Members please make a special note of the alteration.—F. N. Jenkinson (Asst. Sec.).

GLASGOW & W COUNTIES C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Good Templars' Hall, Ingram Street, Mr. J. M. Edwards presiding before a moderate attendance. Sec. read correspondence re the Plumage Bill, and, after a little discussion, petition was signed by all members present, and will be duly forwarded to the right quarter. Schedule for annual show was considered and agreed to be the same as last year, 56 classes. Replies from judges were read, and will be more fully discussed at next meeting. Owing to the poor attendance, several important items were left over till next meeting, Nov. 4, and it is to be hoped members will turn out better.—W. Connelly, hon. sec.

ARDWICK & MANCHESTER C.B.A.

Members had their first cycle outing on August 31st, when only six members turned up. We waited until after 2.30, but as no one else came along we sallied forth through Cheadle and reached Alderley at 4 o'clock. Choosing the way over the Edge, we had to dismount and push the bikes up the steep incline. About half-way up the hill we met the members of the Denton C.B.S. on their ramble, and after a chat on birdy matters, they left us to go on to tea, we having to cover a distance of six miles before reaching our own destination. We came back through Bollington and Poynton, arriving home by 9.30 p.m., having had a very pleasant time. Those that have cycles missed a treat of a ride. I never enjoyed myself better. It is getting late in the season now, but next year I should like to see several runs fixed on the programme.—J. Spencer.

[We have had no option but to very considerably condense this report, as the items it dealt with, though entertaining enough, had no reference to birds and bird-life, with which our journal is chiefly concerned.—ED.]

BORDER CITY (Carlisle) O.S.

Quarterly general meeting held at the King's Head, Sept. 3, Mr. G. Higgins chair. Correspondence read and discussed. Schedule for open show passed as follows:—Border Fancy 15, Norwich 12, Yorks. 11, A.O.V. Can. 1, Mules or Hybrids 5, British 14, Foreign 6. The patronage of the following specialist clubs has been granted: Border Fancy C.C.; Yorkshire C.C.; Open Norwich P.C.; Foreign Bird Club; National. B.B. and M.C.; Northern B.B.M. and F.B.C. Judges, Messrs. J. Robson, H. W. Battye and James Maddison. With this classification and patronage the show ought to be a great success, as we are fortunate in having the finest railway centre in the Kingdom. Eight railway companies have their termini here, and fast mail trains run to all important centres. London can be reached in 7 hours, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester, Sheffield, Bradford, Liverpool in 3 hours, Newcastle in 2 hours, so exhibitors need not be afraid of sending on birds. A goodly number of specials were handed in, but not being all received the meeting was adjourned for a fortnight.—J. C. Bell, Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting held September 8, at Church Institute, Paddington Street, Mr. W. A. Shepherd chair. Various correspondence was read. Messrs. Ellis and Wallington were elected members. The feature of the eveuing was a wild seed competition, and it was very disappointing that there were only two competitors, Messrs. C. H. Withers, and W. Clark, who exhibited some very fair specimens. Mr. A. Silver kindly attended to judge, and it was unfortunate that owing to so many members being away on holidays, the attendance was small. After examining the exhibits, Mr. Silver made some very interesting remarks, and explained very fully the good and bad effects that the various seeds would have on British birds in their wild state, and also in confinement. A very instructive hour was spent, and the members present were unanimous in giving Mr. Silver a very hearty vote of thanks for his kind services. Members are specially asked to note that on the next meeting night, September 22, there will be a judging competition in Norwich Plainheads. Final judge, Mr. F. S. Matthes, Hon. Sec. S.N.P.C.C. Do not fail to attend, and please bring some birds.—F. Thynne,, Assist. Hon. Sec.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Meeting, Aug. 26, Boot Inn, Eastgate Street. Mr. F. C. Parker presided over a fair attendance. Schedule of annual members' show, Nov. 22, was reviewed, and it was decided to add a gift class. Other general business was also transacted. Any one wishing to become members will be kindly welcomed, and can have full particulars from hon. sec. There will be four handsome cups for competition to be won outright again this year.—R. L. G. Simpson, 35, Clare Avenue, Hoole, Chester.

RUNCORN B.B.A.

Meeting held at headquarters, Old Cocoa Rooms, Mr. Sutton chair, before large attendance. Proposed to alter the show date from 15th to 22nd of November, if the sec. could make arrangements with the judge, and for the room. Everything has now been settled accordingly. 37 classes are arranged, and about 16 specials were promised at the meeting. Members who did not attend, please attend next meeting, October 3, and have a hand in making the show a record for specials.—E. Rone, Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Meeting held Sept. 6, at Headquarters, "Globe," Maple-st., Tottenham Court Road, a fairly good muster of members and visitors attended the table show, and some good specimens were staged. Mr. H. Bell judged to everybody's satisfaction. NOR.: 1, 2, Harrison; 3, Cullers. ROLLER: 1, Emery. REDPOLL: 2, Stubbs. CHAFFINCH: 3, Stubbs. The Chaffinch was claimed. Will members and friends do their utmost to attend our next meeting as Mr. Bell will no doubt have something very interesting to tell us, and the question of a cup for Crests will be brought forward.—G. G. Stubbs, Hon. Secretary.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Monthly meeting held. Wilson's Temperance Hotel, Sept. 6. Mr. W. Wood, vice-president, in chair. Secretary reported on the serious illness of Mr. C. Hunter, who had been out of work for the past three months. It was unanimously decided to minute an expression of sympathy towards Mr. Hunter and family. Sec. reported that Mr. Hunter was disposing of all his stock of Plainheads, etc., and asked the members to give him a visit. Messrs. Gunion, Smart, and sec. were appointed sub-committee to purchase trophies for Mule and British Sections. It was also deemed advisable to get trophy for Yorks. Section, which promises well, and this year Mr. Davidson has kindly consented to give gold medal for best British at annual show. Decided to have washing exhibition at Oct. meeting. Messrs. E. Barron and J. M. Knight were nominated and accepted to membership. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchison, Hon. Sec.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE

General meeting held Sept. 4, Mr. T. C. Crawhall in chair. Decided to accept CAGE BIRDS Cannon Scheme for open show, Oct. 17 and 18. Mr. Studholm, Wallsend, was elected a member. Will members and fanciers note that we have the following judges at our open show: Messrs. W. Vardy, T. C. Crawhall, R. Tindale, J. W. Bruce, W. C. Duncan and J. Maddison, and 121 classes. Entries close Oct. 11. I hope to have schedules out shortly. Will members do their best to get specials (a special general meeting will be held Sept. 8 to receive same), also do their utmost to keep Newcastle show what it has been—the largest in the Provinces. Hope to have tickets for admission to show ready at next meeting; everyone must try and dispose of some; put your shoulders to the wheel and make this show better than last year. Remember, we require a large number of specials. Mrs. Irwin, of Ponteland, has kindly consented to open the show at 3 p.m. on Oct. 17.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

DENTON C.B.S.

Members had a ramble on August 31; a fair muster turned up. Under the leadership of Mr. Frank Blease we left Crown Point at 10.15 a.m. by car to Reddish. From Stockport we caught the 11.30 train to Prestbury, and in our reserved compartment we held a meeting to discuss a few show items. Arriving in Prestbury at 12.30, and having refreshed the inner man, we set out for a walk to Alderley Edge, being entertained all the while by our leading raconteur, known best of the "Silent Boy," who fairly kept the ball rolling with his quips and jokes. The old man who listened to some of his yarns near Wimslow scemed lost in admiration at his prowess. During the afternoon we encamped in the woods to discuss birdy matters again, and when we were in the middle of an interesting debate, it was noticed that one of our Borders had tucked his head under his wing and was gently sleeping. Roars of laughter greeted his ultimate attempt to take part in a debate which had been ended for a quarter of an hour. Not many birds were to be seen in the woods. Resuming our ramble and heading towards the Wizard we fully enjoyed the scene which greeted us from the Edge. Having seen most of the lovely scenery for which Alderley and district is noted, we made our way towards our tea. Just at the bottom of the brow we saw some of the Ardwick C.B.S., who were out for a cycle spin. On arrival at the Royal Oak for tea we did full justice to the good things provided. How our Yorkshires enjoyed their greenfood! Having rested a little, during which our entertainer once more took up his duties and kept the company alive with his yarns, we left Alderley at 6.30 and went a roundabout way to Wimslow, where our members were busy gathering wild seeds, including plantain, hardheads, thistle, tormental root, shepherd's purse, and persicaria. As darkness was now approaching we wended our way back to Alderley, where we caught the 8.35 back to Denton, bringing to a close a most delightful ramble and one which will live for many a long year in the minds of those who took part in it.—W. Hopwood, Sec.

OXFORD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 4. The evening was fully occupied with business in connection with the open show, Oct. 16. In the matter of specials the secty has been exceedingly fortunate this year, and every class in the show, except singing, has a cash special of 2s. 6d. allotted to it for open competition, in addition to various other specials. Anyone within 3-mile radius wishing to become a member, should do so at once, so as to be in time to compete for the members specials.—A. F. Field, Press Correspondent.

SWINDON A. AND DIST. F. AND F.A.

Monthly meeting at the Baths, August 27., Mr. A. Ireland in the chair. Decided, owing to the great loss on our two last open shows, only to hold a radius show this year, open to members of the society, and anyone living within 12 miles of Swindon (including Cirencester). Date of show, October 25. The classification and rules were arranged to be printed and issued by end of September. After business concluded, a young stock show of poultry was held.—W. J. Moran, Hon. Sec.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

LEEDS.

Contest for quality Linnet singing held Old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon Street, Sept. 7th; 20 picked Leeds birds sang for four good prizes: 1, 2, 3, A. Butler; 4, Lacy. Judges, W. Sissons, F. Stead, W. Naylor.—Walter Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Singing contest held at Skinner's Arms, Buslingthorpe, Sept. 7. 14 birds sang for 3 prizes given by Mr. Fishwick: 1, Ward; 2, Kelly; 3, Hullen. Judges, J. Grainger, J. Sellers.

CASTLEFORD.

Open sing held Sept. 6. 10 birds entered. J. Wainwright won all three prizes. Annual general meeting Saturday next, Sept. 12.—J. Brindley, Hon. Sec.

TYLDESLEY.

General meeting held Sept. 1. Balance in hand from last season's club was 6s. 11d. We also started to pay our contributions on Sept. 5. I was glad to see six new members pay their contributions along with the old members. I hope Mr. Howcroft will see this.—J. Harrison, 3, Lune Street.

The Shows.

MILNATHORT O.S.

Annual show, held September 6, in a spacious marquee. The cage bird section would prove a big attraction if the management would only increase the classification a little. Mr. James Garrow, Edinburgh, judged.

CANARY (11): 1, sp., 3, vhc, McGregor, good trio of Scots Fancies, first, good big buff pied, grand rib, and good drive away, 3rd, neat headed yell. pied, very nice action and neck; 2, 4, McCall, second, good massive skulled buff varieg. C.B., good entrance, and lashing, 4, big bodied young green Crest, wants grooming; hc, c, Watson. MULE (8): 1, 2, 3, c, McCall, 1st and 2nd, very nice varieg. Mules, winner almost Eglit, and full of quality, 3rd, ripe faced dark Goldfinch, but deep in moult; vhc, hc, McGregor. BRIT. (8): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, c, McCall, good team, leader rich coloured Yellowhammer, great size and condition, second pretty Redstart hen, in good feather, good head, 3rd, neat house-moulted Lesser Redpoll, good bib, breast and flanks.

BLENNERHASSET.

A capital little show was that of the Blennerhasset Poultry and Horticultural Society, which was held on September 6th. The day was glorious, and a big crowd of fanciers and others visited the village, which was quite en fete. For the time of year the entry was good and the quality splendid. Mr. T. B. Charters, the general secretary, and Mr. William Jackson, the live stock secretary, proved themselves to be most energetic and courteous officials, and everything in their departments was in grand order. They were assisted by very strong committees for each section of the show, and thus everything went as merrily as a marriage bell. During the day we had the pleasure of meeting that good fancier, Mr. J. Nicholson, formerly of Flimby, but now of Canada. Mr. Nicholson, who will be remembered as one of our most successful breeders and exhibitors of Mules, Hybrids and Scotch Fancies, was for a long time associated with our good friend, Bob Colton, of Sheffield. What victories these two were associated with! Mr. Nicholson expects to return to Canada shortly. Mr. J. Ellwood judged.

BORD. YELL. (6): 1, Pennington, very neatly feathered, well proportioned cl., very smart; 2, Coulthard, eye and wing mkl., nice feather and style, not so even in col.; 3, Harrison, stylish and slim, beaten in head; 4, Elliott, charming and promising young cl., had all the worst of the luck, but youngsters do not always show alike; vhc, hc, Wilson Bros. BUFF (7): 1, 2, 4, Elliott, nice trio of cls., winner won here last year, but we preferred 2nd to-day, he being tighter and finer in feather; 4th, good in body, but not fined down yet; 3, Coulthard, nice feather and style, hardly so level in body; vhc, Dixon, hc, Lennox; c, Taylor. A.O.C. (9): 1, 3, Elliott, nice pair of Crests, buff beauties, good col. and feather, very superior; 2, Pennington, variegs., 1st, very stylish and showy, tight and level; 4, Dixon, second consistently good pair, nice shape and feather, slight fault in head; vhc, Dixon. H.W. Cup: 1, 4, vars, Elliott, grand pair, best pair shown and styl., nice qual., level col., 4th, great improvement in head, last summer; 2, Coulthard, level and good col., but, I only little tips, would prefer to see more white but for best shade of a Crest, c, Dixon, better head, but not level body, good col. and qual.; hc, Pennington, c, Lennox. A.O.C. CAN. (9): 1, 3, Dixon, fine, even coloured clear Jonq. Crests, good coal, Yorks type, 3rd, good cock, good head, good body, but not level Scots, nice level col., 3, Harrison, good cock, Golden Crest, heavy tail, c, Coulthard, rare big compact bird, Norv, nice head, but a bit No. 1, Anderson, large, pencilled tail, but level young fancier, hc, Coates, and 1 any other good bird. Pair (2): 1, Lennox, very fine blue cap, grand col. and feather, good cap; 2, Nicholson, Lacy, heavy marked, good coloured Pennant Pair (3): 1, 2, Coulthard on magnificent Blue Mountain Lacy, type, deep col., greatly alike, splendidly shown; 3rd, Dixon, good col. and feather, very neat and smart; 4, Anderson, nice level Welsh; 5, Carr, heavy Pennant, lovely col. and feather, very neat and smart; 4, Anderson, nice marked, good col., some tattered Budgerigars.

COLWYN BAY.

Annual show held Sept. 3, a most inconvenient date for the exhibitors. Some rattling good specimens were spoilt by being only half-way through the moult. Many of the winners got their wins on condition alone. Two handsome cups are provided for members' best bird and best unlimited. The H.W. Shorten cup was won outright by W. H. Williams with a very smart yellow Norwich. Messrs. Hartle and Berry took the "Gaffe Roberts" cup with their noted Waxwing. Mr. Roberts, Denbigh, staged a very fine Yorks, which was brought out for best in show, also best unflighted; unfortunately, the owner was not a member. The subscription to the association is only 2s. 6d. per annum, which gives exhibitors a chance to win some valuable specials, besides helping the Fancy along in North Wales. Our section was in the hands of Messrs. Hinton and Nolan, who catered for every want of the exhibitors. Everything was carried out in a businesslike manner by the hon. sec., Mr. G. E. Cragg, who is an ardent fancier. He informed us the association has gone up by leaps and bounds, and for our section next year he is putting forward a scheme that will make the show, he says, the Palace of North Wales. There was a very good attendance. Sir Fredk. Smith, Bart, presented the cups. On handing the cup to Mr. W. H. Williams for best unflighted Canary, he said he was more than pleased with the cage birds, and that he would have to consider taking them up himself. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, Liverpool, judged, and gave universal satisfaction.

THREE DAINTY LITTLE THINGS.

Little Miss Sweet, of Pontypool, wore this pretty and effective costume, made out of "Cage Birds" coloured plates, at the local Carnival. She was awarded a consolation prize, as, owing to the very unfavourable day, she was too wet and tired to face the judges.

The Uneven-marked Yellow Border Fancy Canary (at top) won first prize at the Scottish National (Edinburgh) New Year Show for Mr. R. Aitchison, Biggar, and the Even-marked Yellow won first prize for Mr. J. Smart, Tweedmouth, at the same Exhibition.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Linnets, Redpolls, &c.

We are patronised, and have been for 40 years, by every leading Crystal Palace judge and exhibitor, so our reputation stands second to none. We give above reward if it can be proved we send out unhealthy birds or hens for cocks. Editor of this journal has seen scores of original testimonials for birds we have supplied, which have bred hundreds of winning Mules, and won themselves at all leading shows, including Crystal Palace, Scottish National, etc. So if you intend buying British birds, buy from us, who have hundreds each week to pick from. We don't send out birds straight from the field; all are well on seed; guaranteed. Real English 1913 cock Goldfinches, 1/6, 2/- each, three 4/-, six 7/-, twelve 12/-; hens, 8d. and 10d., three 1/6; cock Bullfinches, 1/6, 2/-; hens, 10d. and 1/-; Lancashire cock Linnets, 8d., 10d. and 1/-, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; Redpolls, 6d., six 1/6, twelve 2/6; cock Larks, 6d., 8d., 10d., 1/- each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; Greenfinches, 6d. each, three 1/3, cages for any of above, from 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/3, 1/6, and 2/-. (2d. from agents; see list on another page).

THE Song Thrush and Blackbird.—Full directions how to keep these favourite songsters in the best possible condition; together with directions for hand-rearing the young and the selection of show birds, will be found in "Nutshell No. 4," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from agents (list published frequently).

ON receipt of 1/6 I will send, securely packed, on approval, the finest singing cock Skylark ever seen or heard, been in my possession months, suitable for contest singing or shop's attraction, including free my valuable feeding secret which keeps Larks in full song ten months out of twelve. I have supplied more contest winners than anyone in England; heaps of unsolicited testimonials to prove this; same address 25 years.—Woods, Cross-st., Dunstable. (845)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of Insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26." by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING FOR TWO YEARS AND THREE MONTHS

With all the money that has been deposited with "Cage Birds" not one single bird has been returned to me; proof, the Editor. I claim this as a sound record. Please read what others say: "41, Dairy Bank, Bacup.—Dear Sir, Bird arrived safe and in good condition; very pleased with it; kind regards.—H. Wilkinson to H. Allen." "32, Nelson-st., Scarborough.—Dear Sir,—Bird arrived safe and gives satisfaction. He was singing in the window on Saturday morning.—W. Stonehouse to H. Allen." "97, Catchole-avenue, Devonport.—Dear Sir,—I received the Goldfinch safe; very well satisfied with it. Yours truly, A. Napion, to H. Allen." "47, Thomas-st., Clonmell, Co. Tipperary.—Dear Sir,—Bird arrived safe to-day. I was much pleased with its song. I will write Editor to send deposit to you. I will write later on to you about some more birds.—Yours truly, P. Powell, to H. Allen." September 1913 September

The following are but a very few appreciations out of a large number received during the present month—all open for inspection. They are, however, proof positive of the value again given, and that what I offer can be had, and that too, at once. What a difference to some of the supposed bargains offered by a certain class:

"5, St. Leonards Street, Stamford, Sept. 5th, 1913.—Dear Sir,—The two birds arrived safely to-day in good condition, and am well pleased with them.—Yours truly, Jas. Kingham."

"North Leys, Ashbourne, Sept. 4th, 1913.—Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you the Canary arrived safe and in good condition, and I thank you for your prompt attention.—C. Barton."

"Roslyn, 42, Wellyer Road, East Southsea, Sept. 13th, 1913.—Dear Sir,—Bird just arrived in splendid condition. I am very pleased with it.—Mrs. Hemlin."

"Leeside, Leeside Crescent, Golder's Green, London, N.W., Sept. 9th, 1913. Thanks for bird safely received at 12 o'clock to-day. Was singing within half-an-hour.—W. A. George."

"2, Florence Terrace, Stonebridge Park, Willesden, London, N.W.—Dear Sir,—I received the bird safe, and I am satisfied with it.—W. Sadler."

"Woodside, Halifax, Sept. 4th, 1913.—Sir,—I received the birds all safe, and they were in a grand condition. I am very pleased with them. J. T. Sykes."

"Wakefield, Sept. 12th, 1913.—Sir,—Yorkshires arrived safe. A very good pair, and my friend is very highly satisfied with them. Yours truly, A. Micklefield."

"Farnborough, Hants, Sept. 1st, 1913.—Sir,—Received the bird quite safe, and am more than pleased with it, being such a lovely singer. Everyone is falling in love with it, and I could have sold it several times. Thanking you very much for the trouble I put you to, and will not forget you when requiring more.—Joseph Murphy."

WHATEVER

SINGING COCK CANARIES

Norwich, Yorkshires, Rollers, 1913, young singing cocks, price 4/-, 4/6, 5/- each; guaranteed. Est. 1879: Sandiford, Bird Specialist, Preston.

NOT CHANCE BIRDS

but selected first-round singing Norwich or Yorkshires, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, cages 3d.; six months' approval; it is bad enough to be a fool, but to be one and not know it is 100 times worse, hence I say that it would be as reasonable to expect an infant in arms to sing in opera as to expect young birds at present to be on full song. See my advertisement on page 165: W. Rudd, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

FOREIGN birds for beginners, 1/1½, by W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign birds. Replete with useful hints: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

WAXBILLS! (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

GENUINE Parrots, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- upwards; beware the "Red and Grey" so-called Parrots, having pink breasts, which are screeching Cockatoos that do not talk, denial challenged; see my pamphlet with testimonials and "Parrot trick exposed, free, which all should see before parting with their money; splendid Budgerigars, for show, etc., also cages, list free: W. PARROT PROBLEM solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle." This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe. PARROT AVIARIES, MORECAMBE

Mr. Harry Allen of Leeds, and the remarkable collection of prizes secured by his noted singing Linnet. This bird has won altogether 114 firsts under 27 different judges, many of them in contests open to all England, and is known as the "Patti" of the Linnet-singing Fancy.

TWITTERINGS.—Continued.

A full classification of Gillingham and Dis. F.A. (Kent) will appear in the next issue of CAGE BIRDS. Fanciers are requested to enter from this, writes Mr. J. Hyde, sec.

I have received an entry form for the Scottish Metropolitan Open Derby from an Edinburgh fancier without a name or address, writes Mr. R. Lile, sec., 15, Argyll Terrace, Edinburgh. The entries on it are, two piebald or green cocks, 1 buff or buff foul cock. Will the sender please forward name and address?

The Burnley O.S. members journey to Todmorden on Sunday next, Sept. 21st, by the 8.30 train, from Manchester Road Station, writes Secretary Whittaker, where some Hebden Bridge Fanciers will join in a ramble around the Hardcastle Crags district. All fanciers desiring to join please meet at Manchester Road Station at 8.15.

OBITUARY.

MR. F. Grey.

It is with great regret, writes Mr. Horace Whitney, Assist. Sec., Sale and Dis. C.B.S., that I have to announce the death of Fred, the eldest son of Mr. Joe. Gray, a well known exhibitor of British birds, and member of Sale and Dis. C.B.S. Poor Fred was only 32 years of age, and had only been ill two weeks. He passed away on Saturday, Sept. 13, leaving a wife and seven little children to mourn his loss. The deepest sympathy of every member of the society goes to his sorrowing father and mother, and wife and family.

The judges at Avonbridge O.S. show, Nov. 15, writes Mr. P. Gentleman, sec., Cowan's Buildings, Avonbridge, are Nor. and Bord. Mr. J. Hamilton (Eskbank), Mules and Brit.; Mr. J. Goodfellow (Edinburgh). We have secured the Avonbridge Hall, which is larger and better lighted than the school, and only two minutes' walk from the station; so we hope fanciers will help us by sending as many entries as possible.

We have received from the hon. sec. and treas., Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Ann's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds, the year book of the National Green-Marked Yorkshire C.C. The book, which is well got up, contains the Rules and Regulations of the Club, the Standard and Scale of Points, club shows for the season, list of specials for competition, names of officers and district representatives, and members' names and addresses. The balance sheet shows that the cash in hand amounts to £4 1s. 7d., an increase of £2 12s. 8d. over the amount brought forward from 1911.

The September number of "Bird Notes," the journal of the Foreign Bird Club, is illustrated mainly by beautiful reproductions of photographs by Mr. H. Willford, of the Common Tern, to accompany the article, "Some Interesting Birds," by Mr. Wesley T. Page. Lieut. F. M. Littledale tells of his "Bird Keeping under Difficulties." Mr. O. Millsum gives an account of the breeding of a Hybrid Lorikeet. The Hon. Mary Hawke writes an entertaining description of her "Trip in Argentina." Mr. F. Dawson Smith, under the heading "Three Uncommon Pets," chats of the Gyr Falcon, the Urubu, and the Caracara and Mr. W. A. Bainbridge contributes an article on the Breeding of the Grey Waxbill.

The Avicultural Magazine for Sept., the organ of the Avicultural Society, opens with an article by Mr. H. D. Astley on the Seed Snipe. Mr. W. E. Teschemaker tells of the successful breeding of White Wagtails in captivity, and Mr. E. J. Brook recounts similar success with Purple Sunbirds; Mr. F. E. Blaauw contributes notes on the Black-shouldered Peafowl; Mr. Graham Renshaw writes of the keeping of Glossy Starlings, and Mr. A. Ezra about Sunbirds. Mrs. Currey tells of "Bird Friendship"; Miss A. Hutchinson gives "A Bird Yarn from the Sea," and one of the most delightful bird stories it has ever been our pleasure to read is from the pen of Mrs. Horsbrugh—a tale about "Willie Winkie," a tame Java Sparrow, and his likes and dislikes. Letters and notes as usual complete an issue which is well illustrated with drawings and reproductions of photographs.

A Disclaimer.

Mr. D. Coombes, of 13, Burn Valley Rd., West Hartlepool, wishes to state that he has no connection with any advertiser of the same or similar name at any other address.

Hint to Great Horton O.S. Members.

I want all members of the Great Horton O.S., writes Secretary Holroyd, to order at once the coupons they require for CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition.

An Old Fancier's Return.

After being for four years out of the Fancy, writes Mr. M. Doolan, Monkton, Ayrshire, I have started again, and I should like secretaries of this season's shows to send me schedules.

Forty Young Rollers Outdoors.

In my outdoor aviary (my first outdoor season) I have this year been successful in rearing about 40 young Rollers. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success, writes Mr. H. W. Allmand, of Boston.

Plumage Prohibition in the U.S.A.

The plumage prohibition clause drafted by the New York Zoological Society has been restored unchanged to the Tariff Bill by the Senate. The Bill will now prohibit all importation into the United States of the plumage of wild birds, either raw or manufactured, for any other than scientific or educational purposes.

Encouraging Novice Yorkshire Fanciers.

Dr. Craig, the well known and highly esteemed local enthusiast, has kindly offered for competition at Sheffield O.S. show, for novice Yorkshire fanciers, a valuable silver tea service. Now, ye novices, buck up and respond nobly on Nov. 7th. It will be worth winning, writes "One Who Knows." A unique show schedule will be out shortly.

Wolverhampton Means Business.

Wolverhampton C.B.S. have elected the following fanciers to look after the exhibits at their show, Oct. 24 and 25: Messrs. F. J. Weaver, F. Garfield and J. Hampton (Norwich section); J. Gibbons, E. Hall, R. K. Hyde (Yorks.); J. A. Tonks, H. E. Rowley, and Robinson (Brit. and For.). The fanciers' most valuable specimens will be as safe with them as in their own rooms, writes Mr. J. Gibbons, the hon. sec., and birds shall be returned by any train so as to reach home Saturday night if this is requested on entry form.

"CAGE BIRDS" £200 PRIZE SCHEME

The Opening Coupon Shows are Close at Hand.

THE period for the receiving of applications from societies desiring their annual exhibition to be enrolled as one of CAGE BIRDS Coupon Shows expires to-day (Sept. 20th). We have had applications from Llandrindod Wells and Cockermouth, however, for a few days grace, and to meet this wish we are agreeable to extend the period for seven days, i.e., until Saturday next, Sept. 27th.

CAGE BIRDS great scheme, it will be remembered, can only be participated in by guaranteed societies, i.e., those whose fixtures figure in our "Show Dates Fixed" list (see page 175 this week). Already 75 societies have notified their acceptance, and these include practically all the leading shows in, and cover practically every quarter of, the United Kingdom. Competitors joining in our splendid scheme will, therefore, have plenty of opportunities of entering their birds to compete for the cash specials, and for the diplomas which carry the right of competing for the huge cash specials to be offered in the "final round" of the season at the Crystal Palace Show.

GREAT HORTON O.S.
TREDEGAR C.B.S.
BARNSTAPLE & NORTH DEVON C.B.S.

The Opening Coupon Fixtures.

We would direct the special attention of exhibitors to the fact that the opening Coupon Shows of the season are:—

Oct. 4.—Longton (Staffs); secretary, Mr. Barker, 6, Prospect Place, Longton.

Oct. 4.—Great Horton (Bradford); Secretary, Mr. Holroyd, 27, Kingswood St., Great Horton,

The entries for both close on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

At the Great Horton fixture (one of the leading shows of the Yorkshire Union) only Yorkshire Canaries are catered for in the 17 champion classes, and Yorkshires (eight classes) and Norwich (two) in the Novice section. With this extended classification champion Yorkshire exhibitors have a splendid opportunity with Coupon birds, while the novice Yorks. and Norwich fanciers have an equally good one in their own particular section. The prize money is 23s. per class; entry fee 1s. 6d.

At Longton Show both champions and novices have excellent chances in a number of sections. The open classes are 7 Norwich, 7 Yorks, 1 Border, 1 A.O.V. Canary, 4 Hybrid and Mule, 6 British, and 1 Foreign. The novice classes (£3 3s. limit) are 7 Nor., 7 Yorks., 1 Mule, and 4 Brit. The prize-money is 17s. 6d.; entry fee 1s. 6d.

How Exhibitors may Enter.

All who intend entering Coupon birds at these two shows must do so under these conditions:—CAGE BIRDS offers the following Championship Competition prizes:—

10s. cash for best champion coupon bird.
10s. cash for best novice coupon bird.
Diplomas of honour for the best champion and the best novice coupon birds in each of the following sections; or in as many of these sections as are included in the classification:—

(1) Yorkshire Canaries.
(2) Norwich.
(3) Crests and Crestbreds.
(4) Border Fancies.
(5) Scotch Fancies and Belgians.
(6) Greens.
(7) Lancashires and Lizards.
(8) Any Other Variety Canary.
(9) Mules and Hybrids.
(10) British, Hardbilled.
(11) British, Softbilled.
(12) Foreign.

All the exhibitor has to do is to stick one of CAGE BIRDS coupons on his entry form and write "C.B." opposite each bird he wishes to compete; except if a novice, when he must write "C.B. Novice."

COUPONS, price 6d. each, may be purchased from the offices of CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., or, if the time is short, enclose the necessary extra cash with your entry fees to the secretary of the show, and he will affix coupons opposite whichever birds you have marked on your entry form. Every coupon is numbered and a record of it kept at CAGE BIRDS offices.

NOTE CAREFULLY.—A coupon must be affixed to the entry form opposite every bird intended to compete in this Championship Competition. Any number of coupon birds may be entered by any exhibitor, either in one section or in several, as may be desired; so long as a coupon is used for each bird. For every coupon bird, of course, the usual entry fee must be paid to the show officials. Entries in CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition are accepted only on the understanding that the governing rules as published in CAGE BIRDS are to be absolutely final and legally binding.

The above, we may say, are the conditions which will appear in the schedules of all shows at which our Championship Scheme is in operation, and under which entries will be accepted by the various secretaries.

The Definition of a Novice.

It may be well to repeat that we have adopted the following standard definition of a novice:—

"A novice is a person who has never won a first prize for Canaries, or Mules and Hybrids, or British, or Foreign birds, in a class at any show other than one confined to club members, or residents in the town or county where the show is held, or limited as to the price at which the exhibit is to be sold (price not to exceed £5), or three first prizes in open novice classes. All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete."

We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 27th next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the 12 sections mentioned above.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of October, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of December.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age, and either rung or not rung.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

Questions and Answers.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) an one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (Landon).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 151, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE followlng gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS sta of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in n case be addressed to any of them individually, bu to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper matiug, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

A LILY PAINTER (J. W. D.).—To add the desired gloss and "finish" to the plumage, give a pinch of linseed every second or third day during the last few weeks of moulting. Begin giving every third day as soon as you see new plumage beginning to show in streaks on the breast, and increase to every second day when the head is moulting. Continue until plumage is fully grown. If birds do not care for linseed, substitute sunflower seed chopped into small pieces, which birds can manage. To fix the colour dissolve a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a large hemp seed in the water three times a week for two or three weeks at the end of the moult.

HARTZ OR ROLLERS (F. S., Hampshire).—(1) Your question seems almost like an enigma. Strictly speaking, I should say that all Hartz Mountain Canaries are not Rollers, though, in a sense, all Rollers may be truly termed German or Hartz Canaries. The term Hartz Rollers, or Hartz Mountain Rollers, is often used, though less common now than in past years. As a matter of fact, the Roller of to-day is merely a highly developed type of the German or Hartz Canary. It matters nothing which of the latter terms are employed. To-day the Hartz Rollers of the trade are simply inferior types of Roller songsters. (2) In this question you say you want a good singing Canary, but not a Roller. Possibly you are not aware that the pure trained Roller is far ahead of anything else you could get in the singing line among Canaries. If you want a bird with plenty of variety in the song, try a St. Andreasberg Roller. But do not buy before the end of October, when there will be plenty of birds on the market which are through the moult and in song. If you have any particular objection to a Roller, write again and say what it is, and also if you have any special object in wanting some other variety as a singer, and I will advise you further.

SHEATHED FEATHER (A.B.C.).—It is interesting to learn the recent history of the bird that has lost part of its lower mandible. As it is unable to preen its plumage, it is only to be expected that it will have a little difficulty in freeing its new feathers of the quill sheaths. Seeing the bird is quite healthy and active, and bathes freely, I think this difficulty will be quite overcome if you place the cage with the bird on the hearth in front of a nice warm fire for an hour or so daily during the rest of the moult. This will dry the portion of the sheath that is ready for dropping off, and render it brittle and powdery, so that when the bird shakes its plumage, even without attempting to preen it, it will break up the dry ends of the sheaths and disperse them. This will probably be all that is necessary, but if you find after a few days that the sheaths do not come away satisfactorily, gently catch the bird after it has been before the fire for an hour or so, and carefully stroke it in the way the plumage lies with a handkerchief or a camel-hair brush to remove the dry ends of sheaths. Any perfectly dry sheaths on the tail or flights may be gently rubbed between the thumb and forefinger, but do not attempt too much. Exercise patience. Pray do not hesitate to write us at any time.

ROLLER SNEEZES (W. D.).—The bird has doubtless got a slight cold, which may be due to a temporary cold draught affecting it, or perhaps it is in a position which is fairly warm during the day, and correspondingly cold at night. Keep it in a fairly equable and comfortable temperature, until it has quite finished its moult, and give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of cod liver old emulsion, well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a week or so. On the alternate days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, six of glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. Continue this for a week, by which time, if the exciting causes have been properly removed, the bird should bo quite well.

RED MITE PLAGUE (Novice).—It is nothing uncommon for red mites to show a great increase, and become particularly annoying to the bird during the moulting season. This is generally the result of putting up the birds for moulting in cages which may have been used for breeding during the summer, or for casual purposes, and failing to overhaul and clean them properly before again bringing them into use for moulting birds. It is not wise to disturb the birds in the middle of the moult, but you may do much to keep the plague in check until you can deal with it more drastically. Give a bath twice a week, and add to it a little essence of quassia or sulphuretted potash, in the proportion of a teaspoonful of either to a pint of the water used in bath. Also paint over the ends of perches, joints of doors, small holes, cracks, and any likely harbouring place for mites, with the strong quassia essence twice a week. If the cages are not varnished, or if you do not mind the job of re-staining and varnishing after the moult, when you should give them a thorough overhaul, you could not do better than dissolve an ounce of camphor in half-pint of methylated spirit, and use this freely with a small brush, about the harbouring places just indicated.

NEARING THE END (Beginner).—There is no difficulty in judging when any given bird is near the close of its moult, assuming, of course, that the bird is in normal health. The head is the last part to be moulted, and it is quite easy to see when the plumage of the upper part of nape and crown or head is undergoing change. The quills of the new feathers are very easily seen on the crown, round about eyes and ear coverts almost as soon as they begin to appear. This is significant of the near approach of the end of the moult, and shows when you should reduce the strength of your colour-feed in order to avoid the head coming out too "hot" in colour, as it is apt to do if birds are kept on colour of full strength right up to the end of the moult. First reduce the proportion of colour one-third, a week or so later reduce it another third, and finish off with one-third the full strength. All the birds will not finish the moult at the same time, so for convenience sake you should make the usual supply of full strength colour food—or a rather less quantity would suffice, according to the number of birds that are on weak food—feed all the birds still in full moult, then add to the food that is left a third part of its bulk of fresh uncoloured crushed biscuit, mix well, and give the usual quantity of this weakened colour food to those birds that are finishing the moult.

GREEN FOOD WHILST MOULTING (Jack).—The question of giving green food whilst birds are moulting calls for the exercise of discretion in each particular case. Many birds are troubled with looseness of bowels when moulting, and in some others, when colour-food is being used, the food seems to have a relaxing effect. In all such cases the use of succulent green-food should be avoided excepted in very limited quantities, though such things as half ripe plantain stalks and seeds stalks of shepherd's-purse may still be given in limited quantity to all save quite abnormal cases of looseness, with beneficial results. Where there is no tendency to looseness, green-food may be used during the moult just the same as at any other time. For birds that are not colour-fed a variety of green-food, fruits, and wild seedy things of many kinds are most beneficil.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

COLOUR FOR SHOW CAGE (T. G.).—The question of the colour of a show cage to exhibit your bird in to the best advantage, is a very important one, and you would do well to consider it in good time. You say your bird is a light buff Goldfinch-Canary, therefore the background for him must be fairly dark, because it is by contrasts more than harmony of tone that we show our birds to the best advantage. There are really two colours that may he used—either blue or green—and these must be fairly dark. The blue must not be a pure blue, but must be toned down by a slight addition of red. Procure a tin of paint, of what I may describe as "Hedge Sparrow egg-shell blue," and add to this just sufficient light red to take off the vividness of the blue, and form a nice blue-grey. Do not add the red to the whole tin of blue, but mix a little first on a piece of glass until you get the correct shade. If you add the red straight away to the tin of colour, you may add too much, and thus make a dirty tone. When mixed, the red should not be perceptible; its addition is only to tone down the blue. The green I would advise is one as near to the colour of a laurel leaf as you can get it. Paint out a couple of cages of these colours, and run the bird in them, and use your own judgment as to which colour suits him best. I presume he has been colour fed, and it depends a good deal upon how he has taken the feed, whether his general tone is of a yellow or red hue. Paint or enamel the cage bars the same colour as the interior; they do not cut so sharply against the bird as black ones.

LINNET MULES (Beginner).—One white feather in an otherwise dark bird is sufficient to disqualify it in a dark class, but many hybrids have light under tail feathers, and yours may not be sufficiently light to disqualify the bird, but the shoulder feather is another matter, and I must leave you to deal with that or not, as you think fit. If it is very small and only shows occasionally it may not throw him out. Why not give him a run as he is? (2) In birds of equal merit a yellow will always beat a buff, but as some judges like large birds, and go for size in preference to colour, buffs with them stand the better chance. As regards your birds, by your description I should think the buff the better one of the two. Respecting colour, he would naturally not be so rich as his brother. (3) Your feeding appears to be satisfactory, but I would advise you to give them a little cracked sunflower seed two or three times each week. It is a grand conditioner, and puts a bit of gloss on an otherwise dull plumaged specimen. They should take the full quantity of colour food, and a good plan is to give it to them in the morning, when they will, as you say, eat about half of it, then take it away and give it again in the evening, removing the seed, if necessary, until they clear it up. (4): Paint will lie better than enamel on distemper, but is is much better to scrub it all off with soda-water. If you decide to paint on it, you would require at least two coats of the paint, as the first one on distemper looks dull, the distemper absorbs the oil. Wait until the first coat is thoroughly dry, and then paint again, or enamel if you prefer it. (5) You can distemper on paint if you scrub it well to get all the grease off, but it does not look so well as when done on an unpainted surface. If the paint is old, rub it down with a piece of pumice stone dipped in water. You can remove nearly all of it that way.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

IDENTITY OF BIRD (F. J. W. S.).—The body sent is that of the Chiff Chaff, see answer to W. W. Duncan, last week.

A BLACKBIRD AND A THRUSH (Cock Thrush).—It is quite natural at this season of the year for your Blackbird to moult its tail, although it is somewhat late. Most birds by now will have grown a new one; yours will doubtless do the same in due course. As to the assuming the yellow of the beak, birds are like most things—no two alike. The best Blackbird I ever possessed did not have a yellow beak until his third year, and his wing feathers showed a brownish tinge until he was fully three years old. He was afterwards conspicuous for several years as a prize winner. As your bird is already showing yellow on his beak, it may probably be quite clear next year. The fact that the bird throws out more of its food than it eats shows that the food you are offering is, like the curate's egg, only good in parts. You should get some good "ants' eggs," and some dried flies, and add a liberal proportion of these to the stock food, also some hard-boiled egg, white and yolk together, passed through a sieve and well mixed with the stock food. Or get Nutshell No. 4, "The Song Thrush and Blackbird," 2½d., post free, from our office, or twopence from your local newsagent or bird-dealer; this will give you much valuable information as to the proper feeding and keeping of both of your birds. (2) If your Thrush is a cock, it should sing in the early spring. Feed it in the same way as the Blackbird. Please do not hesitate in asking questions at any time; we are always pleased to help you; that is what we are here for. Only, in future enquiries, kindly send your address, which you omitted to do this time.

GOLDFINCH BALD (G. Holding).—Your case is rather a peculiar one, as you say you are certain that there are no red mite in the cage nor grey lice on the bird. If this is absolutely certain, the baldness must be due to some skin disease, and this may be of either of many kinds. As a trial, get some sulphur ointment from the chemist and carefully rub this into the bald parts. Persevere with this for at least a month, and then report progress. In the meantime see that the bird's bowels are working properly. Give once or twice a week, so long as these are not unduly loose, as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence, dissolved in the drinking water. I hope to hear in a week or two that improvement is apparent. If otherwise, I shall be pleased to advise you further.

BULLFINCH STUCK IN MOULT (F. G.).—It is the keeping of your bird out of doors day and night in a cage which is causing the trouble. At this season there is a very wide difference between the day and the night temperature, and such variations are very harmful to birds especially when their vitality is lowered by the moulting process. You should keep the bird as recommended to "Anxious" this week. Your feeding seems to be quite satisfactory.

YOUNG BLACKCAPS (Anxious).—Your feeding seems to be quite all right, and there is no need to do anything to help them through the moult except to keep them in a place that is free from draughts, and from changes of temperature between night and day. Impure or dusty atmosphere, or frequent changes of temperature are very likely to set up the breathing trouble you seem to have noticed, and if you take care that such causes do not exist your birds should be all right. A mild aperient may be helpful, and for this dissolve twice a week in the drinking water as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence. If the breathing trouble should continue, get a chemist to make up a mixture of equal parts of paregoric, syrup of Squills, glycerine, and tincture of lobelia, æther, and use twenty drops of this twice a week in the drinking water.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

MOUSTACHE PARRAKEET (Moustache).—The head of the male is green; the forehead and sides of face of the female are suffused with yellow.

WHAT BIRD? (E. W.).—I think your bird must be the Red-headed Weaver (Quelea erythrocephala); if it goes out of colour during the autumn or early winter it is this bird, but your description also partially fits the Mexican Rosefinch (Cardopacus mexicana), and it is this bird if it permanently retains its present colouring; I think it is the former and will go out of colour at no distant date. If the former, its value is about 15s. as it is; if the latter, then about 20s. If it is still in your possession, you might repeat query about two months hence, as by that time, if a Weaver, it should give some indication of donning winter plumage.

A BEGINNER (A. C., Shropshire).—The birds which you say were sold you as Silverbills are two cock Cutthroats. The hen has no crimson band across the throat. You will have to exchange one of them for a hen, as two pairs will not agree in so small a space. You might get a pair of Zebra Finches as opportunity offers, which would suit your cage well. You must put up two or three rush nets and give them a little hay (or Canary nest bag) for the Waxbills to sleep in. I am inclined to doubt the Waxbills breeding in your cage, but such as Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Bengalese, Cutthroats, and Bib Finches should do so. Our Nutshell, "Waxbills," will give you full details as to treatment, etc.; it is 2½d., post free, from our manager.

WHAT PARRAKEET? (H. W. Adams).—(1) It is a hen Madagascar Lovebird, I think, and should winter safely in your aviary; the male of this species has a grey head. They are kept now in many aviaries out of doors all the year, and breed fairly freely. (2) From your letter I take it that the only light the shelter gets is from the open doorway. This will not do, for if this is the case the birds will scarcely use it. You must put in a window large enough to well light the whole. I should say the best way would be to decide what size window is necessary, and buy one ready glazed at some building material yard, cut out a hole of suitable size, screw it in position, and then, after painting, cover with wire netting on the inside. I should also hinge a half-door (3ft. high) across the open space of partition, leaving only the upper 2½ft. exposed. A seed tray should hang inside the shelter opposite this opening, where it can be seen from the outside and thus induce the birds to feed in the shelter, at any rate during the winter months; they then naturally retire to it during inclement weather day and night. (3) There is only one way, viz., to nail sheet zinc 2ft. deep round the base of your walls, and see that the ends of your faggots are not below this zinc covering, and then, unless the mice have some means of access from above, they cannot interfere with the roosting birds.

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

BUDGERIGARS (D. B.).—(1) All you have to do is to get another cock, and put the birds into the aviary and leave them to pair up as they choose, but I rather doubt their breeding this year; it will certainly be better if they do not. If they have been kept at all warm, there is a risk in turning out even such hardy birds as Budgerigars at this time of year. (2) For such a number you must have a flight, with a floor area of not less than 200 square feet, and attached to it a shed at least 12ft. by 8ft., and of suitable height. One-third of the roof of flight should be roofed in, and your shelter shed must be well lighted to induce the birds to occupy it. You have not only to provide accommodation for the adults, but also their progeny, till they are able to fend for themselves, and you get opportunity of disposing of them. (3) You ought not to put in more than three pairs, or four at the outside, as though a lofty aviary gives flight exercise and tends to healthy stock, it is principally the floor area that must regulate the number of stock. P.S.—If you only permit healthy pairs to go to nest and provide shelter from damp and draught (this applies to the aviary generally), together with sweet wholesome food and cuttlebone and mortar rubbish, egg-binding should trouble you but little, but with our English weather you can never entirely eliminate this risk. It was impossible for us to give you a reply in our issue of 13th inst., as your query did not reach our office till the 11th.

WINTERING BIRDS (F. B. M.).—Other aviarists in Yorkshire winter their birds out of doors, and yours should certainly come though all right. There are, however, three kinds which I think you would be wiser to bring indoors and keep in roomy cages for the winter, viz., Black-faced Waxbills, Lavender Finches, and Cordon Bleus. The others should do well enough left outside. It would perhaps be as well to drive them into the shelter at dark from November onwards, and shut them up for the night; there must, of course, be food in the shelter. Put a rush nest up for each pair of birds, and provide a space of dry sand in one corner, with a sloping board over it, say 12 inches above ground, for the Quail. You could also put in each corner of the shelter a sheaf of straw, which must be fastened well together in two places, and the straw pulled out loose, between and above the fastenings, so that birds can get in among the straw for warmth. Your shelter should be well lighted, or the birds will use it but little, and if it is not, I should advise you at once to put in another window, sufficiently large to well light the whole shed.

BIRDS FOR AVIARY (Aviary, Bulwell). You would do well to cover in 3ft. of the roof of flight with wood and felt; the 8ft. adjoining glass would be best, and you must arrange your opening so that they can have free ingress and egress to the shelter (roost). It would be well to shut the birds up in the shelter for a couple of days when first stocking aviary, so as to get them accustomed to it; always turn newcomers into the shelter, and leave them to find their own way out. You must not put Foreign species out of doors at this time of year, unless you purchase them from some aviary where they have been out all the summer. English: Siskin, Redpoll, Twite, Linnet, and Goldfinch. Foreign: Zebra Finch, Silverbills, Long tail Grassfinch, Java Sparrows (these latter are often of a bullying nature), Avadavats, Golden breasted Waxbills, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Cutthroats, and Olive Finches are all nice birds, and can be kept out all the year round, if put out in the spring, as also can the Pekin Robin, though the latter is rather apt to make a meal of any eggs he can get access to.

INDIAN PARRAKEET (Mrs. Goodman). It is not only a moult, but the bird is pulling its plumage. You must keep it out of all draught, yet not away from light and air. Once a week put one teaspoonful of Dunneford's Magnesia in the drinking water, and every other day half a teaspoonful of byno phosphates, also in the drinking water. I should spray it twice a week with a weak tepid quassia solution, and give it the following seed mixture in preference to what you are using; one quart each canary and white millet seeds, one pint each oats and hemp, half a pint each sunflower, dari and wheat; well mix and keep a supply in the cage. You can give all the other items as hitherto, and also a few nuts—shelled Barcelona, walnut, or pea nuts—grit, and cuttlebone must be regularly supplied. Slightly moisten a crust of stale bread or piece of biscuit, and then dust it with flowers of sulphur, and give this to the bird daily so long as the plumage remains bad. It is not easy to check feather pulling, and you will have to persevere with the treatment for some time, but it should gradually improve. Report progress with full details a month hence.

AVIARY QUERIES (Rob. Wood).—If you can make the flight of aviary 7½ to 8ft. high, it will be very much better, as then the birds have space to fly over your head, and are not so scared when you are inside attending to them. The shelter is of all importance; it must be draught and weather-proof generally, and it must be roomy, but it ought to be in your instance 10ft. by 9ft., and it must have sufficient window space to well light the whole. The aspect should be south, or as near that as possible. A trench should be dug all round the ground area of aviary 2ft. deep and 12in. wide; in this you must stretch wire-netting to wood posts, the top edge of the netting being just above ground level to enable it to be securely fastened to the upper structure; this is necessary to make the aviary secure against rats. The framing or flight should be quite light, 2in. square quartering being ample, and only sufficient standards put in to keep the crosspieces from sagging. The wood walls of shelter must be made so that there will be no cracks for wind to blow through; the better plan is to nail on to the skeleton framing a thickness of ½-in. matching, then tack over this a course of felt, and then put on another thickness of matching, and you will have a wall that is warm and weather-proof. The roofing should be similarly constructed, only the outer course of board should be weather-boards. All wood-work of shelter and flight should receive two coats of Solignum (pale brown) before any netting is stretched. You had better send me a rough ground plan of your back premises, giving dimensions and aspect, and if you send a stamped addressed envelope per Editor, I will send you a rough sketch with pleasure. Repeat query as to plants and birds when aviary is nearly finished.

WILL IT TALK? (A. D., Kent).—Your bird is a Rose-breasted, or Roseate Cockatoo, and though some make quite talented talkers, there are many others that scarcely utter a word, and in any case they take a lot more teaching than Greys. If your bird is still nervous, it certainly has not had a fair chance of showing whether it is going to turn out a talker or not. You have got to win its confidence by kindness and attention, while it will be better to keep it in your midst; care should be taken that sudden, rushy movements do not take place near it. When it is quite tame it will take an interest in what is going on; you can then train it by talking to it, repeating some word or short sentence over and over again. Choose periods when it is quiet and restful for this purpose. It should also when tame begin to imitate sounds and calls which it hears, and ultimately pick up words also which it hears frequently repeated in conversation. Once tame they become very charming, and become quite tricky and accomplished acrobats.

MUST I CONTINUE? (F. J. Parr).—Yes, I think it would be better to continue the treatment for another month; then, if all goes well, as it should do, you can gradually leave off the various drugs and not return to them again unless there should be some relapse, which I certainly do not anticipate. I should not trouble about the tongue; this is somewhat variable (it will get darker), so long as it is not furred or ulcerated; that is all that matters, but continue the honey and borax for awhile longer—it can do no harm, and will at least ensure the bird a clean mouth. I am pleased to note so happy a result, as I feared you had applied for assistance at too late a stage. Keep the bird in a light and airy but not draughty position; the temperature of any ordinary sitting-room should be ample, however—sudden ups and downs of temperature are not good for any bird.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

L. C. O.—Thanks for your interesting letter. You will see that we publish a communication dealing with the same matter. Should you care to write up your own ideas on the subject we shall be pleased to publish them.

H. W. Allmand.—The photograph is not a particularly good one, and we are dubious as to whether it can be reproduced successfully, but will use it if at all possible. Can't you manage a better print?

Foreigner.—Bird Notes is published by Mr. J. W. Henstock, Avian Press, Ashborne; the price is 1 6 per month, or 15/- annually.

J. M. Whitehead. We thank you for the cutting sent, but CAGE BIRDS really dare not publish anything which speaks of "titled and swell butchers . . . whose god is their belly. . . . murdering under the name of 'sport' the innocent dwellers of the muirland." We should be accused of meddling in politics, setting class against class, and all sorts of similar horrors.

SOME WAGTAIL FALLACIES.

The "Yorkshire Post," in its "Natural History Notes" in the issue of Aug. 23, publishes the following, which will be especially interesting to our readers in view of Mr. Steel's excellent article on Wagtails, the first portion of which appeared in CAGE BIRDS of Aug. 30:—

Mr. G. A. B. Dewar, writing recently in the "Standard," remarks:—

"The Pied Wagtail and the Grey Wagtail are probably nearer relatives than the Pied and the Yellow or than the Yellow and the Grey; though at first glance it is the Grey and the Yellow Wagtails that look so, both being dressed largely in gold, whereas the Pied Wagtail is just black or grey and white. Again the Grey and Yellow are absolute water fairies, whereas the Pied can live apart from water, still or running."

It is difficult to see how an observer of Mr. Dewar's eminence reaches the conclusion that the Yellow Wagtail is attracted by water to a greater extent than the Pied. The Grey Wagtail is probably the truest water lover of the race, for it is, indeed, rarely found apart from the running stream, but the Pied Wagtail, as its familiar name, Water Wagtail, implies, is also identified with river, rill, or lake to an almost equal degree. The White Wagtail, again, by many regarded as little more than a local variety of the Pied, rarely nests out of sight of water, and more frequently upon its very edge. The Yellow Wagtail, on the other hand, appears, in the matter of habit, to have more in common with the Pipits than with members of its own race. It is constantly found nesting in the open fields, far from any water, and its way of alighting on bush or hedge, piping softly, when the young are awaiting food, often reminds one of the Meadow-Pipit.

A Matter of Style.

Again, Mr. Dewar states that "the Grey and Yellow Wagtails (the Yellow, certainly) cut a more stylish figure on the wing than the Pied."

To this we must again demur. To our mind the spring of the Wagtail—the start from arc to arc through the air, as Mr. Dewar describes it—is distinctly bolder and more marked in the case of the Pied than in the Yellow.

It is somewhat curious that Professor Newton, in his edition of Yarrell, should make the statement that the Pied Wagtail but seldom perches on a tree or bush. It will surely be within the knowledge of many of our readers that Pied Wagtails, especially in autumn, often form roosting colonies, and betake themselves night after night to a given group of trees in order to sleep. The Pied Wagtail, again, may be often seen perching—after the manner of the Swallows on dead and leafless boughs when these appear on a tree, otherwise in thick foliage. In this Perthshire valley where we write, three Pied Wagtails may be seen from the window, perched on the boughs of a large ash tree.

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

By CHARLES HOULTON.

Edited by G. E. WESTON.

A glorious work on a fascinating subject. Charles Houlton has had a lifetime's successful experience in Mule and Hybrid Breeding, and the information he gives is priceless to those who wish success.

Two Chapters on Cages, Aviaries, Nests and Nesting Material.
One Chapter on Foods.
One Chapter on Selection of Stock.
One Chapter on Light Mule Breeding.
One Chapter on Dark Mule Breeding.
One Chapter on Hybrid Breeding.
One Chapter on each of the Mules and Hybrids already obtained, treating each in detail, and showing how they are to be obtained.
One Chapter on Hybrids yet to be produced.
One Chapter on the Standard Points of Exhibition Hybrids.
One Chapter on Feeding and Moulting of Hybrids.
Also Chapters on Washing the Birds for Exhibition, Exhibiting, and four Grand Appendices.

RESULT OF OUR "HIDDEN BIRDS" PUZZLE.

OUR Hidden Birds Puzzle, published in our issue of August 30 has proved quite as popular as any that have gone before it. A large number of attempts at solution were sent in, and among these no fewer than 143 had correct names to all the pictures. The birds depicted were (1) Starling, (2) Sunbird, (3) Wheatear, and (4) Puffin. In accordance with Rule 5, the correct solutions were well mixed up together, and one of them was drawn from the heap.

The solution to be thus selected was the one sent by

Mrs. J. Ward,
Timble Great,
near Otley, Yorks.

and the prize of 10s. 6d. therefore goes to this lady.

Picture No. 1 seemed to present little difficulty, and the very large majority of readers solved it correctly. Among the favourites of the incorrect solutions was Kingfisher, quite a number of solvers giving this. Other attempts were Gull "Congour," Nightingale, Wagtail, "Ship Starling," "Fishhawk," and Redstart.

Picture 2 would appear to have given more scope to the imagination, for among the incorrect solutions were Flycatcher, Skylark, Stonechat, Rook, Blackbird, Garden Warbler, Dhyal Bird, Wall Creeper, Bramblefinch, Nightingale, Swallow, Redstart, Fire Finch, Flame-breasted Flower Pecker, Amethyst-rumped Sun-bird, Bee-eater, Pekin Nightingale, Amazon Parrot, Ring Ousel, Jackdaw, Goldfinch, Crimson-crowned Weaver, Ray's Wagtail, Humming Bird, Twite, Parrakeet, Flamingo, Diamond Sparrow, Raven, Thrush, Oriole, Starling, Sedge Warbler, Hedge Sparrow, and Black-headed Mannikin.

No. 3 (Wheatear) proved almost as easy as No. 1, very few attempts being incorrect, but some readers thought the picture to represent such widely different birds as House Sparrow, Wood Pigeon, Meadow Pipit, Corncrake, Twite, Swallow, Lapwing, Corn Bunting, Thrush, Seagull, Goldfinch, Nightingale, Parrakeet, and others.

No. 4 (Puffin) must have given much thought, for quite a large number of solvers had incorrect answers. Among the "chance shots" were Roller Canary, Mannikin, Snow Bunting, Bullfinch, Talking Parrot, Grey Singing Finch, Wild Goose, Budgerigar, German Songster, Mountain Linnet, Skylark, Fieldfare, Grey Parrot, Greater Hill Mynah, Alpine Accentor, Macaw, Cockatoo, Chough, Swift, Partridge, Snipe, Woodpecker, Toucan, Flycatcher, Redcrested Cardinal, Grouse, Hoopoe, Cordon Bleu, Cock of the Rock, Sandpiper, Lark, and Creeper. Of this little bunch, "Grouse" strikes us as a distinctly good attempt at the solution.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnet sing held at George and Dragon, Bridge Street; 14 birds entered for three prizes. 1, W. Nelson; 2, Wainwright; 3, B. Nelson.—J. Brindley, Sec.

LEIGH.

Meeting held Globe Inn, Leigh. Decided to remove to headquarters, Market Hotel, Leigh, opposite Leigh Parish Church. Members please note, we are having a general meeting Sept. 21, at 1 p.m. All members are requested to attend, as business is important. I saw Mr. Harrison's report last week, and I would be very pleased to see him at the meeting, as I want to have a chat about the contests of the season.—R. Disley.

LEEDS.

Open contest for quality singing held at Old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon Street, Sept. 13; 16 sang for three prizes given by Mr. Wm. Tillotson. 1, Bray; 2, T. Chadwick; 3, Hardcastle. Judges, Clegg, Naylor. Also Sept. 14; 28 sang for four prizes: 1, Hardcastle; 2, 3, Butler; 4, J. Chadwick. Judges, W. Sissons, V. Madden, W. Naylor.—Walter Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Quality singing held Skinners Arms, Buslingthorpe, 1, 2, shared by Ward and Tomlinson; 3, Hutton. Judges, Messrs. Sellars and Granger.—C. Clayton, Hon. Sec.

Weekly contest for quality singing at Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, Sept. 14; 12 birds sang for three prizes, given by Mrs. A. Saynor. A. Binns and J. Chippendale shared 1 and 2: 3, T. Howarth. Judges, C. Lorrimer, J. Clark.—H. Brown, Hon. Sec.

"CAGE BIRDS." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Correspondence.

Death of a Noted Crest-bred Canary.

SIR,—I regret to say that my old yellow Crestbred ("Model") died a week ago. He has had a grand career, being in his 9th year. He won at the Palace show last February, and has won about 40 first prizes, including the Crested Canary Club show four times, at Cheltenham 4 years in succession, at Rochdale five, at Manchester three, at Nottingham two or three times, and at the L.C.B.A. and most of the other leading shows too many to mention.

Bolton. J. BROTHERTON.

A Lady's First Year Success with Crests.

Sir,—I was very surprised and pleased to see my Crest cock depicted on the cover of CAGE BIRDS last Friday. I only started in the Faney last year, and was lucky enough to rear him and one or two others equally as good. Not bad for a beginning, and this should encourage other novices to start with Crests. I don't think any other variety is half so fascinating. I intend having a good stud one day, but am afraid it will take some years to build up a strain to produce birds which will win in champion classes! However, that is the interest of it. I again thank you, and wish your paper and the grand prize scheme you have on hand this year every success. (Miss) V. ONSLOW.

The Moulting of Wild Birds.

Sir,—The wild birds look terribly ragged just now, while they are casting their old plumage, and growing a new suit. The Sparrows in particular seem disreputable objects, and hardly fit to be round respectable houses, and they are almost as quarrelsome as in the spring—whole bunches of feathers are scattered after every little "spar." Although birds look so badly, it is wonderfully interesting to watch the growth of the new feathers, especially in those species that acquire an entirely new colour with the change; for instance, note our common Robin Redbreast, and the Starling. One of the latter, on the grass within a few feet of the writer's window, has finished the moult, all but the head and neck; his body and wings are beautifully spangled and ticked in an astonishingly regular manner, and as he is a young bird of the year, his head and neck are both of a dirty grey colour, the head looking much too small, and snaky for the body. The Robin's look terribly ragged, and the new breast feathers are not nearly so rich in colour as the old ones, but they deepen as the moult comes to a finish. A few weeks make a lot of difference in the colour of plumage in wild birds, especially in those species that sing in the autumn. Nature appears to be kind to them; they cast their feathers easily, and are soon happy and in good condition once more. H. N.

The Problem of Migration.

Sir,—For long years we fanciers and naturalists, and our forefathers, have been trying to solve the problem of migration, and we have to take off our hats to Mr. E. Kay Robinson, for having solved it at one fell swoop. We have also to thank him for telling us that what we have written on the subject, both ourselves and our forefathers, is nothing but absolute egregious nonsense. The subject is settled now once and for all. I am sure it never struck us that the poor birds didn't know where to fly to, or in what direction. When you come to think of it, it is very simple (what asses we all have been, to be sure). All that the poor little things have to do is to wait for the cold North wind, spread out their wings, and open out their tail, then away on the wings of the wind to Africa. Mind you, according to Mr. E. Kay Robinson it must be a due North wind, because Africa lies due South from Britain, and as they don't know where to go to—ease of shut your eyes and open your wings—a North by East or a North by West wind would probably land them in Southern Asia, or in the Atlantic. (I'm not great on geography). Africa is their home, and no wind will suit them, but a due North. I happen to be connected with one of the leading observatories in the country, and in the autumn I have often wondered at the large flocks of migratory birds perched on the observatory, and in the immediate vicinity. Thanks to Mr. E. Kay Robinson, I now know why they are perching there. They are waiting anxiously scanning the wind indicator in case they miss the due North breeze; and I think I can almost see tears in their eyes as they mournfully watch the indicator, which at this period of the year will persist in pointing to West South-West. SUB ROSA.

A Hard Worker in the Cause.

Sir,—I went over to Dartford, Kent, to see some friends and visited the band competition on Aug. 30. I was introduced to a Mr. Peck. He was taking two little children round in faney costumes—a girl about four years and boy six years. They were collecting for the band. I afterwards learnt that the girl took first prize for most collected, and the boy second. We finished up at a cottage gardeners' show, and there found Mr. Peek again—he was showing about thirty Canaries. I heard then it was the Mr. Peek I had read about in CAGE BIRDS. It appears to me that he is always trying to do the hobby good, as I was told he is getting a decorated bird-cage competition up for the little children, and a ladies' paper-hat competition for the mothers. I am sure I wish Mr. Peek every success in his undertaking, especially the one for the children, as it will make them fond of birds.

THE "ILLINGWORTH" SILVER CUP.

Recently presented to the Idle C.B.S. (note report of the proceedings on page 175).

The Range of the Dipper in Ireland.

Sir,—As I have myself seen the Dipper in County Longford, I should like you to publish the following concerning the matter, sent by Mr. G. R. Fetherston, recently to the "Morning Post":—

For some years I have been constantly on the watch in suitable localities for this somewhat rare and interesting bird, the Dipper—Cinclus aquaticus. I have explored carefully both the upper and lower lakes at Killarney, and many mountainous streams and rivers of Kerry, where there are suitable ravinos, but without success. Yesterday, when fishing at a pretty, wild place about five miles from Ardagh, I saw the bird for the first time, and great was my delight. It was perched upon a stone in mid-stream, and now and again it would dive and swim, returning to the same stone. In "The Birds of Ireland," by Mr. Usher, he says very emphatically that it is found in every county in Ireland and breeds there, except in Longford; and in Westmeath, which is low-lying, it is scarce. My experience is now quite the reverse. I have never seen it in any other county but in Longford. It is a beautiful little bird, and I am glad we have it with us. The plumage is dark brown; chin, throat, and breast, on the upper part, pure white; on its lower part chestnut, blending towards the tail into deep grey; back, very dark grey, almost black; flight rather rapid. It has, I believe, a sweet song, but I was not fortunate to hear it. Can any County Longford people tell me if they have seen the Dipper, and if any nests have ever been found? T. J. MALONEY.

The Best Way to Catch Redpolls.

SIR,—I wonder if Mr. Frank Abbott (who wrote in your issue of Aug. 30) would kindly inform me of the best way to catch Redpolls, as there are any number around here, and I should like to catch a few just for my private use, for breeding, etc.

E. COCKRAM.

New Society for Brandon Colliery and Dis. (Co. Durham).

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Miners' Institute on Sept. 9th to form a cage bird society, when 14 members were enrolled. It was carried that we leave it open to all fanciers within a radius of six miles from Brandon Colliery. Officers elected: Chairman, Mr. Wm. Basey; treasurer, Mr. A. Robson; Sec., Mr. Geo. Reed, 35, Newcastle Street, Brandon Colliery, who will be pleased to send full particulars to fanciers wishing to join. All are welcome.

GEO. REED, Sec.

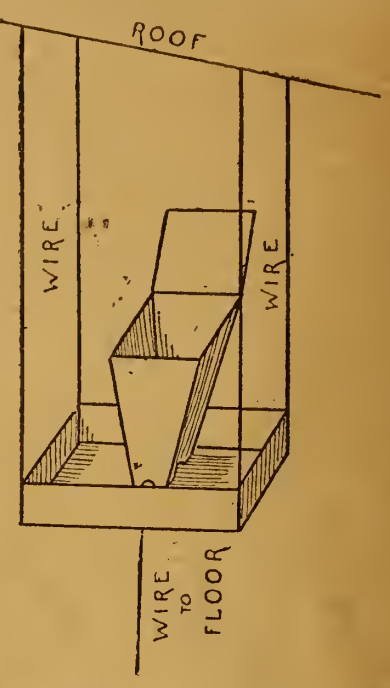
Late Nesting of a Yellowhammer

A Considerate Gardener.

Sir,—Last Friday, September 12th, while walking with a friend through his garden, I noticed a piece of a drill of potatoes, all that was left of a large plot. I asked if these few had been left for seed, but my friend, knowing I was interested in cage-birds, said "No, look at the shaws and you will see why it is left." There in the end shaw, which was well withered, was a hen Yellowhammer, sitting on a neat nest. I asked if she had young and he said he had not looked for a few days, when she then had four eggs. I then went up and found her sitting very close, but on setting her off I saw she had four nice healthy young ones about three days old. The nest was only two yards from the footpath, where dozens of people were passing every day. A. HAY.

What is the Matter with Members' Shows?

Sir,—I was rather amused when I read Mr. Metealfe's reply to my last letter. He seems to be greatly struck with "Looker On's" letter, yet he cannot advance one single item in its favour. Surely he must be able to give us some idea as to how his proposals are going to benefit, and better the conditions under which the present societies and shows are run. To my own thinking, Mr. Metealfe is one of those who are to blame for the non-success of our members' shows, as he openly declares he refuses to show until the present conditions are bettered. This is not the way to success; and especially if we all took it into our heads to do the same thing, which would mean the absolute ruin of the present societies. He says he does not want us to run away with the idea that he wants all the small societies to join in one big society. Let me here ask him to look up his dictionary and find the meaning of the word "Amalgamation." I take it to mean "all join together." Probably he is able to put some other interpretation on it. Anyway; let me ask him whether he thinks the amalgamated shows we have had in the Manchester districts this last two years have been the success he anticipates. They started, if my memory serves me right, with six societies, and have dropped at present to three societies; the entries, too, for the above were hardly better than at some of the members' shows, and I have not as yet heard of any society, or even members, making a fortune out of them. Again, he accuses me of standing still; well, I can only draw his attention to the fact that his society was the last to come into line with the above, yet the one I represent was one of the first, which only tends to show where the "standing still" comes in. Anyway, I am only too pleased to read his ideas, and also those of others on this question of amalgamation, and until convinced shall be content to fight and try to show that it would mean almost ruin to most of the existing societies. FORWARD.



Wanted, a Gramophone Record of the Roller's Song.

SIR,—I also would like to know where I could get a gramophone record of the Roller Canary's song. I see a reader of CAGE BIRDS asking for the same last week. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

W. VOWLES.

To Keep Mice from the Aviary Seed Hopper.

Sir,—I am sending you an idea of mine for a seed hopper for an aviary, so that the mice cannot get at the seed. I have an aviary outside, and I am troubled with mice, so I hit upon this idea, and it has proved a success, and I thought I would send it to you, in the hope that it may be of use to other readers of CAGE BIRDS. It is quite simple to make, as will be seen by the sketch; I made my own. It is simply a self filler, screwed to the seed box from underneath, and wired to the roof, and to the floor in the middle of the aviary. D. HILL.

A Nestling's Narrow Escape from Hanging.

Fed by parent, though upside-down!

Sir,—I think this incident, the account of which is sent by "H.F." to the "Scotsman" is unusual enough to interest my fellow fanciers. "H.F." writes: While walking along a lane in Kent the other day, our attention was attracted by a low, plaintive note from the tall straggling hedge that bordered the wayside, which seemed to us to indicate some creature in pain or danger. Foreing our way with considerable difficulty through the thick undergrowth, we saw a young bird hanging head downward from a nest on the top of the hedge. That the poor creature was captive in some way or other was very evident; so, trying to forget all I knew about thorns, I managed to make my way aloft, and found the victim firmly wedged by the foot between the nest and the branch on which it was set. I forthwith delivered the prisoner by demolishing the nest, much to the satisfaction of my waiting friends, but rather to the consternation of the mother bird, a Hedge Sparrow, who kept hovering near, uttering cries of distress. We found the foot atrophied and useless, ready to drop off, though otherwise the fledgling was quite plump and well. No doubt the mother had remained at hand to feed her unfortunate child after the other members of the family had flown; but what would have happened had we not by a lucky chance heard the pitiful appeal, and been able to respond to it?

The Cultivation of Wild Plants for Cage Birds

By R. MORSE (Hitchin)

SECTION 2: PERENNIAL AND BIENNIAL PLANTS.

NOTE. For full description of the plants dealt with in these articles, reference should be made to "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants for Cage Birds" (1s. 2d., post free, from our office), which contains, in addition, much useful information regarding the medicinal and other properties of the various plants and seeds commonly used in the bird room and aviary.

BLACK KNAPWEED (Centaurea nigra) or "Hardheads" closely resembles the Great Knapweed already dealt with in these notes, but can scarcely be classed as an ornamental plant, as its flowers are quite small compared with its larger relative, and have small claim to beauty. Its usual height is from eighteen inches to two feet, and it may be cultivated in precisely the same way as the other species referred to. (See issue of CAGE BIRDS, dated August 9). It grows abundantly in meadows and by waysides, where its flowers may be found from July to September.

Bad for Its Neighbours:

THE CORN SOWTHISTLE (Sonchus arvensis) occurs abundantly in cultivated fields. It is a stout plant, about three feet or more in height, and produces during August and September large yellow flowers, often measuring two inches in diameter, which are followed by seed heads very similar to the well known ones of the dandelion. Roots taken up in September and removed to the garden will produce a mass of blossoms and seeds the following year, but care is required lest the plants overrun their neighbours, for, like the Nettle, this Thistle produces a large number of creeping root-stocks, and hence rapidly covers a large plot of ground. The seeds of this species may be sown from March to July, the seedlings being thinned out so as not to become overcrowded. The drills should be about half an inch deep, and the seeds covered with fine soil. The Corn Sowthistle will not generally flourish in shaded situations.

The Spear Plume Thistle and Winter Cress.

A somewhat similar plant known as the Common Sow-thistle, or Milk Thistle (Sonchus oleraceus) is an annual species, and hence requires sowing each year in March or April, as the plants, of course, die completely away after producing seed. The flowers are considerably smaller than those of the Corn Sowthistle.

A Few Biennials.

The following plants differ from all those previously dealt with in these articles, for although they live for two seasons, they produce only one crop of seed, after which the plants die.

THE SCOTTISH THISTLE (Onoporpium Acanthium) is a stout, hoary plant with large, pale purple flowers, and is well worthy of cultivation for its beauty alone. It is indeed grown as the national emblem in many parts of Scotland. The seeds of this plant should preferably be sown in May or June, in drills about half an inch deep, the young seedlings being transplanted at an early age, and removed again in September to their permanent situations. When performing this operation, the size attained by mature specimens should be borne in mind, for the plants will not flourish if allowed to become overcrowded. The Scottish Thistle occurs wild in many parts of England, particularly in the southern counties, where young plants which have not flowered can often be found during September. If these are carefuly removed to the garden, and well watered after planting, they will all flower the following year.

THE SPEAR PLUME-THISTLE (Cnicus lanceolatus) may be cultivated in the same way as the Scottish Thistle, as it is also a biennial plant of similar habit.

THE WILD TEAZLE (Dipsacus sylvestris) often reaches a height of five or six feet, and a group of fine specimens is distinctly ornamental. Indeed, country folk often gather Teazles to decorate their rooms, as the plants retain their beauty for many months. They are of fairly common occurrence in waste places and hedgerows, where they produce their purplish flowers from July to September. When sowing the seed, the drills should be about half an inch deep, and the young plants treated as recommended for Scottish Thistle above.

Black Knapweed (or Hardheads) and Sow (or Milk) Thistle

COMMON WINTER CRESS (Barbarea vulgaris) is a common plant in moist waste places, and on hedgebanks, where its yellow flowers may be found from May until July, these being followed by seed-pods about one inch in length. The plants are about eighteen inches high when mature, and may be cultivated in the same way as the Scottish Thistle, except that the drills should be some bit shallower, and the seeds lightly covered with fine soil. When placed in their permanent positions the plants should stand about six inches apart.

The Importation of Plumage (Prohibition) Bill.

A PETITION TO MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

WE, the undersigned members of your constituency, desire respectfully to call your attention to "The Importation of Plumage (Prohibition) Bill," presented by Mr. Hobhouse and supported by Mr. S. Buxton and Mr. Montagu, read a first time on Aug. 4th last.

With the Bill, so far as it relates to the matter indicated in its title, we have, as bird-keepers, little or no concern, but the measure goes very far beyond its title, and contains matter which is of vital importance to us.

Clause 4 of the Bill reads as follows:—"An order may be made by the Secretary of State, the Secretary for Scotland, or the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland under sections eight and nine of the Wild Bird Protection Act, 1880, and sections two and three of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1894, and section one of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1896, which give powers with reference to the protection of wild birds and their eggs, without any application or representation from the council of any county or borough."

If the Bill is passed as printed the result will be that after the tenth day of January next it will be in the power of the ministers named to prohibit the taking of any wild bird throughout England, Scotland, or Ireland, respectively, and that without even being asked to do so.

It is open already for any local authority to get upon application an extension of the Acts named in Clause 4, and the bird-laws vary locally throughout practically every county in Great Britain and Ireland, in accordance with requests made to the Secretary of State by local authorities.

We contend that the powers already vested in local authorities to alter the existing Acts of Parliament in any way that may seem advisable as applying to their own particular district are fully ample, and that there is neither need nor advisability to transfer these powers to an individual statesman who may act upon his own initiative without application or representation from local councils.

We contend, further, that Clause 4 has no reference to the importation of plumage, and should not be included in any Bill having such a title as that of the one which is now before the House of Commons.

And we, the undersigned, being among the many thousands of British subjects who take an abiding interest in the instructive hobby of pet-bird keeping, respectfully beg that upon the second reading of the Importation of Plumage Bill you will, as member for this constituency in which we reside, use your influence in obtaining the deletion of the said Clause 4 as being entirely foreign to the expressed purport and meaning of the Bill.

Notes by the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

I am pleased to be able to say that the correspondence which I have received as a result of my having once more called attention to the Plumage Bill shows conclusively that bird-keepers are awakened to the danger in which their hobby will be placed if this measure is passed into law.

Many of the members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and other readers of our paper, have already written to their local Parliamentary representatives, and several have suggested that I should myself draft a letter, which they could cut out of CAGE BIRDS and send to Members of Parliament.

Above will be found, therefore, a petition conveying our views upon this very important subject, and it now only remains for cage-bird keepers themselves to see that the matter is brougbt to the attention of every Member of Parliament. The petition, with its heading, should be cut out, pasted upon a sheet of foolscap, signed by the reader, and by as many of his friends as possible, and addressed to the Member of Parliament for the town or district at the House of Commons, Westminster, London, S.W.

Let each Member of Parliament fully understand that among his constituents are numbered many who protest against the Bill being carried in its present form, and it is only reasonable to think that the wishes of the many thousands of bird-keepers who have Parliamentary votes will not be ignored.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

Leaflets setting forth the aims and objects of the LEAGUE will be forwarded, post free, to any reader upon application.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE MUSIC OF THE GENTLER SEX.

Some Hen Birds that Sing.

The power possessed by birds of producing connected musical notes seems, as a general rule, to be the prerogative of the male. Female birds rarely sing, writes "A.T.B." in the "Scotsman," because in them the larynx—the upper part of the windpipe—is much less fully developed than in the males.

The singing of certain female birds—the Redstart, Blackbird, and Willow Warbler—resembles the recording of the males. By recording is meant that practising of the voice which most male birds find necessary in spring in order that they may recover their full powers of song. Recording consists usually of a twittering or chirping, in which the bird's favourite phrases occasionally emerge, these being given, in process of time, with increasing facility and a nearer approach to their former excellence.

Yarrell observes that during the period of producing the eggs the female Skylark has occasionally been heard to sing with a power and variety of tone not excelled in the song of the male. The female Woodlark also sings, but the strain is broken and interrupted. In the pairing season the female Canary, excited by the lively singing of the male, may sometimes utter a few notes, but they have no musical quality. In the case of one that is too old to breed, these notes are sometimes heard throughout the year.

According to some authorities who were the contemporaries of Sweet, the female Nightingale sings. This was not Sweet's own experience. The female Blackcap sings in confinement, but its note is quite different from, and is not so agreeable as, that of her mate. Sweet had one in his possession for six years. During the first three, it did not sing, but, after that, its voice was frequently heard. The female Reed Bunting possesses a singing voice, but her notes have not the power of her mate's. The male Starling learns to repeat words and to whistle airs, a power which is also possessed by the female.

Both the male and female Bullfinch sing; and, though their natural note is harsh and disagreeable, resembling the creaking of a door or of a wheel-barrow, the power of receiving instruction possessed by both sexes is so great that they may be trained, as is the case in England, Holland, and Germany, to whistle airs and songs in a soft, pure, flute-like tone which is highly prized by bird-lovers.

The female Robin and the female Great Grey Shrike also sing.

A silver cup value three guineas has been allocated to the cage bird section for competition amongst the young birds at annual show, Nov. 29.—T. G. Bransford.

TONBRIDGE F.A.

Members' young stock show, held Sept. 10. The cage bird section was not up to the mark in entries, but quality was good. No doubt the moult and a bad breeding season made a difference. The members ought to rally round a bit more to make members' shows a success and to help their hard-working secretary, Mr. P. Stonestreet. Messrs. Cross, Greenaway, and Smithers (committee), and their able treasurer, Mr. Mockford, who did the lion's share of the staging, etc., which reflects great credit on them. The outstanding bird was a Buff Yorkie, which won special best in show. He was run very close by a Buff Norwich of Mr. Smithers'. Mr. C. R. Bullen (Bromley, Kent) judged and gave satisfaction.

YORKS FED: 1, sp, 3, C. Cross, fine upstanding Buff, good qual., will be heard of later; 2, 4, Ford, leader a bit open in front; res, vhc, hc, c, Bellchamber. NON-FED: 1, res, Cross, grand upstanding Cinn. mkd. Buff, ought to make a good one when moulted; 2, 4, W. Creed; 2nd close up, very nice bird; 3, Ford, Buff fails in head to others. NOR. BALA.

Forty-sixth annual show of Merionethshire Agricultural Society, held Sept. 12. Cage birds were rather disappointing in numbers, owing to the moulting season, as old birds have dropped into the moult by now, and very few youngsters are ready in the circuit. Some good birds were shown, especially the Mules by Messrs. Hughes Brothers, both well-known; the local class for unflighted was well filled. Mr. Roberts carried out the secretarial duties once more in a masterly way, assisted by experienced stewards in Messrs. R. H. Morris, J. E. Jones, and J. E. Hughes, and the show, as usual, was well patronised. Open classes for unflighted birds would no doubt improve entries in the future. Mr. W. A. Cowgill judged, and gave full satisfaction.

NOR., CL., ETC., YELL.: 1, Roberts, good cl., immense size, good type, head and neck, looks like the Llanrwst winner moulting; 2, Edwards, hot fed cl., Festiniog winner, nice type and condition, not the size of winner; 3, Miss Lee, nice type and wings, out of condition. BUFF cancelled. YORKS., CL., ETC., YELL.: 1, 2, Miss Williams, fine cl., good length and position, leggy, neat wings and tail, rich col.; 2nd, nat. col. cl., leggy and stylish, good feather; 3, Edwards, typical stylish cl., heavy in moult; res, Richards. BUFF cancelled. COLEF.: 1, Hughes Bros., rich deep blaze, very expansive, good width of head, nice tans and markings, well known; 2, Roberts, grand type and col., rich blaze, close up, will make a good one with more training, unsteady to-day; 3, Evans, very nice one, dropping into moult, Festiniog winner. A.O. BRIT.: 1, Roberts, capital Greenie, good size and shape, rich col., in best of form. A.O.V.: 1, 2, Hughes Bros., good size-pointed Goldie-Can., full of qual., nice size, capital feather and col.; 2nd, Linnet Can., big winner, rich col., not in form. Club Reports.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Meeting held Oddfellows' Hall, August 30, Mr. J. Muir presiding. Decided to keep books open till November meeting for old members. Also settled to have a bird on the front of the medals for the show. Next meeting, Sept. 27. Intending members please come forward.—W. Clarkson, Sec.

NORTH STAFFS. ROLLER C.C.

It is regretted that in consequence of unforeseen circumstances our September meeting was abandoned. A good attendance is requested at the October meeting, to fix date, and make final arrangements for the members' show. As the writer is to judge this show will some member kindly volunteer to officiate as show secretary? J. Tomlinson, Sec.

LOCHGELLY C.B.A.

Meeting held Sept. 16, Mr. T. Wierside presiding. Sec. displayed schedule for members' approval. Stewards elected for open show being prominent fanciers, intending exhibitors may be assured of their birds having expert attention. B.B. and M.C. patronage has again been secured, also Scottish P.C. This season's schedule is in advance of all others.—R. Muir, Sec.

GRANTHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 1, Brewer's Arms, Mr. Twilley presiding over a very good attendance. After the usual business it was proposed by Mr. E. Bond, seconded by Mr. W. Garton, that we hold a table show on next club night, Oct. 6; birds to be staged by 7.30. Classes: Nor. Yell., ditto Buff, Yorks. Yell., ditto Buff, Goldf. and Bullf.; A.O.V. Brit. Hardbill; Mules, Greypates. A special prize of ½-stone of seed is to be awarded to the best bird in show, and it is hoped that each member will do his best to make the show a success.—H. Lowther, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting held headquarters, Sept. 10, before a moderate gathering, Mr. Willmott chair. Rules and judge for young stock show duly dealt with, and the meeting was unanimous that the whole of the entrance money be paid out for prize money, with no deductions for expenses. The judge engaged is new to the district and should attract good entrances. The birds will be entered at time of show, so that members will be able to leave their selection of the birds until the last, and will have a better chance to pick out their best stock.—J. Sheppard, Sec.

BURSLEM C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 11 at the Barnfields Inn, Pleasant Street, Mr. H. Hassal chair, to draw up schedule and elect judge for annual members' show Nov. 1. The classification was arranged something similar to last year's, with six additional classes—two Norwich unflighted, two Yorks unflighted, and two Brit. open. Mr. Brotherhood was elected judge. The Roller section have fixed the date of their young bird contest for Dec. 6. There will be one open class, for novices. Mr. Tomlinson, of Newcastle, has been appointed to judge. Anyone wishing to join us should make an early application, so that they can be proposed at next meeting, in order to make them eligible to show at either of our annual fixtures.—L. James, Sec., 48, Croft Street, Burslem.

LOANHEAD C.B.S.

Meeting held Mason's Arms, Sept. 13, Mr. A. Gilchrist chair. Sec. said he had secured Masonic Hall for show, Oct. 11. A large selection of gold medals were on approval, and after a careful selection the sec. was instructed to get four as selected. The following members were elected to canvass the district for specials:—A. Gilchrist, Wm. H. Nelson, Geo. Yule, R. H. Douglas, D. Dalgleish, and the sec. Sec. intimated that he had got a money order through Mr. Jardine, pres., from an old friend and fancier, Mr. Thos. Briggs (Canada), as a special for Scotch Fancy section, and he was instructed to thank Mr. Briggs for his handsome special. Decided to draw specials at next meeting, first Saturday in October. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close. W. B. Smart, Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 4, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. F. Jones (pres.) in chair, supported by treas., Mr. Oxley, and the two secs. Most of the business was in connection with open show, Oct. 18. Several things were decided, which we hope will help to make it a huge success; several committees are at work, and we hope to hear favourable reports from them at our next meeting. Mr. C. W. Hobson, assisted by Messrs. Walsh and Drabble, are doing very well on the finance committee, and have got a good few donations; we wish them further success in their efforts. Members will have got their tickets for open show by now. Will they do their best in the sale of them and so help the officials to make it a record show? All business being got through, the President called on Mr. P. Walsh to give us his talk on British. He dealt with all the species he has kept, which includes most of the British hardbills, also several softbills. He told us of the foods for each variety most suitable to keep them in health, and of all the little wrinkles he has found out he told us freely. The pleasure of hearing Mr. Walsh lies in the fact that he tells you all he knows, so that the birds may benefit as well as the owners. No one need scruple to try his mode of feeding, as the excellence of his diet is borne out by the number of years his birds live, he having a Nightingale six years old, a Blackbird fifteen years, and others that are well advanced. At the end of his talk he was freely plied with questions; these he answered in a very able manner. A vote of thanks to Mr. Walsh for his very practical and helpful remarks was moved by Mr. Bailey, seconded by Mr. A. Hooson, and supported by Mr. Jones. Mr. Walsh suitably replied, and invited anyone who cared to go and see his birds, when anything he could show them he would willingly do. Next meeting nomination of officers and special table show of Yorks, Norwich, Crests, and British; 12 classes; prize money 3s., 2s., 1s., in addition to Mr. Jones's challenge shield and other specials.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

GLASGOW C.B.A.

Committee meeting held Sept. 9, in Nelson's Temp. Hotel, Mr. J. F. Park chair, and a full attendance of members. Sec. reported having fixed with the following as judges for annual show, viz.:—Crests, Mr. Jno. McKay; Plainheads, Mr. A. G. Cameron; Borders, Mr. T. Arnott (Hawick); Yorkshires, Mr. L. Dyke (Bradford); British and Foreign, Messrs. A. W. Watson and L. J. Arrighi. Also that association had secured the patronage of Yorkshire C.C., Border F.C.C., S.B.B. and M.B.C., also Nat. Scottish Crest Club had decided upon having young bird show in conjunction with show and that he awaited result of Plainhead meeting re their patronage. Several details in connection with show were then decided upon, and a vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—Wm. Hutchison.

WEST STANLEY C.B.A.

Monthly meeting held Sept. 6, Mr. J. Emmerson chair, with a good muster of members. Decided, after a long discussion, not to have a prize draw this year, but to have a gift class; all birds to be sold at 7 p.m. on last day of show by public auction, the reserve price on each specimen to be 5s. CAGE BIRDS Coupon competition will be held at our annual show, Nov. 7-8. I have a few coupons left, and any fancier not in possession of them can have some. Schedules are ready and will be sent to all of last year's exhibitors; or to anyone on receipt of postcard. We have given the best classification in the North, full prize money, and a big cash special for each section. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed a very busy and pleasant evening. —W. Elliott, Sec.

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

Lecture given at headquarters, Shoulder of Mutton, Sept. 13, by Mr. J. Thomas, Otley, on "The Bills of Birds," Mr. Crabtree in the chair. There was a good attendance, and the lecturer gave us a very interesting evening, explaining to us the bills of both British and Foreign birds, and also bringing with him various sketches of the subjects of his remarks, which made the lecture extremely clear to all. Questions were asked by various members, and replies were readily given by Mr. Thomas. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. Tidswell, seconded by Mr. Greaves, was carried by applause. Mr. Thomas replied, thanking the members for their kind appreciation of his efforts, and said that when he came again he would do his very best for us by preparing something very interesting, and so closed a very successful evening in every way, each one hoping that we shall soon have Mr. Thomas with us again.—A. Cooper, Sec.

LEITH O.S.

Meeting held in Liberal Club, Hope St., Sept. 13, President, Mr. Jas. Lumsden, in chair, and a meagre attendance. The inclemency of the weather no doubt accounted for the short attendance, but we think it is hard upon the officials who have to see that the business of the Society is carried through. Several important items came up for discussion, the most important being consideration of the awards to Mr. John Munro's bird in Scotch Fancy section at last year's show, the bird having proved itself to be a cock after winning as a hen. It was decided to let the matter lie over till October meeting. Agreed to get show bills, prize cards, etc., from the same firm as last year; decided also to again have a gift class, the Society to provide cages, and members should keep this in mind when sending in their entries. Agreed to ask Sir Richard Mackie to present the prizes. A class for Green or Cinnamon hens was added to the Border Section. Next meeting Oct. 11, when we hope to see a larger turnout of members, as it is the last meeting previous to show.—G. W. Brown, Sec.

RICHMOND (Surrey) C.B.A.

Meeting held Aug. 27, at Imperial Hotel, Richmond. Mr. W. Phipps presided over a large attendance. Prize money was paid out for F.F. show, and silver medal for most points presented to Mr. Beavington. Mr. Lamb, Malden, was elected a member. Decided to hold autumn show on Oct. 25, at the St. John's Hall, Richmond, an ideal hall for the purpose. We have put on 50 classes and catered especially for the novice, and it is hoped they will appreciate it by sending in a bumping entry. Mr. J. Hodder will judge. Will every member make a special effort to attend next meeting, Sept. 24, at 8, as important business connected with the show must be settled, and it concerns everyone. We should like to see some of the starters of the society show up and help in the work. Any fancier wishing to join must send their names in by Oct. 24th if they wish to exhibit at our annual.—W. Nichols, Hon. Sec., 34, Beaconsfield Rd., St. Margaret's, Twickenham.

LLANELLY C.B.S.

The event of the year has come and gone, with only a fortnight to propose and carry through the arrangements for a social evening. Mr. Dd. Jenkins, of Swansea, having kindly promised to assist the members at any time, the secretary (Mr. John) thought that Mr. Jenkins could not be of better service than in giving a washing exhibition, and Mr. Jenkins at once fell in with the idea. Supper was to start at 6.30, and some ten minutes later, with Councillor D. R. Jones in the chair, a start was made. While the tables were being cleared, a very pleasing affair was taking place—the presentation of a valuable smoking cabinet to our worthy member and show manager, Mr. T. J. Gregory. Councillor Jones, in making the presentation, said that it gave him great pleasure, on behalf of the members of the society, to make the presentation to one of their most worthy and hard-working members, and he hoped Mr. Gregory would not look on the value of it other than as a token of esteem and respect. He hoped that the present would in Mr. Gregory's old age bring the memory of past events. Mr. Gregory, who had been taken unawares, said he thanked them very much, but he was quite unable to make a speech. Councillor Jones then called upon the sec., who pointed out the value such a member as Mr. Gregory was to the society. He said he was proud of him as a member, and was glad of having been one of the means of getting up the presentation. After songs by Messrs. Parks, Gregory, and Evans came the time for the washing exhibition by Mr. Jenkins, who explained in detail the ways and means of handling the birds before commencing to wash, and then washed two. The chairman, having asked if any of the members would like to try their hand, Vice-chairman Mr. J. Owens, who is a novice in the Fancy, tried his hand. Then Mr. Jenkins' son took Mr. Owen's son under his guidance in washing one, which he very readily did. The chairman moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Jenkins for his kindness. Mr. Jenkins, in replying, said it gave him great pleasure to be amongst them that night, and to see the way everything had been carried out. He gave a few words of advice to the members to do their best to assist the officers, and to back up their evergreen secretary, Mr. John, who was always at it for the good of the society. Mr. H. Webster, assist. sec. spoke at some length as to the best ways and means of increasing the interest of the society, and the enrolling of new members, and the advantages of first feather shows, table shows, lectures, etc. He said that we ought to bring the membership up to 50 this year. Three new members were elected, and the meeting came to an end; one of the best held in the record of the society.—D. John, Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting held "El Vino," Piccadilly Place, Sept. 9, Mr. J. Dewhurst chair. Mr. Wallington gave a report of the last Federation meeting, and the remainder of the evening was taken up in discussing matters in connection with the annual show. Schedules will be sent to all exhibitors whose names appear in the catalogues of the L.C.B.A., and Crystal Palace Shows, also to members of specialists societies, whose patronage has been obtained. Sec. will be pleased to forward schedules upon applications to intending exhibitors, whose names do not appear in any of the above.—Jas. Bray, jun., Hon. Sec., 68, St. Dunstan's Road, Hammersmith, W.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 11 at headquarters, Mr. F. J. Weaver presiding over a good attendance—an attendance which makes one think the annual show is coming on. Schedule was well thrashed out with many heated arguments, and after a thorough discussion came out in flying colours. When the schedule is presented, exhibitors will find we are the people who are catering for them, and I hope they will give us a bumping entry in return. Classes provided are 8 Champ. Nor., 4 Nov., 2 Crest, 6 Champ. Yorks, 4 Nov., and we are favoured again with the patronage of the M.C.Y.C.C.; 1 A.O.V., 2 Mule, 6 Brit., 2 Foreign. We have again been successful in getting the Co-operative Hall, an ideal room for a show, well lighted and free from draughts, and at night it is lighted by electricity. It is only one minute's walk from station and tram. CAGE BIRDS coupons were on view and selling. Members who were not present kindly let me know how many they are requiring. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a real good three-hours discussion to a close.—J. Gibbons, Hon. Sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Special meeting, presided over by Mr. W. H. Stoakley, held at 6, The Broadway, Sept. 8, to deal with the work in connection with the annual show next month at Queen's Hall. The holidays evidently affected the attendance, which was not up to the usual average. Three new members were made, and sec. Mr. H. Smith reported that the young bird show held in July had proved successful, the judge, Mr. J. Robson, pronouncing the quality of the exhibits good throughout. The show would have the patronage of the Southern Yorks. C.C. (cup and trophy, champion and novice), the Southern N.P.C. (champion and novice), the Southern Border F.C., and the National British Bird and M.C. The appointment of judges was confirmed, as were also the draft rules and classification prepared by the committee. Schedule will be put in hand as soon as the various details are completed. Several good specials were promised by members to add to the goodly list already received. The remainder of the evening was filled in with "questions and answers," which proved very interesting and entertaining. Miss Durham is to give an interesting lecture at the October meeting.—H. Smith, Hon. Sec.

COLINTON AND CURRIE PARISHES O.S.

Meeting held in Drill Hall, Juniper Green, Sept. 6, president, Mr. Begbie, chair. Secretary and President were appointed to wait on Dr. Fowler regarding prize for annual show; a number of specials were notified. President made appeal to all members to have as many specials as possible at next meeting. Decided that no birds be lifted at show before 6 p.m. Letters read from Messrs. Younger, Balerno, and Gibson (Colinton) giving subs. towards society; also from Mr. Steel (Dalkeith) offering to give a practical illustration of how to make a Border show cage. Decided to accept Mr. Steel's kind offer and to have extra meeting on Sept. 13 to suit Mr. Steel.

Extra meeting held Saturday, Sept. 13, Vice-Pres., Mr. Michie chair. Mr. Steel was present as promised, and made a good portion of a cage and explained the block he used for making them, and showed the members how easy it was to make a cage; Mr. Steel's block system is very simple. He also explained the best and cheapest way to paint the cages, and the lecture proved very instructive and interesting to all. At the close Mr. Michie, in a few well-chosen words, thanked Mr. Steel for his kindness in giving us so much of his experience. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Steel.—Jas. Napier, Sec.

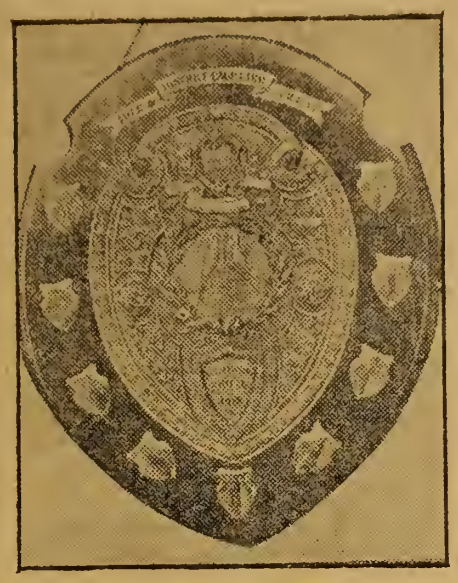
The Good Fortune of the Idle C.B.S.

Presented with a Silver Cup and a Challenge Shield.

The handsome silver cup presented to the Idle and District C.B.S. by Mr. Percy Illingworth, M.P., was formally handed over to the society at a smoking concert held at their headquarters, the White Bear Inn. The cup, an excellent example of the silversmith's art, has been supplied by the well-known firm of Rhodes and Son, Ltd., Bradford. It bears the following inscription: "Idle and District Cage Bird Society. Presented by P. H. Illingworth, Esq., M.P., for perpetual competition." A Challenge Shield, the cost of which has been defrayed by subscription, was also presented to the society.

Mr. J. Chippendale, who presided over the gathering, said they were fortunate in having obtained two such trophies. The society was only in its infancy, and the gifts which they had received would encourage them to make it one of the best organisations of its kind in the Bradford district. (Applause.) The chairman complimented the secretary (Mr. C. E. Hylton) on the able manner in which he had discharged his duties.



An Advantage to Every Man.

Councillor H. Thornton Pullan (of Eccleshill), who presented the cup on behalf of Mr. Illingworth, said the society had naturally hoped that the donor would be present on that occasion, but he (Mr. Pullan) was sure they would excuse his non-attendance when they knew that he was enjoying a well-earned holiday. As they all knew, Mr. Illingworth took a deep interest in all classes of sport. Although not conversant with the Canary Fancy he (Mr. Pullan) could readily imagine how a person could become deeply interested in the rearing of birds. It was to every man's advantage to have a hobby of one kind or another. He hoped the cup which Mr. Illingworth had kindly given would have a tendency to stimulate interest in the society. (Applause.)

The cup was accepted on behalf of the society by the chairman, who said they were greatly indebted to Mr. Illingworth for his generosity. (Applause.)

When Our Hobby Scores.

In presenting the shield on behalf of the subscribers, Mr. J. J. Booth remarked that there were many valuable lessons to be learnt from hobbies. A hobby which had to do with living things was, he thought, intensely interesting, because it brought them nearer to Nature than such pastimes as cricket, football, and other outdoor recreations. He had no doubt that the hobby of Canary breeding, if properly pursued, was not only interesting, but profitable. He thought that every man should participate in some pleasure in order to bring about a real recreation of mind and spirit. He trusted that the members would show their appreciation of the trophies they had received by endeavouring to make the society as efficient as possible. (Applause.)

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Pullan and Mr. Booth on the motion of Mr. T. Elsegood, seconded by Mr. F. Studd. Songs were excellently rendered at intervals by Mr. W. Shepherd, Mr. G. Cordingley, and Mr. B. Hobson. Mr. F. Whittaker was the accompanist.

WELSH C.B.A.

A general meeting will be held Sept. 22, at Ship and Bell, Merthyr, at 3. All members are requested to attend. Will the members who still hold the cups from last season please bring same to this meeting to enable them to be presented in the usual way? Some members have not yet paid their subscription. This must be paid before this meeting, otherwise they will not be allowed to vote, etc. It is impossible for me to continue the secretarial duties, and at this meeting I shall hand in all books, etc.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec.

WEST OF FIFE C.B.L.

Meeting held September 13, Masonic Arms, Cowdenbeath, Mr. A. Dickson chair. Decided to give a special of 5s. at Lochgelly Show, for most points gained by a member of the League; 5s. at Kelty Show (Lochgelly winner debarred) and 5s. at Cowdenbeath show (Lochgelly and Kelty winners debarred), and 5s. most points over all the shows under patronage. Result of the Essay Competition of our Young Bird Show was read; the 1st prize is a singing Canary (by Mr. J. R. Reid). Messrs. Wildridge and Smith gave 2s. 6d. each, and this was left in the hands of Mr. Reid to buy three suitable books for 2, 3, and 4th prizes. Fanciers in the district will do well to get the Cowdenbeath "Mail" this week, as the winning essays will be printed in it. Decided that sec. get free admission to the shows under patronage, also free catalogue and index book of entries if required, after the local secretaries are finished with them. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought a poorly attended meeting to a close. —Jas. Cordery, Sec.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Following is a list of additional members who have been enrolled in the different societies of the Union since the handbook was printed, and whose names all secretaries of shows in the Union would do well to cut out and paste in the handbook for future reference. Included in the list are a few members who have changed their address, and these would be pleased if Union members generally would kindly make a note of them:—Bolton Woods: (N) J. Ellis, 16, Bank Crest, Baildon, nr. Shipley; (N) W. Booth, Fidler Green, Wrose Hill, Shipley.

Alteration of addresses:—Bradford East: E. Dinsdale, 2, Peach St., Brompton Rd., Bowling; H. S. Naylor, 22, Roxby St., Manchester Rd., Bradford; B. Cowell, 38, Rayleigh St., Bowling, Bradford; W. Turner, 29, Rossefield Rd., Heaton, Bradford. Halifax: J. Robertshaw, Mytholme Cottage, Hebden Bridge; H. W. Walsh, 10, Wallace St., Kingston, Halifax.

Mr. F. Hampshire, Sunnyside, Skelmanthorpe, has been appointed sec. to Skelmanthorpe C.B.A., vice Mr. J. Hird (resigned), and all who intend sending entries to their annual show should make a note of this.—H. Hill, Sec.

DUBLIN S. COUNTY C.B.A.

Special meeting held in Court House, Town Hall, Kingston, Aug. 28. A fairly large number attended. Mr. Sholedice chair. Unanimously agreed to hold a members' show on Oct. 11, birds to be benched by 3.30. Mr. Sholedice has kindly consented to judge. Entry 3d. per cage. Decided not to send out entry forms, but that exhibitors pay fees at door on show day. Classification:—Yorkshire cock, Yorkshire hen, A.O.V. cock, A.O.V. hen, Goldfinch, Linnet, Softbill, A.O.Brit., Mules—Goldfinch Light, Goldfinch Dark, Linnet Light, Linnet Dark; Foreign. Unanimously agreed to hold a monthly meeting night on second Monday each month at 8. Messrs. McKeon, Beegan, and Waters spoke highly of this movement, and the chairman promised to contribute a paper at the first meeting, entitled "How to prepare our birds for show." The meeting terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman.—D. Smyth, hon. sec.

BRITISH ROLLER C.C.

Will secretaries of shows requiring the B.R.C. patronage kindly write early to avoid clashing of dates if possible? Conditions of Young Bird Point Competition:—Decided by the club that owing to enormous entries made in champion and novice young bird classes (viz., 70 and 80) and complaints having been made that some shows do not give any extra prize money, that this is not fair, and unless altered will be the means of driving exhibitors out of the Roller Fancy. The following sliding scale has been drawn up, which is fair to exhibitors and will pay societies running Roller classes:—Classes of 40 or less, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th prize money; over 40, to have an extra 3rd and 4th; over 50, extra 2nd, 3rd, and 4th; over 60, extra 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and fourth. Mention has been made that this will make the giving of specials awkward. The specials should be printed in schedules and worked as follows:—1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th best bird. Thus, in a class of 50, the 3rd best bird would be the extra 2nd, the 4th best bird would be the 3rd, and the fifth best bird the extra 3rd, and so on. It will also be fairer to the exhibitors, as at some shows the prize money has been given 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th, and the points for the Y.B. Competition worked that the 5th prize winner only scored three points, same as the vhc. Under new system, the 5th, 6th, and 7th, etc., will have extra points, according to number of entries; thus, in a class of 50, the fifth best bird would be an extra 3rd and score five points instead of three points under the old system. —J. W. Norris, Hon. Sec.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM.
So far as your birds are concerned, is solved in "Aviaries, Birdrooms and Cages," a grand work by H. Norman. Fully illustrated by the author and with many photographic reproductions. It also tells you how to make cages. 1/8 (stiff cover) and 2/3 (cloth gilt), from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet lly. These clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 2d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾ inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMNETS

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

SOFTBILLS: the smaller species; full information upon their proper feeding and management in captivity, is given by H. J. Fulljames in "Nutshell No. 25," which also deals with hand-rearing, and describes the collection of ants' eggs, 2½d. post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents; see list on another page).

THE Song Thrush and Blackbird.—Full directions how to keep these favourite songsters in the best possible condition; together with directions for hand-rearing the young and the selection of show birds, will be found in "Nutshell No. 4," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from agents (list published frequently).

ON receipt of 1/6 I will send, securely packed, on approval, the finest singing cock Skylark ever seen or heard, been in my possession months, suitable for contest singing or shop's attraction, including free my valuable feeding secret which keeps Larks in full song ten months out of twelve. I have supplied more contest winners than anyone in England; heaps of unsolicited testimonials to prove this; same address 25 years.—Woods, Cross-st., Dunstable. (845)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of Insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest aud get it for 2d.

CRAGHEAD WORKMEN'S CLUB F. AND F. AND C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 21, Clubroom, to form a F.F. and C.B.S. A fairly large number attended. Officers elected: Chairman, J. Elliott; sec., Alf. Dawson, 4, Garden Terrace, Craghead. After a lot of discussion, it was decided to hold annual show Jan. 17. Decided to leave schedule and judges over for next meeting, and let every section select its own judges.—Alf. Dawson, Sec. (Please note that reports must be sent in duplicate if they are to appear both in CAGE BIRDS and "The Poultry World."—Ed.)

BURNLEY O.S.

There was a very fair turn up of members at Manchester Road Station for our ramble, the weather did not look very promising when we started our journey through Todmorden. Arriving at Wadworth about 11, we were invited by Mr. J. Ingham to stay to dinner, an invitation which was gladly accepted, and after dinner we adjourned to his bird-room, where he has some very nice Norwich. Leaving there we were accompanied by our host and Mr. A. Pickles down to the Crags, where we spent a delightful afternoon, and then on to Hebden Bridge and home. All thoroughly satisfied with our day's outing.—J. Whittaker.

HINTS ON CANARY KEEPING.

A Lecture by Mr. H. Bell before the London and Counties A.C.B.

Lecture on Canaries was given by Mr. H. Bell, at headquarters, Globe, Maple-st., Tottenham Court-rd., when a good muster of members and friends attended. Mr. Cullers presided, and the usual business of the meeting gone through. Mr. Bell was called upon for his lecture. He spoke as follows: I will try and add a few more words to what I have already said in previous lectures for the help of the novice or one just starting in the Fancy. There are many people who contend they haven't room to keep birds. I have always been short of space. I have kept them in the bedroom, front-room and wash-house, and now they are in the backyard, where they have been these last 16 or 18 years, and I should not care to bring them in, unless I had a good sized room entirely for their use. The only drawback outside is sudden change of weather; a bird can stand dry cold, but the most trying weather for them is the wet cold or fog. I have tried a lamp and found it warmed the place too much and sent my birds in the moult about Christmas-time, which spoiled them for the next breeding season; so in the winter, when I have to feed the birds in the dark I use a few candles. Anyone thinking of starting an outdoor aviary should try first to see another fancier's place before deciding themselves. You must be sure and pick the best corner of your yard, where you can get plenty of sun, your window should be facing the sun, if there is too much you can soon fix a blind to keep it off the birds (when moulting they must not have too much sun). The place must be well ventilated so that you can regulate the ventilation according to the weather. Now a little about cages; make them convenient for the place you are going to keep them in, the simpler the better. If there is a good wall to fix them to I prefer no hacks to them at all, in fact you should use as little wood as you can comfortably manage with. Of course a single cage can be taken out and washed easily, but a working man with, say, 40 or 50 birds to look after hasn't much time to be always washing out cages. My idea of working is to set aside one certain time to clean my cages out once every week and give fresh sand. If you can spare the time twice a week all the better. My only time is between breakfast and dinner on Sunday, and I have about 80 cages to see to. Now about variety; think well over the breed you are going in for. If you choose Crests by all means have them, but as things are now with Crests I should advise a working man to start with Norwich Plainheads or Yorkshires or British. Where there is one workingman keeping Crests now there used to be a dozen a few years ago. The Norwich Plainhead has always been my fancy, and will be for some time to come yet. No one man has all the best birds; if you get a few good specimens they will not last for ever, so you must keep trying to get something better than you have, that is my idea. Sometimes a man will have a good year or two with very little trouble, and then be unable to do any good for some time, let him try as he may. If you don't have very good luck the first season you must not give way, but keep on trying. As regards feeding, some people will always feed their birds outside the cages. I put mine inside. I think you get the birds more used to you by putting your hand inside each time to feed them, it makes them more steady. I have noticed when I have a few fresh birds in my place they dash about as if they were wild for a little time. I think the more time you can spend with your birds the better. At breeding time I don't like too many strangers in my place, as it seems to upset the hens, but all hens are not the same, some you can do anything with, and others nothing. One thing I should like to impress, never sell your young until after the moult if you are not able to keep them, as you may have a bird in its first feather not worth looking at and when it has moulted you may be surprised to see how well it has turned out. When you have made a start and want a fresh bird or two you must be very careful in getting to know all about them. Don't have them unless you are quite satisfied they will improve your stock, for if you are not careful you will go backward instead of improving. If a new beginner in the Fancy and you can get an older breeder with the same kind of birds as yours, and who is doing all right, to give you an invitation to see his birds, go by all means, as that is where you get to know something. Do not let the man think you know more than he himself does, if you do you will learn nothing; be ready to grasp anything that will improve your own methods. Another item that needs careful attention is the water pots. In summer time they are apt to smell bad if not properly cleansed every day. I always put mine in a pail and wash them with a flannel under the tap. A word or two on buying birds: If a man is able to pay £4 or £5 for a pair to start with, he expects to get something good, and if he has good luck with them he may do some winning at the first and then get a knock back the next two or three seasons and may be soon finished with bird breeding; but those who go on from year to year trying to get something better than they have are really fanciers. I cannot see how a fancier (young or old) can be successful without CAGE BIRDS, it tells you how things are going on in the Fancy. I am always anxious to get mine each week, and what we read in it from time to time is simply one fancier helping another. I hope these few remarks will be enlightening to the novice or one about to start in the Fancy." A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Bell for his most instructive discourse was unanimously carried and brought a very pleasant evening to a close.—G. G. Stubbs, Hon. Sec.

OBITUARY.

Mr. John Driver (S. Normanton).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. A. Smith, sec., Codnor Park and Eastwood C.B.S., that I have to announce the death of a member, Mr. John Driver, aged 46, Gladstone Street, South Normanton, who was fatally injured at the Blackwell Collieries on Sept. 18. He was a well-known Canary fancier, and has shown jointly with Mr. J. Adnitt at most of the leading shows throughout England as Adnitt and Driver. He was, up to the time of his death, holder of our challenge cup. The deepest sympathy of every member goes to his sorrowing wife and family.

Mr. Adnitt also conveys the sad news, with the information that Mr. Driver has left a widow and four children to mourn his loss. "He was interred at South Normanton," says Mr. Adnitt, "on Sept. 21, when over a hundred fanciers and friends paid a last tribute of respect by attending the funeral. I am sure that all fanciers will join with me in extending sympathy and condolence to the widow, children, and relatives of our deceased friend."

Mr. W. Vardy, Huthwaite, also sends a sympathetic reference to the loss local fanciers have sustained by the sad death of Mr. Driver.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. R. Charlesson, sec. Leigh C.B.S., that I have to announce the death of the wife of Mr. J. Lomas, one of our oldest members, who passed away on Friday. She was always as much interested in the birds as Mr. Lomas himself, ever ready to nurse a sick bird, and had always a pleasant word for everybody. The sympathy of each and every member of the Leigh and Dist. C.B.S. goes to Mr. Lomas in this his hour of trouble.

North Shields C.B.C. resumes its monthly meetings on Oct. 1, writes Mr. R. P. Fox, hon. sec. Members please turn up in good numbers, as business is important (re annual show). Meet Co-operative Hall, Howdon Rd., at 7.30.

Will members please note that all subscriptions must be paid either at the next meeting, Oct. 2, or before, writes Mr. Barker, hon. sec. Longton C.B.S., as one of our special rules is that unless this is done they cannot exhibit at the open show.

We have engaged Mr. Geo. Large, Barrow-in-Furness, to judge Borders at our open show, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Deacon, secs. Liverpool O.S. We trust Border men will give him a hard day's work. The other judges are Messrs. Battye, Trengove, and Houlton.

It was a pleasant surprise to me to see my yellow variegated hen helping to adorn the front page of Cage Birds, writes Mr. Robert Aitchison, of Biggar. I both thank and congratulate Mr. Norman on the splendid sketch he has made of my bird; it is her very image.

I was surprised to find my C.B. cock on front page of Cage Birds, Sept. 13, and thank you for same. I had five letters wishing to take him at catalogue price, but he was claimed at show.—Harry Coath.

Ramsden's Specials: — Show secretaries should apply early, enclosing coupons with their applications. The special prizes will be allotted to the open shows of the fifty societies sending in the largest number of coupons. Twenty-five silver medals for members' shows; same conditions.—(Advt.)

Mr. J. C. Barnes is kindly giving at our open show on Oct. 18, writes Mr. J. Woolhouse, assist. sec., Sheffield C.B.S., 5s. specials for most points novice Yorkshires, and novice Norwich, respectively. Applications for schedules are already coming in; these will be forwarded in due course.

The time is getting near for the open show of Abersychan C.B.S., writes Mr. W. T. Couch, chairman. We have 32 classes, and Mr. J. R. Houghton will judge. We paid out all prize-money in full last show, and I hope we shall get a good entry for this, as we have the finest hall for miles around. Schedules ready in a week or two. Look out for Abersychan in Cage Birds.

Partick and District C.B.C. has secured the following gentlemen as judges at the annual show, Nov. 1, writes Mr. Wm. Priest, sec.; Yorkshire section (open), Mr. T. Penman; confined classes, Norwich and Crests, Mr. A. Sloan; Borders, Mr. R. Thomson; Yorks., Dr. J. C. Syson; British, Mr. J. H. Adam. The open Yorkshire classes are under the patronage of the Y.C.C. of Scotland, and every class is guaranteed.

I have to thank you, writes Mr. H. C. Mather, for the kind and detailed advice you gave me concerning the Jay in your issue of Aug. 30. I am pleased to be able to say that the treatment has transformed him from a wreck to a show specimen. He is now a thing of beauty, and is much admired by all who see him, whereas a fortnight or three weeks ago he was not fit to be seen. He is now on the go all day long with crest erected at intervals, and he is beginning to talk again now. I am now convinced that the Jay must run very close for first place as the prettiest British bird.

All Right at Reading.

Am glad to report that we are doing very well with specials for our next show, writes Secretary Pyke, of the Reading C.B.S.

An Alnmouth White Blackbird.

Mr. Cooks, of Ryton, tells of a curious Blackbird he saw during a sojourn at Alnmouth—a Blackbird all white, except the tail feathers.

Some Wagtail Fallacies.

We should like to make it clear that the paragraphs published last week under the above heading were taken in their entirety from the natural history column of the "Yorkshire Post"; no statement contained therein is our own.

Polly at the Seaside.

The London papers last week had a photograph of a lady visitor to Eastbourne taking her Grey Parrot for a walk along the promenade. Polly was enjoying the sea-breezes perched on the handle of her mistress's sunshade.

Harrogate Adopts Price Limit.

We hope to have a record show this time, writes Secretary Barnwell, Harrogate C.B.S., as we are limiting the exhibits in the open classes to £5 5s., and in the novice classes to £3 3s.; the prize-money and the specials will both be good.

Filleted Sole for Kingfishers.

Dr. Francis Ward says that if young Kingfishers are subjected to a certain amount of restraint, their natural diet of sticklebacks and minnows no longer suits them, as they become incapable of throwing up the bones Therefore he had followed the plan of feeding the Kingfishers with filleted sole, on which they thrived wonderfully.

Magpie Answers Dog's Bark.

It is reported that a remarkable instance of a bird's intelligence may be seen daily in Kensington Gardens, London, where a lady resident of the district has made friends with a Magpie. She visits the gardens daily about 11 o'clock with her collie. The latter is told to bark for Joey. The Magpie then duly appears to be fed with choice morsels of boiled egg and meat.

Birmingham Bird-lovers in Luck.

The special loan collection of British birds in the Birmingham Museum and Art Gallery, illustrating colour variation and albinism, young birds in down, and birds' eggs (also showing variation in colour and markings) which has been arranged for the British Association meeting, has been thrown open to the public, and will remain open except on Sundays—for one or two weeks. It is arranged in the "Beale" Room in the Natural History Department, and is open daily from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

THE FASCINATION OF AN AVIARY

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

OTHER birds have been in the picture, the Jamaica Pea Doves cropping the grass, picking up grit, seed, and insects under the bushes; also running about amid the shorter grass a pair of Quail Finches, looking almost like mice, until upon a patch of short grass all their quaint beauty is revealed. The Ouzels, after their bath, have been wandering to and fro, energetically digging for worms. The Tanagers, of which there are three species in the aviary—Black, Maroon, and Archbishop—have been in evidence as they scooped out mouthfuls of banana and apple, or visited the syrup and soft food dishes.

Happy Birds and a Happy Owner.

But I must pause, it is little use my rambling on merely for the Editor's inexorable blue pencil to delete, so I lay aside my pen and go inside the aviary with the live-bait tin. Soon the birds are all around me, taking mealworms from hand or close to my feet. I ring down the curtain with the scattering of a handful of mealworms amid the herbage, and leave the birds in the same happy frame of mind as their owner, fully convinced that with all its limitations, joys, disappointments, cares, and worries, life is well worth the living.

After the above description and the paragraphs on respective groups, it should be quite clear what birds may be kept together with reasonable safety, but it must be distinctly borne in mind that the smaller the aviary the greater the risk from the inclusion of the larger species. However, here are two lists of birds which are being kept in a couple of aviaries, each with a good shelter attached, the ground area of the flights being 28ft. by 16ft.

Bewilderingly Beautiful Selections.

Series 1: Pairs each of Siskins, Masked Grassfinches, Scarlet Tanagers, Nonpariel Buntings, Red-crested Cardinals, Cuba Finches, Orange-cheeked and Gold-breasted Waxbills, Cordon Bleus, Green Avadavats, Diamond Finches, Crimson-crowned Weavers, Bronze Mannikins, Lavender Finches, Bib Finches, and the following odd birds, Shama, Hardwick's Fruitsucker, Indian Grey Tit, Green-backed Tit, Lapwing, Parson Finch, Orange Bishop, Palm Tanager, Gouldian Finch, Purple Sugar-bird, and Hoopoe.

Series 2: Pairs each of Blue Tanagers, Indian White-eyes, Necklace Tanagers, Pekin Robins, Blue Tits, Red-collared Lorikeets, Gouldian Finches, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Zebra Finches, Avadavats, Orange-cheek, Grey and Gold-breasted Waxbills, Hartz Canaries, Cordon Bleus, and the following odd birds, Virginian Cardinal, Green Cardinal, Tricolour Tanager, Dhyal Bird, Redstart, Whinchat, Rainbow Bunting, Pileated Finch, Paradise Whydah, and Gold-fronted Fruitsucker.

Three Charming Groups of Seedeaters.

The following are being kept in an aviary with a shelter shed 8ft. by 6ft., and a flight 12ft. by 8ft. Pairs each of Ribbon, Zebra, Red-headed, Cuba, and Ruficauda Finches; Gouldian and Long-tailed Grassfinches; Grey, and Green Singing Finches, Silverbills, and Bengalese; Bronze, Magpie, Tricolour, and Black-headed Mannikins; Green and Yellow Budgerigars; Cockatiels, Canaries, Linnets, Red-billed, and Napoleon Weavers.

In an aviary 12ft. by 8ft., lean-to, 5ft. high at eaves and 7½ft. at back, wire netting only at front, with glazed shutters for cold nights and winter use, the following twenty pairs are kept: Chinese Red-headed Buntings; Zebra, Ribbon, Ruficauda, and Bib Finches; Gouldian and Long-tailed Grassfinches; Grey and Green Singing Finches; Silverbills, Bengalese, Green Budgerigars, Cockatiels, Green Cardinals, Canaries, Linnets, Avadavats, Gold-crested Waxbills, and Bronze Mannikins.

In another aviary with a shelter 6ft. by 4ft., with a flight 15ft. by 4ft., half of which is roofed in, the following are successfully kept: Pairs of Red-billed and Napoleon Weavers, White Java Sparrows, Silverbills, Bronze, Magpie, and White-headed Mannikins; Bib, Zebra, and Ribbon Finches, Linnets, Greenfinches, Green Budgerigars, Cockatiels, Diamond Doves, Canaries, Twites, Siskins, and Avadavats; Grey, Orange-cheeked and Gold-breasted Waxbills, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Long-tailed Grassfinches, and Bengalese.

Be on the Safe Side.

Personally, I should not put in so many as are mentioned in these instances, but instead of generalising in an article like this, I have given lists of birds actually kept in aviaries widely separated by distance. In each instance there have been some breeding successes. In each instance, also, the aviarists are enthusiasts, and the general management good; the birds being intelligently observed and looked after. The theme given me was, "the utmost in a given space." I have endeavoured to cover it by quoting what has been and is being done, and I trust my readers will be able to adapt same to their individual need.

How to Supply Every Need.

Now, just a final word as to foods: For such general mixed series I always advise a supply of soft food (insectile mixture), milk sop, seeds, fruit, greenfood, and a certain amount of live food. This may sound formidable, but it is not so in actual practice, and the quantity of each to be supplied will soon be learned by experience.

Seeds: Canary, white and Indian millet, millet sprays, also some good wild seed mixture. Paddy rice and crushed oats are also liked by many species.

Soft-food: I only quote one mixture which is easily made and from ingredients readily procurable. One part each crumbled sponge cake, sweet biscuit, dried flies, and ants' eggs. For use, take the required portion and make crumbly moist with boiling water. Two or three times per week. Grated carrot or finely minced greenfood should be stirred into the mixture after it has been damped.

Milk-sop: Sponge cake, Horlick's malted milk or condensed milk and boiling water, the consistency required by the respective series will be best learned experimentally. When birds appear a little out of tone or during the moult, a little Mellin's Food or Scott's Emulsion added to the sop will be beneficial.

Greenfood and fruit call for but little comment, but should be varied—of the fromer, grass in flower, lettuce, and garden and hedgrow weeds may be given generally; while as regards the latter, banana, orange, grapes, etc., will be the mainstay, but all English fruits may be offered as in season.

The above range of diet will suffice for all species of birds from the domestic Canary to the soft-bills and fruit-eaters. The supply of live food must be very liberal for soft-bills when feeding young. Mealworms, of course, are the stand by, but these must be supplemented with wasps' grub, ants' eggs, gentles, and all garden pests according to season.

I scarcely need add that rock salt, cuttlebone, grit and regular supplies of fresh water for bathing and drinking must be considered a necessary essential.

In conclusion, I can only hope that my readers will secure as much interest and pleasure from their hobby as the writer has experienced through a long course of years, and which is as sustained now as in the enthusiasm of the early days; he too, has known the limitations of space entailed by the conditions of town and city life.

THE MASTER SINGER OF THE CANARY TRIBE

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

The shape of the room should be square, rather than long and narrow, as this would allow of cages being placed on each side, as well as along the back.

The outside and the floor would consist of strong, well seasoned tongued and grooved boards, with a tongued and grooved matchboard lining, the space between to be filled with sawdust, hay or straw. Hay is much warmer than straw, and I know from my own experience with horses that the adage, "Where there is hay there are fleas," is not always correct.

The door to be in the centre at the front, with a window on each side, all to open inwards; a framework of wire netting, fixed with screws, on the outside of each window—this is to prevent any birds that might have got out of the cages from escaping when the windows are open during the hot weather. The wire will also prevent the window panes from getting broken. The door opening inwards serves a double purpose, for should a bird have got out of its cage the door acts as a shield when the room is entered, and prevents it from flying past you and escaping, which would be likely if the door opened outwards. This door can also be made practically draught-proof by fixing round the crevices the rubber piping sold for the purpose. A weather-board should be fixed along the bottom of the door to carry off the rain, which would otherwise run down and find its way underneath the door into the room.

Have Ventilation without Draughts.

Good ventilation without draughts is necessary, so one ventilator should be placed low down towards the bottom of the room, and another high up towards the top as an exit for the foul air. A wooden shield should be placed on the outside of the room, over the ventilators, to prevent the rain from beating through. On the inside a slide should be arranged to close, or partly close, the ventilators if it is necessary at any time. The room to stand six inches, at the least, clear off the ground to prevent it from getting damp. In all outdoor Roller Canary birdrooms it is advisable to have some kind of a heating apparatus, for although the Roller is quite capable of withstanding the cold to the extent of having the drinking water frozen, there are very few of us who care to be snug beside our firesides and think that our pets are likely to be suffering from the cold.

The Use of Artificial Heat.

Undoubtedly the safest heating method is by hot water pipes, with a boiler and fire-place outside the room, although for several seasons I used very succesfully an oil stove, claimed by the makers to be smokeless and odourless. I found a little smell did arise for a few minutes on it being relighted after it had been cleaned and refilled. When an oil stove is used, if it is necessary to study economy in the use of oil, a couple of hot bricks can be placed on the top of the stove, and just sufficient heat turned on to prevent the temperature from falling below 45 to 40 degrees. As a precaution against any fumes or smoke that may arise, a tin funnel can be placed over the stove. The funnel will require a tin pipe fitting to it, to run upwards and be turned outside the room towards the top, or through the roof, if the roof can be afterwards made waterproof.

A couple of blinds should be provided to the windows, and a table at one window, underneath which can be placed either a nest of drawers or shelves to accommodate the seeds and various spare utensils.

On the top of the table would be a convenient place to fasten the egg-mill and the seed-mill; the former is a machine made and worked similarly to the household mincing machine. The advantage the mill has over the old fashioned way of blending the hard boiled eggs with a fork, or pressing them through a piece of perforated zinc, is that the egg and the biscuits can be placed into the mill together and are quickly ground up and mixed finely; this prevents the birds from picking out the egg and leaving the biscuit.

The Egg-Sieve and the Egg-Food.

If you would prefer to make a zinc sieve of your own, first make a wooden frame six or eight inches square and two or three inches deep; on the top of this nail just sufficient fine gauge perforated zinc to cover the wooden frame. The egg is then placed on top of the zinc and pressed through with a knife. If biscuits are used the usual quantity is four to one hard boiled egg. (The usual length of time to boil an egg is from ten to fifteen minutes. Allow it to cool before using.) The biscuits can be powdered on a paste board with a rolling pin. After the egg has been pressed through the sieve place it and the powdered biscuits into a clean glass or an earthenware vessel, and blend them both together with a fork.

The seed mill is used for cracking hemp seed, etc., for it is customary to give this to the hen when she is feeding youngsters, and also to the young just as they are taken from the parents, but I will describe this fully later. The seed can be crushed on the paste board with the rolling pin or a bottle instead of using a seed mill. An old fashioned method was to crush it in a mortar, but these mortars and pestles are not very often used now. Both of these mills will be found advertised in Cage Birds.

Before I leave the subject of cages I would recommend that the cages be placed on shelves, or in a rack, rather than hung on nails, because it is advisable that a clear space should be left behind the cage and the wall. They should also be raised about half an inch above the shelves. Earthenware knobs can be purchased for this purpose, or a small piece of wood could be placed underneath each corner of the cage to minimise the harbouring places of those nocturnal marauders, the red mite.

Trimming up the Claws.

It has been intimated previously that where the birds are wintered in artificially heated rooms the heat will be conducive to bringing them into breeding condition early in the season. Some hens will come forward sooner than others, and will persist in trying to build nests about the flights; these birds should be put up for breeding, i.e., placed into the breeding cages, and given a lined nest pan, and a little nesting material; charpie for preference. The claws of old birds, or those that have been accustomed to having thin perches, will probably require cutting, as a preventive against the sharp pointed nails puncturing the eggs.

To do this, hold the bird on its back in the left hand, with head pointing towards the wrist, turn the second, third, and fourth fingers over its body, holding it firmly yet gently. Take each toe in turn between the thumb and first finger, and hold it up to a strong light. It will then be noticed that a blood vein extends from the toe into each nail. With a sharp pair of scissors clip off the nail beyond the vein. Care must be taken not to approach too near to the vein, or it will bleed, besides causing the bird pain; otherwise, the proceeding will quite painless, and will not inconvenience the bird in the least.

An Aviary and Bird House Built in Spare Time.

Sir,—We send you herewith a photo of our aviary, which we thought you would like to publish in Cage Birds. The size of the aviary is three yards long and one yard wide. The size of our bird house is six feet high and seven feet long, and it adjoins the aviary, but the photographer could not get this bird house into the photograph. The bird house is divided by means of a staging, in the top portion of which we keep Canaries. In the bottom portion we keep the British birds, which we can let out into the aviary by means of a slide. We have built the above during our leisure time, in a back yard, and, in order to plant the trees, we have had to pull up the flags with which the yard was paved, but our efforts have proved well worth the trouble, as we spend some pleasant week ends talking over birdy matters and reading your interesting paper.

"Cage Birds" Guide to the 1913-14 Show Season.

We Appeal to Secretaries and Officials for Assistance.

Cage Birds "Guide to the Shows" is now in course of preparation. This feature has been much appreciated in past years, forming as it does a calendar for the ready reference of exhibitors, and in order to make it as complete as in previous seasons, we invite the assistance of secretaries of societies holding open shows. We shall be obliged if they will kindly send on a postcard: Name of society; date of show; number of classes; names of judges; and their own name and address. In order to be included in the Guide, the information must reach us not later than first post on Tuesday next, Sep. 30.

In our show advert. of last week, writes Mr. R. Muir (sec. Lochgelly C.B.S.), the judge's name should have been Henry Bennet (not Besset) and the 1st prize-money 10s., (not 10s. 6d.).

A 33-year-old Dove.

A cock Ringdove, which has lived in the same cage for 33 years, is in the possession of a Metropolitan Police pensioner, of Holwell, Hertfordshire, named David Moore.

Don't Forget Gillingham.

Fanciers should make a point of looking over the schedule of Gillingham (Kent) show, which appears in full in our advertisement columns this week. All sections are nicely catered for, the prize-money is good, and the management can be relied upon to be excellent. It is a convenient fixture held Thursday and Friday (Oct. 9 and 10). Our coupon competition will be in progress thereat.

Rugby Needs Help.

Will Cage Birds readers please help us? writes Mr. E. W. Easton, sec. Rugby Fanciers' Society (26, Dale Street). Entries for our show on Oct. 1st do not average one per class, and good old fanciers are running this very old fixture, with a liberal classification, and prize-money guaranteed, with no amalgamation of classes (see full classification in last week's issue). If entries are sent on at once, we will classify.

Jackdaw's Motor Car Ride.

A rather remarkable story of a Jackdaw's ride on a motor-car is being told. A motor-car left a garage in Brierley Hill, Staffs., and upon arriving at Kinver the occupant thought he heard a noise proceeding from underneath the car. Upon looking, he found a Jackdaw perched comfortably on the rear axle. The bird, which belonged to the garage proprietor, must have located himself there before the car left the premises, and travelled to Kinver, a distance of six and a half miles.

The Rush with the Food.

Mr. W. Farren says that as the result of keeping watch he has found that the visits of different species of birds to their young in the nest vary considerably. The total number of visits paid by both parents to the nest in the case of the Song Thrush was 15 to 20 per hour, by the Spotted Flycatchers from 40 to 50 per hour, by the Stonechats from 50 to 60 per hour, and by the Grasshopper Warbler about 30 an hour. He found a pair of Wagtails which specialised in the food they brought their young. During the whole of the extended period of observation the female brought only spiders or small moths, and the male only green caterpillars.

Changes of Address.

We are asked to notify the following changes of address:—R. B. Cairns, to 460, Dumbarton Rd., Partick, Glasgow; W. Wilson, from Waverley Road to 19s, Shernhall Street, Whipps Cross, Walthamstow; Mr. H. Coath, to 103, Tavistock Place, Plymouth; Mr. W. J. Chedgey, from Cyfarthfa Street to 2, Daviot Street, Roath Park, Cardiff.

Lost During Migration.

Life is plentiful in every branch of wild Nature, and wild birds are no exception. The supply always seems equal to the demand. Death takes a big toll of our little friends while crossing the sea. Seamen tell us that in the autumn particularly wild birds frequently alight on their ships exhausted, and die. Occasionally these ocean tragedies are recorded. Here is one: A Norwegian brig put into Penzance a few days since, and among other incidents of the voyage between Norway and England the captain mentioned that midway between the two countries thousands of small Sparrows alighted on the ship, covering the deck and rigging. The birds were exhausted to the point of death, but some half-dozen were captured and kept alive. They proved to be Tree Sparrows.

Good Old Plymouth!

The Plymouth (Western Counties) Society is one of the oldest in the Kingdom, and in the excellence with which it manages its annual show, none can surpass it. Further, it is always seeking new means, and putting new ideas into practice, to assist exhibitors. At the next show, Tues. and Wed., Oct. 14 and 15, the entry should be a record one, for every bird that secures a card will receive a money prize! No less than 25s. prize-money in each class, but the entry fee still only 1s. 6d.! And all prizes guaranteed paid first day of show! This is liberality indeed, and exhibitors should show their appreciation. The classification is splendid, and novices are well catered for. Entries close this week-end, so schedules should be obtained at once from Mr. T. Pope, sec., 98, Embankment Rd., Plymouth.

Don't Miss Our £200 Competition.

THE FIRST SHOWS NEXT WEEK.

Remember that the "Early Bird Catches the Worm" so get your Coupons and hop into the fray right now.

EXHIBITORS all over the country are entering into our Coupon Scheme with great zest. The flow of orders for coupons during the past week has been simply splendid, and it is evident that many mean to be among the "early birds" and secure at one or other of the opening coupon shows the coveted diplomas which will ensure them a "finger in the pie" of valuable cash specials which will be waiting at the Crystal Palace Show solely for competitors in our Championship Competition.

The early shows afford exceptionally good opportunities, too. The opening Coupon Shows of the season are due next Saturday, Oct. 4, viz., at Longton (Staffs), and Great Horton (Bradford), and with the classification, etc., at these fixtures we dealt in this column last week. The entries close next Tuesday, Sept. 30.

Of the next Coupon Shows to arrive, Clapham, held Oct. 8 and 9, is the first of the great fixtures in the metropolis, and one with a splendid reputation. The classification here is very liberal in the Canary section, and novices are specially catered for, while the Hybrid (6 classes), British (15), and Foreign (6), sections are splendid. Competitors should not miss this chance. Entries close Oct. 1. to Messrs. Askew and Silverthorne, 24, Chelsham Road, Clapham, S.W.

Another excellent south country mid-week Coupon fixture is Gillingham (Kent), held Oct. 9 and 10. The full classification, which is nicely representative, is given in the "Show Advertisements" of this issue, and fanciers should enter from this, observing the conditions, so far as our own scheme is concerned, given below. The secretary is Mr. J. Hyde, 26, Park Place, Gillingham, Kent.

On Oct. 10 and 11, there is the always well-managed Leeds Show, entries for which close on Oct. 6. The classification is good and well-balanced, and the prize-money liberal; novice Norwich and Yorks. Exhibitors have special classes provided. The secretary, Mr. W. A. Wilson (39, Burley Road, Leeds), deserves to be well supported.

Morpeth, Oct. 11.—The first Coupon fixture in the far North, and here the entry fee is only 1s. for 15s. prize-money per class. The classes total 24 and afford good chances for competitors in our competition. Entries close Oct. 4, to Mr. E. Cowling, Market Place, Morpeth.

In the South, on Oct. 14 and 15 is the very fine show at Plymouth, which richly merits support. Note the show advt. this week, also the paragraph under "Twitterings."

The following is a complete list of Coupon Shows to date:—

Oct. 4, Longton C.B.S.; Oct. 4, Great Horton O.S.; Oct. 8 and 9, Clapham C.B.A.; Oct. 8 and 10, Gillingham F.A.; Oct. 10 and 11, Leeds C.B.S.; Oct. 11, Morpeth C.B.S.; Oct. 14-15, Plymouth (W.C.O.S.); Oct. 16, Hanley C.B.S.; Oct. 16 & 17, Norwich Alliance C.B.A.; Oct. 17-18, Glasgow (City of) O.A.; Oct. 17 & 18, Halifax O.S.; Oct. 17-18, Newcastle C.B.S.; Oct. 18, Broughty Ferry; Oct. 18, Burton-on-Trent; Oct. 18, Harrogate; Oct. 18, Sheffield and Dist. C.B.S.; Oct. 22, Abertillery C.B.S.; Oct. 22 & 23, Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.S.; Oct. 24 & 25, Wolverhampton C.B.S.; Oct. 24 & 25, Manchester and N.C.O.S.; Oct. 24-25, Ilkeston C.B.S.; Oct. 25, Bradford East O.S.; Oct. 25, Perth O.A.; Oct. 25, Coventry Godiva C.B.S.; Oct. 29, Upper Rhoudda C.B.S.; Oct. 29, Llandrindod Wells F.A.; Oct. 29, Torbay O.S. Down); Jan. 10, Doncaster C.B.S.; Jan. 13, Llanelly C.B.S.; Jan. 13-14, Boscombe C.B.A.; Feb. 6, 7, 9, 10, Great National (Crystal Palace).

How Exhibitors May Enter,

All who intend entering Coupon birds at these shows must do so under these conditions:—Cage Birds offers the following Championship Competition prizes:—

10s. cash for best champion coupon bird.
10s. cash for best novice coupon bird.

Diplomas of honour for the best champion and the best novice coupon birds in each of the following sections; or in as many of these sections as are included in the classification:—

(1) Yorkshire Canaries.
(2) Norwich.
(3) Crests & Crestbreds.
(4) Border Fancies.
(5) Scotch Fancies and Belgians.
(6) Greens.
(7) Lancs. and Lizards.
(8) Any Other Variety Canary.
(9) Mules & Hybrids.
(10) British, Hardbilled.
(11) British, Softbilled.
(12) Foreign.

All the exhibitor has to do is to stick one of Cage Birds Coupons on his entry form and write "C.B." opposite each bird he wishes to compete; except if a novice, when he must write "C.B. Novice."

Coupons, price 6d. each, may be purchased from the offices of Cage Birds, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., or, if the time is short, enclose the necessary extra cash with your entry fees to the secretary of the show, and he will affix coupons opposite which ever birds you have marked on your entry form. Every coupon is numbered and a record of it kept at Cage Birds offices.

NOTE CAREFULLY.—A coupon must be affixed to the entry form opposite every bird intended to compete in this Championship Competition. Any number of coupon birds may be entered by any exhibitor, either in one section or in several, as may be desired, so long as a coupon is used for each bird. For every coupon bird, of course, the usual entry fee must be paid to the show officials. Entries in Cage Birds Championship Competition are accepted only on the understanding that the governing rules as published in Cage Birds are to be absolutely final and legally binding.

The above, we may say, are the conditions which will appear in the schedules of all shows at which our Championship Scheme is in operation, and under which entries will be accepted by the various secretaries.

A Few from the Postbag.

Send me four dozen coupons.—J. W. Metcalfe, joint hon. sec. Liverpool O.S.

Send me a further supply of coupons.—F. G. Joiner, joint sec. Portsmouth C.B.S.

I want another two dozen coupons.—W. B. Watkins, hon. sec. Tredegar C.B.S.

Please forward me 24 more coupons.—W. Bryson (Sec., Newtongrange C.B.S.).

Please forward me on another two dozen coupons. I have sold all I had.—G. Broome (hon. sec., Abertillery C.B.S.).

Kindly forward me 60 more coupons for your Championship Competition.—R. Heggie (City of Glasgow O.A.).

I think your scheme will be a boon to the Fancy.—W. Crawshaw (Accrington).

Your championship scheme is sure to be a great success.—A. Martin (Kettering).

I consider your scheme is excellent, as the poorest fancier has a good chance, for the fanciers with long pockets can only win their one diploma and two specials, which gives others a chance.—H. W. Walsh (Accrington).

This is a good forward movement on your part, good for breeders and exhibitors alike, and quite possibly in a few years time the £200 will be doubled. I wish the scheme the success it deserves.—T. Fisher (Lancaster).

We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, Cage Birds, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of Cage Birds Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in Cage Birds List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 27th next.

Two Prizes of 10s. Each, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

Twelve Diplomas of Honour will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the 12 sections mentioned above.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A Ten Guinea Challenge Shield, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

For Full Rules see previous issues.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department in which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS as ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Bordera, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SAMPLE OF CANARY (C.W.L.).—The seed is of just moderate size, but is of first-rate quality, and, provided it is not contaminated by mice, is suitable for any class of stock. I mention the latter because the sample contained a number of husks and hulled kernels, which are often significant of visits by mice.

A PROLIFIC HEN (Wallitone).—It is not uncommon for some hens to lay a few eggs at intervals after the close of the proper breeding season, and with some abnormally productive hens nothing will prevent it. As a rule it causes no harm at all. The best means of checking it is to put them on a diet of plain canary seed, supplemented only with a little green food daily for a week or two, and add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the drinking water every second day for a week. Keep them in a roomy flight, and if possible out of sight and ear-shot of the cocks.

BATHING AND CAGE (Pedre).—(1) If you have other birds that bathe, place this one in such a position that she can see them revelling in their ablutions. The force of their example may be all that is required. Offer the bath daily for an hour or so, and place in centre of it a choice morsel of green food to tempt her to investigate it, and any time you notice her trying to bath in the drinking vessel remove it, and hang on the bath for an hour. Perseverance in these tactics will succeed sooner or later, unless the bird is quite incorrigible, in which should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1½); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping (1/1); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London E.C.

case you can only let her go her own dirty way until soiled badly enough to make hand-washing worth while. Slightly bedew the plumage with a sprayer when putting on the bath two or three times each week. This will help to create a desire for a "good tub." (2) A cage 12 x 14 x 10ins. is none too large for a single bird, but you might keep two in it temporarily with strict attention to cleanliness. As far as age is concerned, a hen a year old will agree quite well with a much younger hen, but it is really a question of individual temperament, which can only be proven by actual test.

MATE FOR CRESTED COCK (E. C. Wood).—Unless you have some special object in view it is not advisable to mate the Crested cock with a Crested hen. This is what is known as "double-cresting," and should only be resorted to by breeders with some experience, and when there is some particular object in view, such as increasing the proportion of crested young in the progeny when it has dwindled to a lower average than is desirable. For full details about the practice and objects of double-cresting, you should get Parts XII. and XIII. of "Our Canaries," as it is impossible to go into details here. The orthodox mate for the cock would be a Crest bred hen, which, of course, should match him well in size and general type, and have as dense a covering of broad long feather on the head as possible, a short stout beak, and broad massive skull, with a nice wide entrance at base of beak.

SCALES ON LEGS (J.P.).—A bird only two years old should not have very scaly legs, as, although some birds develop large scales much earlier than others, they should not in any case be coarse enough to require removal at such an early age. If you are quite certain about age of bird, I do not advise you to attempt removal. Soak the feet and legs well for a few minutes twice a week in a quite warm solution of boric acid. Dry them, and anoint freely with sulphur ointment, finally wiping off all surplus ointment before returning bird to cage. If the scales appear quite loose at the second or subsequent bathing, you may gently press them off with the end of thumb nail, but use no force, and be very careful to avoid making them bleed. They may be coaxed off by sufficient bathing, but must not be pulled or forced off upon any account whatever.

WATERY BLEB (F.B.M.).—Touch just the swelling with a small camel-hair pencil, or a clean wing or tail feather of Canary, dipped in tincture of iodine once a week for a month. Avoid going close to eye, and hold bird until the tincture has dried on before releasing it. If this does not bring about natural absorption of the swelling I'm afraid you can do no more except continue to prick it and cleanse it when "ripe," unless it is worth while getting a vet. to make a little operation and eradicate the cause of the trouble. If you prick it again yourself, cleanse it with a solution of wych hazel, and paint the spot for a few days with the strong extract.

CAGE ACCOMMODATION (Crest).—You only mention the length and height of your cage—30in. by 30in. If it is only the usual cage width, say, 10 to 12in., it is certainly exceedingly overcrowded by having 15 birds in it. On strictly hygienic conditions, five birds would be ample to keep in it, though seven or eight may be kept in temporarily, with strict attention to cleanliness. Therefore, even though it entails a little extra work, I advise you to divide this group of birds into two, at least, and keep each group in a cage not smaller than the one they now occupy. As regards your anxiety about your birds getting consumption, you may set your mind at rest. There is not the very slightest probability of it. The theory about consumptive birds, as far as Canaries and similar birds are concerned, is, to use a vulgar phrase, the merest "tommy rot."

EYE TROUBLE (Old Reader A.).—Your remarks about the "soft moult," and suggestion that this was due to using heat in your birdroom, leads me to think the birds have not been managed so well as they might have been, and consequently all have doubtless been subject to more or less unhealthy conditions. If artificial heat is properly used there is not the slightest risk of it causing soft moult. It is not unlikely you have been using heat in a haphazard way, without discretion or regularity, and in that case your stock would have been infinitely better with no heat at all. To combat this eye trouble, you must keep the cages and perches all round as scrupulously clean as possible; isolate the affected birds, and do not mix up the appliances of these cages with those of the cages containing healthy birds. Get a few camomile flowers from a chemist, place half a dozen in a teacup, fill with boiling water, stir well, cover, and allow to stand till cold. Then strain off the clear liquid, and add 10 drops of laudanum. Bathe the affected eyes with this decoction once daily until better, and use a drop of fresh liquid, and new wool for each bird. After bathing, dry gently, and use the lotion you mention, as advised in this column last week. You do not need to use the ointment. Please see rule as to forwarding name and address with queries.

GROWTH OF FEATHERS (A.K.).—From two to three weeks is a fair average time for new feathers to show through the skin, reckoning from the time the old feathers were lost, or, as in your case, from the commencement of treatment. To give the treatment the best chance to succeed, keep the bird in a comfortable and fairly equable place, and feed and treat for a month as advised to "Llanhillethite" in this issue. Moisten the skin twice a week with sulphur ointment, and if no new quills are showing in three weeks' time, write again, and I will advise you further.

LOSING AND CHEWING FEATHERS (Llanhillethite).—I suspect this bird has been kept in a window or some similarly unsuitable place, with extremes of temperature. Examine the cage well in all joints, cracks, and ends of perches, and if you find any red mite take steps to eradicate them. Keep bird in a comfortable and fairly equable temperature. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately every second day for a month half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, and, if you have any available, mix in it each time two or three fat mealworms, and sprinkle well with maw seed. During the first fortnight also dust it slightly with flowers of sulphur each time. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana or a spray of green food. In the drinking water add five drops of syrup of saffron and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a fortnight, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for another fortnight. The bird will not sing until it is quite over the moult.

NOT YET MOULTING (J.E.L.).—Yes, it is certainly on record of a bird—rather, there are a number of such records—missing a moult entirely and yet remaining in apparently perfect health. Such a bird, however, is always apt to drop into moult quite suddenly at any marked change of temperature, either natural or artificial, and is therefore not very reliable as a show bird. Moreover, it seems to be taking big risks to compete at good shows with such a bird against properly moulted birds. I would certainly advise you to make an effort to start her moulting; you may thus, with moderate luck, get her ready for the later shows when her newly moulted condition will be all in her favour. Either wash her, using the water a little warmer than usual, or give her a vapour bath, as described in Part V. of "Our Canaries." The day after she has well preened herself after this remove her to a room with a distinctly colder temperature than the one she usually occupies. Begin at once to add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece two days in every three, for two or three weeks if necessary. She may start moulting in a week or so after being placed in cold room, then, when she has made a good start, cover over the cage, and move to a cosy, but equable, and not overheated, temperature, and give a little soft food slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur every second day for a week. Stop all drugs when the moult is in full swing, and trust to the warmer temperature to complete it quickly; the bird should be quite through by the end of November.

A NASTY COLD (B. T.).—First of all see that the bird is not exposed to cold draughts or extremes of temperature—above all, do not allow it to hang in a window. Keep in a comfortable and fairly equable temperature, though you need not overheat it. In addition to the seed diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, every second day for a fortnight. Give a morsel of green food or banana twice a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, daily for three days. After this give 20 drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken in the water two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards.

CREST BREEDING (L. Cape).—Sorry the Nos. of "Our Canaries" your require are out of print. The only alternative I can suggest for getting the information you need is to treat yourself to the complete work before that, too, is unavailable (this can still be obtained, as you will see by our advertisement columns), unless you can meet with these particular numbers second hand. If you watch our advertisements during the next few months you will also find plenty of Crest breeders in and around London, and possibly may find one near you; failing that, there are plenty of reliable breeders in other centres who could send you birds by rail quite safely. Whether Crests are more difficult to breed than other varieties is, to a certain extent, a question of strain—some are exceptionally good breeders and perents, others the reverse. But as good Crests are very valuable, it is quite the rule to run a stock of feeders to assist in rearing the young. Altogether, if you have no experience, the best advice I can give you is to breed with Plainhead Norwich, or a similar common breed, for a season or two, and meantime digest all the Crest information you will find from time to time in our columns.

SWELLING ON BREAST (W. H. C.).—You ought to have described the swelling and its precise position, and said whether it appears to contain air or fluid. A small sketch, no matter how rough, would have helped to show the real position. Judging from the movement, however, I have little doubt it is a collection of air due to a slight rupture in the air passages. If this surmise is correct, the best treatment is to pierce the swelling with a clean needle to allow the accumulated air to escape, and give the bird a simple tonic for a few days to tone up the system. Four drops each of tincture of steel and dilute sulphuric acid in the water will form a suitable tonic. Also make the following corrections in your dietary. For staple give three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, black rape, millet, teazle and broken groats; three times a week a morsel of green food or ripe fruit; and once or twice a week a teaspoonful of egg-food, or some other soft food. For the next fortnight, instead of the last-named, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw.

ALL IN A LUMP (M.W.H.).—Keep the bird in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily very warm, but still quite away from the chilly side, and see that it is free from cold draughts. Throw a light cover over the cage until the bird has ceased dropping feathers, and for three or four days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky and five drops of syrup of saffron. In addition to the staple seed give a half-ripe plantain stalk or a morsel of banana three times a week, and a few grains of linseed on three other days. Your colour feed, consisting as it does of nearly 50 per cent. of colour, is unnecessarily strong, and now the moult has progressed so far you should reduce the strength. Begin by using two teaspoonfuls of colour instead of 2½, to three of the biscuit food. Use this strength for a week, then reduce the proportion of colour to 1½ teaspoonfuls. After a week again reduce to one teaspoonful in three, and when the head is moulting reduce again to 1 in 5 or 6.

ROLLERS FAILING (F.S., Hampshire).—From your remark about the "train-like whistle," I imagine you have not got hold of an ideal Roller songster. Try to hear a trained St. Andreasberg Roller, costing, say, 8s. 6d. to 10s. 6d., when they come on the market from October onwards, and I fancy you will find it much more to your taste. If this does not please you, a Border Fancy, Yorkshire, or Norwich, in the order named, will be most likely to suit your purpose. There is much of a sameness in the song of all untrained varieties of Canaries which are not bred specially for song, the chief difference being in the pitch and compass. The tone of the larger breeds is more soft and mellow. Personally, apart from the trained Roller, I award the palm for song to a free singing Crest or Crest-bred. Compared with the untrained Roller, the song of this variety is as that of a Thrush compared with a Starling. This, however, is a matter of taste, and you would do well to try to hear the song of a Crest or C.B. before purchasing one. A wastrel from an exhibition point of view would be as good as the most ideal for singing.

NOT STARTED MOULTING (W.C.).—It is just possible the looseness of plumage may indicate the close approach of moult. Add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to the water for two days and if the bird has not started to cast feathers by this time move its cage to a cold room where no fire is kept, but see that it is equable and free from cold draughts or damp. From this point treat the bird the same as advised to J.E.L. this week.

CANARY WITH COLD (R.C.C.).—You should have said what the remedies are which have failed. Anyway, as the bird is in an outdoor aviary it is quite likely it is not physically adapted for this kind of life, or it may be in the habit of roosting in a draughty place. Take it indoors, and keep it in a good sized cage in a room where no fire is kept for a time until quite well. In addition to the usual seed diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days during same time add to the drinking water 20 drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, and Ipecac. wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. This, with the removal indoors, should be all that is necessary to put matters right.

TROUBLE WITH MOULT (Sandringham).—The bird's age is much against him, and it frequently happens that these old birds defer moulting until the weather begins to get mild in spring. If it moulted last autumn (not spring) you should try to start the moult now by giving it a vapour bath daily for three days. This you may do by placing it in an open-wire cage on a table, with a mug of nearly boiling water beside it, and cover all over with a shawl or wrap, to keep vapour in cage. Remove mug in 15 or 20 minutes, but leave cover over cage for an hour, and do not expose bird to a chill afterwards. Every second day for a week or 10 days give a little egg food dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternating days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whiskey, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece. Keep a light cover over cage whilst bird is moulting. See that its claws are not considerably overgrown to prevent it perching comfortably.

YOUNG BIRDS DYING (J. Hughes).—It would have been helpful had you given details of your method of feeding, and also said whether the birds have moulted, or are in moult when they die. If you have a large stock of birds you would certainly be well advised to send the body of the next that dies to Mr. Yates for post-mortem to ascertain whether it is a case of contagious disease, as there is some suspicion of it. Meantime keep cages, perches, and all appliances as clean as possible; see that all your foods, seeds, and water are pure and sweet, and treat as follows, and if an improvement is not noticeable in a fortnight or so write again and give full particulars as indicated above. Give a staple of plain canary seed, every second day give a piece of bread the size of a small walnut scalded with milk and sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of maw, and on the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of scalded rape. Twice a week give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats. On each of the remaining days give either a morsel of banana or a half ripe plantain stalk. All quantities named are per bird. In the drinking water add 12 drops of syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards five drops of syrup of saffron and 20 of whiskey, two days in every three for a week.

IS IT THE SEED? (J.H.P., Cardiff).—It would be impossible to say whether the seed was the actual cause of the bird's death without an analysis. In the sample sent the grains appear to be of fine quality, being of good size, well ripened and quite sweet. There is, however, a good deal of extraneous matter and dirt mixed with the seed, and also an unduly large amount of minute portions of the ends of kernels. The latter might indicate infestation by mice, which, of course, supposing the seed to be soiled by them, makes it quite possible for it to be the cause of the trouble. You did quite right to send a body for post-mortem, as this will doubtless elucidate the matter. Meantime, give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for one day, and afterwards 20 drops of whiskey and six of tincture of gentian for a few days. Keep cages clean as possible and continue giving a bread and milk diet to all ailing birds. If the trouble does not cease in a few days now you have discarded the suspected seed write again and enclose copy of p.m. report.

YOUNG YORKSHIRES (X.Y.Z.).—(1) I cannot tell from your description whether the bird has asthma. It may be merely a querulous cry. If it appears to breathe with difficulty or the squeakiness continues at night remove the bird to a cage by itself, keep it in a comfortable temperature, free from cold draughts, and treat it the same as advised to "R.C.C." in this issue for two or three weeks. There is no risk of contagion, and the bird may certainly recover. But if it really suffers from any serious bronchial trouble at such a tender age recovery is nothing to greatly desire. (2) The browuish marked young birds you describe are cinnamon variegated, and they show that one or both—certainly the green cock—of the parents have Cinnamon marked blood in their veins. Cinnamon markings and variegation are quite common in Yorkshires.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

TITS IN A CAGE (Plato).—You cage only affords two and a half feet of ground space; and Tits are not likely to do well in such a limited area. These tiny birds require plenty of space to exercise their naturally incessant activity, and you could scarcely keep more than three or four in such a cage. They would need plenty of twiggy branches, and some small nesting boxes into which they could take shelter when they wish. The Blue, Marsh, Coal, and Great Tits are the easiest to keep, and the Crested and Long-tailed the most difficult. The four former will live upon a good insectile mixture, together with a separate supply of hemp, sunflower seed, and nut kernels, and, of course, a few mealworms and such live insects and grubs as you can find for them. If you keep a Great Tit, he will require watching, for some of these are very murderous, while others are harmless to other birds.

BRITISH FINCHES OUTSIDE (G. Lange).—Your birds, having been outside all the summer, should do quite well during the winter, as your shelter seems ample. The main thing is to keep them from cutting winds and rain and to provide a roosting place as cosy as possible. If you could contrive to enclose about two feet of the seven-feet run as a roosting place, they should be quite all right; but if you do so you must be careful to arrange that the space so enclosed is well lighted, or the birds will not use it. Besides the mixed seed and sunflower, you should provide in separate hoppers such seeds as canary, rape, teasel, and thistle, and any wild seeds you may be able to gather. If you cannot get fresh wild seeds, then give a good Finch mixture containing these.

WILL A LINNET BREED? (J. I. H.).—Your bird would doubtless breed in the cage mentioned, but any hints as to the correct treatment before and after hatching would be useless at this season. Kindly repeat your question next spring.

ON FEEDING SOFTBILLS (Softbill).—The reason for your losing your Wheatear and Wagtail is, I am afraid, not far to seek. The food you were giving them was not good enough. A Wagtail in nature lives entirely upon insects, and its food in captivity should be generous in insectile ingredients, such as "ants' eggs," dried flies, and silkworm pupæ, with a liberal supply of live insects and grubs—house flies, spiders, small caterpillars, gentles, mealworms, etc. Almost the same applies to the Wheatear, but its food need not be quite so rich in substitutes for live insects. One part each of "ants' eggs," dried flies, preserved yolk of egg, and meat powder, with about four parts of powdered biscuit make a good stock food, and a portion of this should be moistened fresh daily by the addition of boiled potato, grated carrot, or chopped greenstuff. As you have not been successful with these two birds, I should certainly not advise you to try keeping such a bird as a Marsh Tit until you have had some experience with the more easily kept birds. Above all, do not endeavour to keep a Hoopoe. This is about the most difficult of all British birds to keep in health in captivity, and the task should only be attempted by those who fully understand the keeping of insectivorous birds. I have kept several and can only say that I have no desire to keep another.

GOLDFINCH WHEEZY (Bird Lover). For three days only add each day to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence. Afterwards put in the drinking water for two days 20 drops of whisky, five drops each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine and two of eucalyptus oil (it will require to be well shaken up in a small bottle to mix it thoroughly). Miss one day, then repeat for two days, and continue for a week or longer as may be necessary, giving the medicated water on alternate days, with plain water in between. Be careful to use a glass or porcelain drinker, not metal. Keep the bird in a comfortably warm place, not too hot, and free from draughts or changes of temperature. Besides the stock food you are using, supply dandelion and thistle seed heads, and such other wild seed as you may be able to gather, or, failing these, a good Finch mixture containing wild seeds.

BIRDS FOR OUTDOOR CAGE (E.B.).—Your "aviary" is little more than a large cage, and you would have little chance of breeding from more than one pair of birds therein. More would interfere with each other in such a limited area. You might breed from a pair of Linnets or Bullfinches, or you might try hybrids, either between British Finches or a Canary and a Finch. Proper nesting accommodation would have to be provided, but there is, of course, no need, to trouble about this till next spring. If the birds are to be kept outdoors all the winter, the cage would require to be placed in a spot where the birds would be sheltered from cold winds and rain, and where they would get all the sun they are likely to get in an English winter. Further, one-half at least of the front should be covered. It would be hopeless to think of keeping migratory insectivorous birds outdoors in such a cage. It would be much better to confine your ambitions to the keeping of single cock British birds, and in such case you might have one each of, say, Chaffinch, Linnet, Bullfinch, Goldfinch, Twite, and Siskin. For the proper feeding of these you should consult our Nutshells (see inset advt. in these columns).

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

PEKIN ROBIN (Softbill).—(1) Providing the outside aviary has a weatherproof shelter, or snug corners, to which the bird can retire at will, it should be better out of doors. I should, however, catch it up and give it three drops of castor oil, and, if you have it by you, give it three drops of "Tonic drops" (see advert. columns) the following day; if bowels are not moving freely, repeat the oil every other day till full relief has been given. It is quite possible the bird at this juncture is taking too much seed. You should cage it up for a week if you have a roomy cage, and only give it soft food, fruit and insects (three or four mealworms twice a day and any spiders and caterpillars you can come across). A few drops of cod-liver oil in its soft food should tone it up after the bowels have become easier. (2) In a roomy aviary Budgerigars and Pekins should be safe together.

BUDGERIGARS AND CARDINALS (Lovebirds).—In the first place, I do not consider your cage any too large for a couple of Cardinals. Budgerigars and Cardinals agree well enough when they have room to keep out of each other's way, but though the latter are generally well able to look after themselves in almost any company, there certainly is a risk in such a cage as yours of them getting a mischievous nip from a Budgerigar's beak, and such a nip usually means a fractured leg or wing. At the same time, while warning you of possibilities, I think they would be all right together, but you must supply perching accommodation at each end of the cage, and a husk for the Budgerigars at one end. In such a case as this you must not put in two husks, as such would cause the Budgies to occupy, on and off, both ends of the cage. There should be two seed hoppers, so that they can feed separately.

AMAZON PARROT (F. U.).—You make no mention of food and other treatment. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water, making the water just saline with Epsom salts will do, if you have not the magnesia by you. Get from your chemist a box of honey and borax and put a little in its mouth daily; if you put a little of this mixture on the end of a stick and push it against the bird's beak, it will bite at the stick, and in so doing take at any rate the bulk of the mixture. You can continue the cold mixture for a time. The diet of the bird should consist of seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, or stale crusts of household bread, and green food (lettuce, etc.) Daily or every other day give about a tablespoonful of boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day); boil till soft, pour off all water, soak into it half a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil, and when cool supply to the bird. If there should be any running at the nostrils, spray or bathe same with dilute glycothymoline, or your chemist will give you a cheaper equivalent.

CAGE BIRDS, WAXBILLS, &c. (C. E. Andrews).—Use a crock or china drinker and make their drinking water just saline with Epsom salts for one day, repeating this whenever the voidings are at all hard; the bowels should move freely without being really loose. On the days you are not giving the salts, put half a teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water, and continue above treatment till all the birds appear quite fit. As regards diet, give canary and white millet seed, and also keep a millet spray in the cage, renewing it when picked clean; also green food, lettuce and flowering grass. Yes, the birds should have cuttlebone and grit, but till they get used to the latter again, only give a pinch daily, or, having been deprived of it for a time, they may take too much. A few dried ants' eggs are appreciated by most Waxbills, and are certainly good for those which will take them. "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1s. 1½d.), also the Nutshell "Waxbills" (2½d.) would help you, both post free from our manager. Unless the cage is very large, you had better not include British species; it would be better to put in a few more Waxbills (Gold-breasts and Avadavats), also Silverbills.

BUDGERIGARS (D. R.).—All birds need a rest after a busy season to recoup, for if left to breed on almost without pause they soon run themselves out; hence I said in my reply it would be better if they did not breed this year. But I note yours have not yet bred this year, and as you have a warm inside aviary it should be quite safe to put in the husks and leave them to do as they please. Keep a continuous supply of grit, cuttlebone, and crushed mortar rubbish in the aviary. A glass-house has a very fluctuating temperature, and if unheated is very cold indeed in winter till the sun gets upon it, and I should certainly advise you to tack roofing felt over the top outside the glass, and also similarly cover up the north or east side; you will still have ample light left.

WHAT LOVEBIRD? (J.E.H.).—(1) It is a Budgerigar; when in breeding condition the cere surrounding the nostrils is bright blue in the male and ruddy brown in the female. (2) No, but unless it has a roomy cage and you fuss about with it a good bit, it will be lonely and mope, and ennui usually ends in ill-health. (3) They are hardy, and live out of doors all the year round in aviaries. Keep it out of draught, but where it can get light and air, the temperature of any ordinary living room will suffice for it. (4) Yes, and if it becomes attached to you, and allows you to play about with it, it will be better with you, and there will be no need to procure a mate for it.

WHAT PARRAKEET? (Sandringham).—Queries are not crowded out; all that reach us get the best answer we are able to give on data supplied. Your description rather points to the All Green Parrakeet (Hrotogerys tirica), and I think it must be that bird, as it is all green, lighter below, with blue in wings and tail, and a reddish, flesh-coloured beak. If it is this bird, it comes from Brazil. If not this, it must be a female Ringneck, an Indian species, but I think it is the former from what you say about its diet. Give it the following seed mixture:—One quart canary seed, one pint each hemp and white millet, and half a pint of oats—well mix together. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, shelled nuts, green food, grit, cuttlebone, and water regularly. Do not offer it bread and milk; the above will form an amply varied dietary.

BIRDS FOR CAGE (Jerry).—You are altogether over-estimating the accommodation of your cages. I consider the one will be fully occupied when you mate up the two cocks you now have in it, as you must put in four husks to prevent them quarrelling over nesting sites. I think, however, you might put in with them one pair of Grey Java Sparrows, but that is the utmost. The White Javas, Yellow Budgerigars, and Cockateels will need a cage at least 5ft. long, 2ft. deep, and 2ft. high; they will then agree together and should do well. It must be furnished with perches, a large husk or nest box with concave bottom, and two or three ordinary Budgerigar husks. As regards the proposed aviary, you must not put in more than three pairs at the most—there are very few Parrakeets that are really cheap at the present time. Ringnecks and Moustache Parrakeets offered at low rates are usually quite young birds, quite unable to fly at first, but pairs would look well when they got into good plumage and recovered the use of their wings. You could also put with them a pair of All Green Parrakeets as opportunity offered, and that would quite fill your accommodation. All glass must be covered with wire netting on the inside.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. Pearson.—The bird I examined died of impaction of the bowels, and at the same time was very emaciated. German rape seed given too freely will produce this condition. I should be glad of a few more particulars, also another bird should you lose one, as the emaciation is scarcely consistent with death from this cause, and I could not in this case discover any trace of a contagious element.

A. H. Roberts.—Acute pneumonia resulting from cold due to weather variations. The bird was in very good condition, and death must have occurred rapidly.

C. Latham.—Death arose from cirrhosis, or hardening of the liver, brought about by the intaking of impurities in the food. There was also bowel inflammation, as the result of functional alterations in this organ.

Green.—There can be no doubt that the seed was the cause of your trouble. Acute inflammation of the bowels as the result of its use was the cause of death. There was not the slightest indication of bird fever, as your friend suggested. On no account give any more of this seed. Your treatment was very suitable.

E.H.P. (Covent Garden).—Young Canary was a hen, death resulting from inflammation of the bowels. The liver was slightly fatty, which predisposed to its death. You may be giving your young birds a diet too liberal or too rich in fat. A dose or two of glauber salts in the drinking water may obviate further trouble.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

F. Griffin.—The plant sent is burdock. We have never found this much favoured by birds whenever thistles and hardheads have been available.

R. G. Smart.—Shall have to keep this photo for publication in a special number; the detail is too fine to permit of reproduction in our ordinary issues. Shall be pleased to have notes on your American birds if you can find time to pen them.

Members of "King's Head."—We never take notice of anonymous letters, so your communication has fluttered like some wounded Dove into the capacious maw of our wastepaper basket.

G. Duerden.—Thanks for the excellent photograph, which we will keep by us for use in an art supplement.

Beginner.—A paraffin oil lamp is very dangerous if it should either smoke or give off bad fumes. The burning of the oil is not harmful providing you can safeguard the above two points.

SHOCKING CRUELTY TO A DECOY BIRD

A Very Lenient Sentence.

A case of grievous cruelty to a decoy bird was detailed to the Eastbourne Bench of Magistrates on Sept. 8, when G. Bradford, of Beach Road, and C. Sherwood, of Sidley Mews were prosecuted at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A. Both defendants pleaded guilty.

Inspector Bennett, of the R.S.P.C.A., stated that at 7 a.m. on the 22nd August he was on the Crumbles in company with P.C. Hastings, when he saw the defendants lying on the ground about 400 yards from him. He looked through his field glasses and saw a bird net properly set, to which was fastened a stick. Sherwood was working the stick, and witness saw a decoy bird at the end of it. When the defendants saw witness and the constable they ran away, Sherwood making a fruitless attempt to snatch up the nets, while Bradford grabbed at the bird. Witness discovered the bird's leg on the end of the stick, it having evidently been torn from its body. It was quite warm and wet with blood. Witness did not find the bird at all. The bird's leg was that of a Wheatear. Sherwood said it was a Starling. Sherwood told him that he tied the bird with thin twine, and that it must have slipped down and got on its leg. Witness said it was absolutely impossible for the bird to have pulled its leg out by merely fluttering about.

Sherwood said he did not think there was any harm in bracing the bird as they did. He did not tie the string tightly. It must have worked tight itself.—Inspector Bennett (interposing) mentioned that kind of brace had been used five or six times on the bird, because its leg was chafed all over, and in places the bone was showing.

Replying to the Chairman, Bradford said he was 19 years of age and was out of work. Sherwood said he was 18, and did "all sorts of work." The Chairman said that what the prisoners had done was looked upon as a very serious matter by the law. They could be sent to prison for three months, or were liable to a fine of £25. They would each be fined 10s., or, in default, seven days. Until Saturday was allowed for payment.

The Shows.

SCOTCH FANCY NATIONAL DERBY O.A.

Annual show held on Sept. 20th in Grand National Halls, Main Street, Gorbals. Hon. Pres., Wm. Hart, Esq., Paisley; Pres., County Councillor James Hogg, Esq., Oakley; Vice-Pres., County Councillor James D Brown, Esq., East Kilbride; Sec. and Treas., Arthur M. Baird, 23, Neilston Road, Paisley; judges, Messrs. A. Paterson, Edinboro; J. Carlow, Falkirk; J. Watson, Glasgow; J. Muirhead, Perrybridge. The nine classes embracing nearly 200 entries, the judges had a difficult task in making their awards, especially as so many good birds were among them; nevertheless the awards seemed to please, there being no grumbling heard. The show ranks, if not the best certainly one of the best held for years, both in point of number and quality. Many good birds that were not in the first four were winners at the confined Derby show held the previous Saturday. The winner of the blue ribbon and Derby bird was the buff pied hen belonging to Vice-Pres. James D. Brown, Esq., a bird of great merit, the runner-up being Wm. McClure, buff pied cock, a perfect gem and certainly the best buff cock seen for some years, a close runner-up for the ribbon. We were very glad to find a large gathering of birdie men, among whom we noticed Messrs. Brown, Lees, Thorburn, Dalgleish, Fulton, Renwick, Jardine, Stewart and McClure. We were also pleased to see our old friend, Thomas Thomson, looking fairly well at his old game, looking for specials for his old love, the forthcoming City of Glasgow show, which has had for so many years a staunch supporter in our old friend "Tom." Much of the success of the show lies at the door of the splendid Sec. and Treas., Mr. Arthur M. Baird, who spared no effort to make the show the success it turned out to be.

YELL. CK. (CL. OR FOUL) (24): 1, 2, McClure, grand size and top end, fine length of side, 2nd another nice bird, shade bare at neck; 3, 4, J. D. Brown, 3rd shade thin to those in front, 4th foul ck., flossy in front feather, a nice bird; 5, Gray; 6, 7, Morrison. PIE or GREEN (17): 1, McClure, green, not finished on head, flossy front, nice bird; 2, J. D. Brown, pied ck., shade thin to first, nice top end and pose, good bird; 3, Maxwell, grand head and top end, good reach, head well down, nicely set up; 4, Strathearn, piebald, better size than third, drawn well, good 4th; 5, Miller; 6, Fulton; 7, Robertson. BUFF CK. (CL. or FOUL) (22): 1, 5, J. T. Miller, 1st grand size, barely finished; 2, McClure, Confined Derby winner, in rare order; 3, 4, Gray, grand size, flossy front, shade short in reach, 4th fine size does not draw so well as those in front; 6, Menzies; 7, Thornton. PIE or GREEN (22): 1, 2, McClure, first runner-up for Cup, quite a gem for size, grand droop and top end, fine length of side, will take a lot of beating, 2nd another pie, a beauty for size and style; 3, J. D. Brown, not finished on head; 4, Muir, falls a bit on top end; 5, Higgins; 6, Maxwell; 7, Fulton. YELL. HEN, CL. OR FOUL (24): 1, 6, Morrison, good head, draws well, good style; 2, McClure, better for size, fails in style to first; 3, J. D. Brown, fails in droop, shade plainer than those in front; 4, Higgins, nice style, fair size, faulty in left wing; 5, Renwick, 2nd in Confined Derby, might have done better; 7, Fulton. PIE or GREEN (24): 1, J. D. Brown, pie hen, a grand one, lovely head, draws well, wins; 2, McClure, first Confined Derby bird, beaten to-day; 3, Menzies, fails in top end to those in front, but a good one; 4, Higgins, shade thin on neck; 5, Campbell; 6, Maxwell; 7, Robertson. BUFF HEN, CL. OR FOUL (23): 1, J. D. Brown, foul, very flossy feather in front, grand style and size, nice reach and droop; 2, Menzies, a wee bit over the spar, fine bodied bird, good droop; 3, 4, Morrison, fails in style, better body than second, 4th good size, a shade short in reach, but a good one; 5, Jordan; 6, Campbell; 7, Burnside. PIED or GREEN (35): 1, and cup winner, J. D. Brown, fair size, grand drive, lovely droop, very loose feather in front, nice top end, good bird; 2, Strathearn, fine size and top end, good droop, crosses wing a bit, but a good one; 3, A. M. Baird, buff green, fine bodied bird, nice movement and droop; 4, Campbell, nice all round type, shade thin.

EALING AND HANWELL F.S.

Young stock show held at Drill Hall, West Ealing, Sept. 13. The three classes for cage birds were somewhat disappointing, owing probably to the moulting season. Mr. Bayliss judged. YORKS.: 1, vhc, Crockett; 2, 3, hc, c, Taylor and Wright; res, Miss Burton. NOR.: 1, 2, 3, Thursby. BRIT.: 1, Cane.—R. Bamber, Hon. Sec.

MARKET DRAYTON.

Show held in connection with the Agricultural Show, Sept. 18. Our section was nicely staged in the cheese tent, and made a very pleasing display, being much admired by the numerous visitors who thronged the tent the whole time. Mr. Victor Williams staged a grand team, which accounted for most of the sport in the open classes. The classification is rather small and might be extended with advantage. Mr. H. Tams judged.

OPEN, NOR.: (9): 1, hc, c, Williams, splendid cl. yell., grand size and shape, rare head and body, fine col. and feather, hardly fit yet; 2, 3, Brotherhood, leader cl. yell., medium size, fine type and quality, best of carriage, more forward than winner, beaten head and size, 3rd cl. buff, very fine type and feather, rare full head, gets well across perch, in nice order; vhc, Groom. YORKS. (4): 1, 2, 3, Williams, fine trio, leader cl. buff, medium length, very nice shape and position, good round head, lovely qual., not yet fit, followed by head mkd. buff of ratting length and style, not so good in head, good feather and carr., more forward, 3rd uneven buff, well drawn, nice back and waist, rare boxy feather, hardly so stylish; vhc, Windsor. A.O.V. CAN. OR MULE (2): 1, Sutton, nice buff Gold.-Can., mkd wings, medium size, in nice feather; 2nd, Windsor, cinn., nice qual., rather small, good feather. BRIT. OR FOR. (6): 1, 2, 3, Williams, leader Green-billed Toucan, medium size, delightful colours, very tame, hardly ready yet, 2 Chough, in lovely feather, legs and bill of grand colour, carries nice bloom, getting nicely through moult, 3rd fair sized Red-headed Gouldian, tight in feather, minus a tail shaft; vhc, Groom; hc, Jones. SELL. (6): 1, Groom; 2, Sutton; 3, Brotherhood; res, Windsor. LOCAL (5): 1, 2, res, Walker, leader unfligh. cl. yell., medium size, nice type col. and qual, 2nd cl. buff unflig., fair type and feather, bit on small side; 3rd, Whittingham, wing mkd. buff of nice shape, again small; hc, Farnell. YORKS. (10): 1, 2, res, Barnett, leader stylish cl. buff, nice position and qual., followed by cl. yell., medium size, best of qual., good position, not yet ready; 3, Madeley, nat. col. cl. yell., nice length; hc, Chesters; c, Mrs. Darbyshire. A.O.V. (4): 1, Wycherley, nicely mkd. Twite, in excellent feather; 2, Barnett, var. Gold.-Can., medium size, not finished moult; 3, Madeley, Bullfinch, good size, shown in poor feather; res, Hickman.

Trapping the Wily Sparrow.

Sir,—I shall be much obliged if any reader will tell me how to catch Sparrows. There are a large quantity here, including a white one. The latter is what I am trying to capture. Is a Sparrow trap obtainable for the purpose?

SPARROW.

Settling a Novice Problem.

Sir,—As a novice in doubt, will you please let me know if I win three first prizes at the first shows I enter in, will it debar me from showing at other shows as a novice this season; or if I start as a novice this season, am I a novice all through the season?

A NOVICE.

[The general rule at open shows is that as soon as a fancier wins three first prizes in novice classes, he then becomes a champion, and is no longer eligible to enter birds in novice classes.—Editor.]

Something Like a Beak!

A House Sparrow's Unusual Adornment.

Sir,—We have an extraordinary House Sparrow here in Blackburn, with a beak which would not disgrace a Toucan. I enclose you a rough sketch, which has been taken from a photograph, and which no doubt your artist will be able to use. Our local paper, speaking of this bird, says: "It is just an ordinary English Sparrow, with a more generous allowance of beak than Nature in her calmer moods apportions to members of the tribe. Nature has, indeed, been in a highly jocular humour, and has produced a creature which may be most conveniently classed with the freaks. In everything, except its beak, the bird is unmistakably a Sparrow, and it is at present one of the habitues of the Brantfell Road district of Blackburn, where it consorts amicably with the other birds, and in company with them ranges the gardens in search of food. The beak is just an elongation of the ordinary organ, and is fully two inches long, with a slight curve and a thickening in the growth at the end. In no sense does it appear to distress or hamper the bird; indeed, those who have seen Master Long Beak are inclined to accuse him of a little more "swank" than the rest of his Sparrow friends."

HOUSE SPARROW'S ABNORMAL BEAK.
The dotted lines show the beak as it usually appears.

A BLACKBURN ROVER.

The Catching of Redpolls.

Sir,—In answer to Mr. E. Cockram, in reference to catching Redpolls, I catch most of mine with a clap-net. It is one of the easiest of all birds to catch. No brace bird is necessary. A small open top cage with a Redpoll in must be stood under one wing of the net; they will readily flock down to it if he calls well. If Mr. Cockram only requires a few for himself, a trap-cage should supply all he requires. Get a single trap, usually sold at eightpence. Gather a good handful of the heads of milk thistle (we call it sow thistle here), put this in bottom of cage and a little hemp seed, if you like. Hang or stand the trap-cage on a rail with the small open cage, containing the call bird, close beside it, and if your bird calls and there are any Redpolls about you won't have long to wait for a catch. Don't stand trap on the ground (a big mistake most novices make), as if you do the birds will simply walk round. Any further information I shall be pleased to give in reference to catching any kind of birds.

GLASGOW S.F. CONFINED DERBY.

Show held Sept. 13. Numbers showed a falling off, but quality was good. Mr. McClure won the Derby with a grand big clear yell. hen, splendid bird, also ran up with a buff pied cock, could do with more size.

Prize Money that Pleases the Members and Assists the Societies.

A Cornish Secretary Outlines His Scheme.

Sir,—We read and hear a lot nowadays about the failure of members' shows, poor prize-money, etc. It has often occurred to me that some system of awarding prize-money could be adopted, and the entry fees made to meet the expenses of the prizes, yield a small percentage to the funds of the society, and give satisfaction all round.—That is, give satisfaction to those out for true sport, and the welfare of their society.

The man is not yet born who can work out a scale which will give satisfaction to the class of people who are all self. As the secretary of a society who is endeavouring to make things "go," I have worked out the scale of prizes attached hereto, and should be glad to know what some of your readers think of it. It will be noticed that in no case does the prize-money exceed the entry fees, and yet the value of the prizes is (to my way of thinking) reasonable compared with the entry fee. My suggestion is that the society's funds would benefit by the entry fees over ten and under 15, over 15 and under 20, and so on. For instance, if the entry fee is 1s., and you have 12 entries, your prize-money would be 5s., 3s., 2s.; this allows 2s. to the society's funds, and still gives what I think will strike all fair-minded fanciers as being fair prize-money. It must be remembered that it is the question of members' shows in particular, I have in mind, although I see no reason why some such scale could not be adopted by open shows, because the larger the entry fee, and the larger the entry, the larger would be the prizes. After all is said and done, if you don't get the entries where can you get your prize-money? Even secretaries can't find money in the gutters. I fancy I can hear some reader saying: Well! what about the annual subscriptions? The best answer I can give to that is, get appointed assistant secretary, or otherwise make yourself acquainted with the work, and you'll find there are a thousand and one ways to expend the annual subscriptions.

The first objection I expect to hear is: that with such a system as this you can't fix the amount of prize-money to print in your schedules, which would have the effect of keeping back entries. No! not among "sports." Even with fixed prize-money, you can't tell till after the judging, whether you have got 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d., or nothing. Your catalogue would show the number of entries in each class, and a glance at the scale, which could be printed inside the schedule (and catalogue if thought advisable) would show instantly what prize-money one was entitled to. I don't send this out thinking it is perfect (I've no doubt there are some points I have omitted to consider), but to give readers an opportunity of expressing their views. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success and acknowledge having received much valuable information and instruction from its pages.

Pendleton and Salford O.S. Takes on a New Lease of Life.

Sir,—The above society has now established its headquarters at Cheetham Hill, the "Crumpsall Hotel." I have taken over the Sec.'s duties, and it is the desire of myself and many of the old members that Pendleton should again be to the front. We shall be pleased to see all old faces and new ones, and we offer them a special inducement to join us.

The Southern Norwich P.C. and Clapham Show.

Sir,—You might kindly call the attention of our members to the schedule for Clapham show in champion section, which I expect is an oversight of the instructions given by the Committee, and rules of the S.N.P.C., to Mr. Hose. Unless the Clapham Show Committee alter the error at once by press notice, our members need not enter, as we cannot count any points in either champion or novice section unless we have class 5 (yellow hen), class 6 (buff hen) for champions. I have written Mr. Hose on the subject, and trust he will be able to put this matter in order so as to stop any cancelling at Clapham.

The 1913 Nesting Season in a Devon Aviary.

Interesting Results, but Many Disappointments.

Sir,—Perhaps it may be of interest to briefly record some of the results obtained in my aviary this season, because they relate to species or to climatic conditions which have been mentioned from time to time in your columns. Taking it all round the season has been a most disappointing one, and the results meagre in the extreme. The two most interesting nests—those of the long-tailed Tit and the Bearded Tit—both came to grief; in the first case from the egg-binding of the hen, and in the second from the cock being killed during the period of incubation by a Yellow Wagtail. The best things always seem to escape one. The Long-tailed Tits built in a nest-box, the only instance known to the Selborne Society, to whom I have by request given a photo; it is also interesting to note that the nest was not domed, as is the invariable habit of the species, its architects evidently having decided that the top of the box was sufficient protection. Citril Finches reared two young, but the latter escaped through the netting, and I am not absolutely certain that they were fully independent. That very rare little species, the Scaly-fronted Finch, has reared several broods, and seems to be thoroughly hardy and as prolific as the Zebra Finch, and, taking into consideration its market value, it can be recommended to the not inconsiderable section of aviculturists who like to choose a hobby that pays. Bramble Finches reared five young from five eggs, and it has been very interesting to watch the young playing on the wing, and the sequences of plumage. Yellow Wagtails also reared five young from five eggs in a very neat little nest snugly sheltered by a tuft of grass. Himalayan Linnets failed to rear, though the young grew well at first. Indian Purple-browed Rosefinches built in a hole in some rockwork, such as a Wheatear might select (probably an abnormal situation, because last year another pair built an ordinary open nest in a bush) and hatched, but failed to rear. It is interesting to note that this year's nest was built by birds in immature plumage. White Wagtails reared four young. As I have before mentioned in your columns, my own view is that a very dry summer is unfavourable for nesting, and I have recently seen similar views expressed by various writers. A "Field" expert states that the unfertility of Pheasants' eggs this season has been phenomenal. Partridges have been a poor crop, and broods of insectivorous birds scanty.

W. H. TESCHEMAKER.

A Story of a Tame Homing Starling.

Sir,—I was cycling with a friend between Dublin and Balhiggan on Sept. 15, and when passing through Curduff I noticed in front of a roadside cottage a girl engaged in milking a goat. On the goat's back was seated a beautifully plumaged Starling; it would fly round in a circle, perch on the vessel into which the milk was directed, take a sip of the milk, then perch on the girl's shoulder. This continued until he had enough of the milk. Being a lover of birds, naturally I was struck with the performance and made some inquiries about the bird, whose name turned out to be "Jake." It was his custom to wander through the neighbouring fields with other wild birds during the day, but if the girl called to him he would fly to her and perch on her head or shoulder. He always came back in the evening and took up his accustomed perch among the dishes upon a shelf in the cottage.

The Silver Tea-service at Sheffield O.S. Show.

Is it Open to All Novice Fanciers?

Sir,—I see by "Twitterings" that a gentleman is giving a silver tea-service to novice Yorkshire fanciers at Sheffield O.S. show. I should like to know whether it is open to all Yorkshire fanciers (novices), or restricted to the county of Yorkshire, or open only to members of the society holding the show? I will look for an answer in CAGE BIRDS.

The Testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb of Leeds.

Sir,—Subscriptions have amounted to £10 4s., which sum I have sent to Mr. Cobb, and have received from him a letter expressing his sincere thanks for same. Mr. Cobb's many friends will be pleased to hear that he is a little better, and has been able to get away for a change, which it is hoped will help to put him on his legs again. As many subscribers have asked that their names should not be published, I do not append a list for publication, but any subscriber can see the list at my address, or at the L. and P.O.S. autumn or Palace shows. I thank those who have been kind enough to respond to my appeal.

Can Bird Shows be Made More Attractive?

An Appeal for Ideas.

Sir,—Many of your correspondents have remarked on the poor gate-money taken at the average show, and the necessity of making the latter more attractive. Amongst the many fanciers reading this journal there surely must be some with good original ideas of how to carry this out. Now that the show time is so near, perhaps those fanciers will kindly give us their ideas. Conditions differ at every show, so that a good draw in one place may not be a success at another. Prize draws are very risky things to touch in the present state of the law, and what with picture palaces and other attractions, it is very hard nowadays to get a good "gate." My object in writing is to get, if possible, some good ideas, so that committees and secretaries can make a selection to suit them, and I am sure we shall all be grateful to the senders. Speaking for ourselves, I am sure the Committee of the Reading C.B.S. would be delighted to consider a suitable suggestion at our next meeting, if any fancier could kindly oblige.

What is a Ticked Bird?

Standards that Differ Create Differing Fanciers.

Sir,—Would you or any reader be kind enough to answer through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, what is a "ticked" Canary? I was at a meeting last Thursday night of a club, of which I am a member, and this point was raised. I said myself that a ticked bird was a bird with a mark not larger than a sixpence, or one dark wing or tail feather, and dark underflue allowed. Well, sir, several of the members wanted to make me believe that if a bird had two or three small marks about the size of a pea, that would still be a ticked bird; but I failed to see it. I maintain that if a bird has more than one mark it cannot be a ticked, but must be a marked bird, and therefore it would not be right for it to compete in a class for ticked birds. So, Sir, if you will give these few lines your kind attention, it will enlighten me, and also other fanciers.

B. THROWER.

[The definition given by Mr. Thrower is one widely used by societies, especially with regard to Norwich Plainheads, but the standard of the Yorkshire Canary differs, saying that: "A ticked bird is one with dark feather on thighs, rump, or any part of an otherwise clear body; it may also have a mark on one eye, wing or tail, but not more than one such technical mark separately or in addition to any other variegation on its body." This difference often gives rise to argument as to what constitutes a "ticked" bird.—Editor.]

A Real Live Society Wanted.

Sir,—I should like to know the views of my fellow fanciers in Stockport and District with regard to forming a Cage Bird Society. I think a town like Stockport ought to be able to run a society equal to any in the country, as there are plenty of fanciers and plenty of good birds, especially the Norwich and Yorkshire varieties. I should like fanciers to think this over. Let us all try to make our hobby more interesting. Perhaps we can arrange a meeting to discuss the matter. Now fanciers wake up and let's have a real good society in Stockport.

Some Albino and Other Bird Freaks.

Sir,—I have seen many interesting notes about Albino and freak birds in your paper, so send you the following, which I have just read in the "Scotsman." The writer says: "Pied Blackbirds are not uncommon, but instances where the ordinary plumage is otherwise varied are rare. Within the policies of an estate on Teviot side there is at present a male Blackbird whose head, breast, and neck are a bright buff, with the rest of the body of normal colour. The contrasting colours are very effective, and the bird, with its yellow bill, makes a pretty picture when feeding beside its more sombre-clad companions. In the same locality, but on the opposite side of the river, a pure white House Sparrow has emerged from one of this season's nests; and in a garden not far distant some workmen recently flushed a brood of Wrens. All were able to fly, save one, which sought safety among some bushes. When caught it was discovered that its inability to fly was due to the fact that both of its wings were on the same side of its body, the one above the other.

A Northerner's Views on the Norwich Plainhead.

HE CONSIDERS COLOUR BEFORE TYPE.

Mr. A. Holden (Gateshead) lectures, on Sept. 17, before the members of the Northern Norwich P.C.

Mr. Chairman and Brother Fanciers: It gives me very great pleasure to come here to-night and give you a few hints on the Norwich Canary. I do not consider myself an authority on the Norwich; still I may be a little in advance of what you might term a "green" novice. In the first place the Norwich is a bird of colour. Now various fanciers have different methods of breeding to get colour. I myself choose the Cinnamon to start with, having had good results from same. I have bred with a yellow-green and a yellow-varieg. cock, produced from a buff cinnamon cock and a clear yellow hen. I prefer for stock the cocks out of the youngsters bred from them; by sticking more to the cock side you do not lose size, and you also have a better chance of keeping the colour in them, which is what you are trying for.

One thing I have proved to produce a fair percentage of yellows is to breed from a direct line of yellows as much as you can, and the cocks especially. For instance, a yellow cock bred from a yellow cock, paired to a buff hen, bred from a yellow hen and a yellow cock. Having got a good colour, what we want next is type.

The Good Points and the Failings.

A Norwich Plainhead should be short, the beak short, the head nice and round, with a wide, clean skull (no trace of lashing, which gives some fanciers the idea that you have been introducing the Crestbred) and a nice large eye, set in the centre of the head, as nothing looks worse than to see the eye too near the top of the head or close against the beak. To me it spoils the whole look of the bird. The neck should be short and full, and well set into wide and well-filled in shoulders; the back broad and neatly-rounded; chest deep, full, and well-rounded, gradually tapering to a small and clean waist, free from long, drooping feathers, which we too often see; tail short and neat; wings short and meeting nicely at the tips, not crossing over; legs short. The bird should stand well across the perch in a bold and defiant attitude. The feathers should be soft and silky in texture and nicely laid all over the body—nice and close in what I term the web of the feather. This, gentlemen, is my idea of what a Norwich should be.

As to pairing, I am most particular about my hens. I try and have them as near to type as I can get. I spend hours looking at my hens which I intend to pair up, and I may here state that if you, as fanciers, intend to breed winners, you will have to make them your study also. Choose only the best of your stock. The more time you spend in studying your stock birds, the sooner you will be able to produce the ideal Norwich. I prefer a medium-sized hen, not too small, and one that has been bred from a hen of good size in the first place. So you will see that it really takes two lots of stock hens, as you cannot expect to get size by breeding year after year from small hens. I myself have heard lecturers tell us that they like the small hens and large cock birds; but they forget to tell you what the small hens are bred from. It is, I think, a generally admitted fact that from the female shape and symmetry spring, and, as I made mention before, colour from the male. I take a hen and put her in a show cage. Then I take a cock bird which I think will suit (that is, knowing how he is bred), compare the two and get the good points and also the bad ones. I try and balance the one with the other. If I find I have a very weak point in both birds, then I try another cock bird; and so on until I get them paired up.

The Secret Lies in the Pedigree.

Always remember what they are bred from; this, to me, is where the secret lies. There may have been faults in your stock birds a year or two before, of which you took particular notice at the time, and you may simply fall into what you have been trying to avoid for a season or two by pairing back a bird with the one fault. This has been my experience. One thing I am most particular about is to have good heads and necks on both birds. I will forego a bit of length in the cock bird, but the hen must be as short as possible. Discard hens with long tails. I do not mind about the cock being long in tail, providing the hen has not the same fault. What looks worse than to see a Norwich with a long tail? And I find a bird with a long tail has a nasty habit of spreading it. What we want is to try and get as much in front of the perch, and as little behind as possible, and then we will be on the right track.

Another very important matter is, when you think that you must introduce a bird or two in your stock for some particular purpose, see to it that you get all you want in them. Do not go on chopping and changing. Don't be persuaded that it can be done by introducing several birds, each carrying one of the particular qualities you require, or the chances are you will meet with disappointment.

Several questions were asked the lecturer, and were answered in good style, this bringing the best meeting ever held by the Northern Norwich Plainhead Club to a close, all feeling sorry to have to end the discussion.

The kind required should be specified clearly.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Club Reports.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held Sept. 20, Mr. Jas. Stenhouse (President) in the chair. Schedule as drawn up by the committee was passed. Yorkshire classes were altered to cl. or tkd. yellow, ditto buff, variegated yellow, ditto buff, unlighted yellow, ditto buff. Agreed to get 50 copies of rules printed. Anyone wanting CAGE BIRDS coupons apply at once to the secretary, A. Dickson, 37, Admn's-terr., Kelty.

EAST HAM C.B.S.

Well attended meeting held at Hurtley Avenue Schools, Sept. 17. Mr. T. Walker, chair. Prizes of the young stock show distributed. A lecture followed by Mr. F. Easterling on "Hints on Exhibiting," which was much appreciated. Mr. Easterling's lecture was quite out of the ordinary, as he dealt with diseases, and showed illustrations of the parasites which he said were the root of all the evil in the complaints of birds. He pointed out that birds must be staged as perfectly as possible as regards cleanliness, etc. The hints he gave ought to be of some service to the members, and the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed. Various questions were asked and answered. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Easterling, and thus terminated a very pleasant evening. Members kindly send all money due on tickets, etc., to sec. before next meeting, Oct. 8. F. Onslow, Hon. Assist. Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held Sept. 13, Mr. Farrer presiding. Mr. P. Hunter, who is an honorary member, was elected vice-pres., in slight acknowledgment of his favours to the club. Open classes for show were discussed, and following agreed to:—8 Nor. (under N.C.N. and C.C.C. patronage); 4 Crests; 8 Yorks (N.Y.C.C. patronage); 9 Borders (N.B. and S.F.C. patronage); 2 Lizards (N.L.C. patronage); 3 scll.; 2 Mules, etc.; 3 Brit.; and 3 For. (N.B.M. and F.B.C. patronage). Members—5 Nor., 4 Crests and C.B., 3 Cinns., 5 Bords., 5 Yorks, 4 Lizards, 3 Brit., 2 Mule, etc., 1 pair class (extra), and 2 For.—in all 81 classes (19 novice), as against 68 last year. As Sept. 27 is the last day for applying under CAGE BIRDS Competition scheme, would members think it over, for decision at next meeting, at which all are requested to make an effort to be present.—J. Peacock, Hon. Sec.

ANNFIELD PLAIN C.B.S.

Meeting held at Mr. Hannighan's, Sept. 13; Mr. W. Cresswell chair, with a good turn-out of members. Decided to adopt last year's schedule with the addition of two classes for Borders, one Green or Cinn., and one Variog. Borders, for annual show on Dec. 20. Decided to have open Linnet class on the same as last year. As we are barred from having prize draws, it was decided to sell the gift class birds by auction, reserve price to be 5s. We are holding a table show next meeting, October 11, with the following classes: Nor. yell. ck., Yorks. yell. ck., Border yell. ck., A.O.V. Can., Linnet, Redpoll, and A.O.V. British. Mr. J. Emmerson, Stanley, judge. Birds staged 7 p.m. As we have some specials to compete for at these table shows, I expect our members will make as good entries as they did last year, R. Peart, Sec.

LEIGH C.B.S.

Very successful table show of 1013 birds held at headquarters, Railway Hotel, Sept. 17, when some very good youngsters were put down to be judged by Mr. W. Ordish, whose awards gave every satisfaction. Members turned up in grand style, and a very enjoyable evening was spent; two new members joined. Mr. Keeley (a friend) promised a special for best bird in old show. Mr. Taylor (vice-pres.) promised half a dozen knives and forks for second best, and a copper kettle for the member gaining most points throughout, all of which were readily accepted. Before the judge handed his awards in we had a judging competition, eight of the members taking part in it. This was won by R. Charleson with 18 points, closely followed by W. Wylie, a novice, with 17 points. The awards were:—NOR.: 1, 2, vhc, hc, Dawson; 3, c, Collier. YORKS: 1, 2, 3, Taylor; vhc, Hamer; hc, Wylie. A.O.V.: 1, 2, 3, Taylor.—R. Charleson, Sec.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 11, Westmorland Street Mission Room, Mr. T. Ridal presiding, supported by the vice-chair. Considerable business was got through. The principal being arrangements for annual show, Nov. 15. The classification was voted by all to be ample—six classes members' Yorks, six members' Nor., six novice Yorks, six novice Nor. Old birds have 12 classes, foreign 2, British 4, A.O.V. Can. 1, sell. 1; prizes, 4s., 2s., 1s. The society has four cups for competition. This, with special promised, should draw a record entry. The birds can be staged Friday night or Saturday morning before nine o'clock. The business of table shows came in for considerable discussion. The October table show was thought to have a deleterious effect on entries at annual show; it was eventually decided to let same stand for this year. The novice cup for table shows is causing some excitement, several being well in the running. Let us have a record at the Oct. show, novices. Judges and stewards were arranged. The rest of the evening was taken up by Mr. G. Fletcher in an interesting lecture on foreign birds. Next meeting, Oct. 9, table show, young birds.—C. Tomlinson, Sec.

WELSH C.B.C.

General meeting, Ship and Bell, Sept. 22, Mr. G. T. Jones presiding. Mr. S. H. George (Swansea) wrote saying impossible to attend. The following new members were elected:—Messrs. P. Muscott, D. Jenkins, Swansea; T. J. Williams, Merthyr and Landore. Captain Collier offers two 10s. 6d. cash specials at club show for unflighted Norwich and unflighted A.O.V. Can. bred and exhibited by a member. Decided not to send out cups and cup winners' medals until the winners attend a meeting to sign agreements as per rules, and also pay subs. Auditors' report accepted. Patronage—Oct. 29, Llandrindod (granted), Upper Rhondda, same date, lost by one vote; Nov. 13, Swansea; Nov. 20, Cardiff; Dec. 11, Tredegar; points for cups count at these shows, medals as per rules awarded club show. Suggested alterations to rules handed in at annual general meeting postponed until next meeting. Members, please note suggested alterations by Mr. E. Powell, "appoint two trustees at next meeting and insert new rule authorising such permanent appointments." By Mr. Tedstone, rule two, all after the word books he struck out and add "and forfeit all claims against the club." Also Rule 6, after the word meeting, add "In the event of their only being the necessary number nominated for the various offices or officers, it shall not be necessary to take a ballot." By A. E. Brown, "Rule 7 be struck out altogether." Club show to be held at Brecon. Arrangements left to Messrs. Tedstone and Jones. Secretary's resignation again refused. All members who have not yet paid subs. must be proposed as new members.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Meeting held headquarters, Rose and Crown Hotel, Sept. 16, with a full attendance. The chief business was the allotting of special prizes for the all-England show, Nov. 7 and 8. This of itself was a very tall order, there being 130 specials to allot amongst 90 classes. Exhibitors should make a note of this; they have something to come to Sheffield for. In addition to the splendid amount of specials we are paying 22s. per class, and giving full prize money if only one entry. This means £150 in prize money and specials, so the Sheffield O.S. well deserves the heartiest support.—J. A. T. Woodall.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting held Sept. 22, Church Institute, Paddington Street, Mr. Shepherd chair, and 36 members present. The "special" for the evening was a judging competition in Norwich Plainheads, and members staged some very nice birds. Two classes were formed—yellows (8), and buffs (11). In the absence of Mr. Matthes, Mr. W. Knight, one of our most expert judging members, kindly volunteered his services, and performed the duties very satisfactorily, receiving a unanimous vote of thanks for undertaking the duties at such short notice. After Mr. Knight had explained his reasons for placing the birds, and answered various questions, a vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—Fred Thynne, Assist. Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting held Sept. 22, Mr. Alcock presiding, further arrangements were made for annual open show, on the proposition of Mr. Ratcliffe, seconded by Mr. Roberts, it was decided to add unflighted hen classes for Norwich and Yorks in each section, so that we have now eight Norwich and eight Yorks classes in open and seven each in novice section. Members were somewhat surprised to hear that the M.C.Y.C.C. had only allotted us patronage in novice section, which caused much comment; however, it was decided to accept this, as we have members competing in the novice competition. CAGE BIRDS Championship Coupons were then distributed to the number of about forty. Will other members who require some kindly let me know? Mr. G. Lockett, sen. (Longton), was elected a member. I was pleased to hear from a former Potteries fancier, Mr. J. McDonald, this week; this gentleman was much esteemed amongst local fanciers, and at one time had a nice stock of Yorkshires, but circumstances compelled him to give up the Fancy, and he afterwards left the district. Those who knew him will be pleased to hear that he is now settled at Flint, and is taking an active part in the formation of a cage bird society in that locality.—J. Pitchford.

TREDEGAR C.B.S.

General meeting held headquarters, Silver Grill, Sept. 18; E. Powell, chair. Present: E. Powell, J. Griffiths, W. Thomas, W. H. Lewis, D. Davies, G. Thomas, G. Bennett, R. F. Griffiths, J. Harding, E. J. Bevan, and W. B. Watkins.. Sec. was instructed to obtain another two dozen CAGE BIRDS championship coupons. Open show classification was discussed, and the following adopted, viz., Nor. 8 (novice 2), Yorks. 10 (novice 4), A.O.V. 1, pairs 1, Borders 1, British 7, Mules 1, Foreign 2, local 1, selling 2, members 4. Novices please note we are giving them 6 classes. I trust they will appreciate same by giving us a bumping entry. Mr. R. Halliday (Yorkshire) was appointed judge.—W. B. Watkins, Sec.

IDLE C.B.S.

Meeting held at White Bear Inn, Sept. 17, to decide what steps should be taken in regard to the allotment of the Illingworth cup and the subscription shield. A good muster of members was present; Mr. J. Chippendale, chair. Decided that the terms of competition for the above trophies be as follows: For 1913 season, commencing with the members' show, Oct. 18, and the two remaining shows, all members to be allowed to enter three birds, any class or classes except selling classes, the same to be starred on entry form. The winner of highest number of points obtained in his section as declared by him to have his choice of the two trophies, the runner-up to win the remaining trophy; the said winners to hold their respective trophies till the first Saturday in January following, when on return each shall receive a medal. All intending new members should notify sec. as soon as possible, who will be glad to supply full information as to the grand list of prizes other than those mentioned. See club notice in this issue as to time and place of meetings.—C. E. Hylton.

DERBY C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 6, Normanton Hotel. Owing to not being able to have a room in future at the Derwent Hotel we have been compelled to find a fresh clubhouse. The Normanton Hotel was unanimously selected. Members please note the alteration. The hotel proprietor, Mr. Graham, a birdy man himself, extended to us a generous invitation to use his premises, and we are assured of more advantageous privileges than at our last clubhouse. Annual members' show will be held here, Nov. 29. Mr. W. H. Eley was elected judge. At this period of the year, when birds are passing through the trying stage of moulting, and exhibitors are preparing for the fascinating season of prize hunting, a few statistics of the breeding season in this district will perhaps interest readers locally. Crests and Crest-breds: G. Colledge 50, G. H. Wharam 30, J. Foley 18, J. Thomas 10, W. Stevens 8, R. Barber 14. Norwich: J. Baker 25, J. Watts 23, J. H. Drakeley 21, H. G. Bamsey 18, J. Pegg 14, T. Thompson 12, J. Sharman 17, T. Tongue 10, A. J. Smith 14, J. Morrell 11, W. Swells 19, W. Wood 15, R. Hodgkinson 12 Yorkshire: F. Cockeram 18, J. Pass 25, G. Yorke 25, W. Barton 20, G. Elkins 20, J. Whiceldon 18. Several Mules and Hybrids have also been bred by various members, and there are evidently some young birds of outstanding merit in Derby this year, and more will be heard of them later. Taking the season through, it has been quite up to the average. Members please note Sept. 27; summoned meeting for paying up of young birds, subs., etc., Normanton Hotel, 7.30.—Wharam and Bamsey.

WALKDEN ROLLER SOCIETY.

A new society has been formed as above, and we have had three meetings, the last being Sept. 17, when a good muster turned up. We are proud to say we are on the road to success so far. At last meeting a good amount of business was gone through in arranging rules and election of officers. We are all doing our best to give this coming variety all that is due to it, and all its fanciers will do well to join us in furthering the advancement of the Roller Canary. We shall arrange for lectures during the winter months, and we have a very commodious and well lighted room. Next meeting, Oct. 7, at Stocks Hotel, at 7.30, when all intending members will be welcome, so rally up, and we can have a good meeting.—Hy. Howard, Hon. Sec., 50, New Earth Road.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting held in Raith Arms, Mr. J. C. Murray presiding. Sec. reported that Mr. Ping, from Auchtertool, would like us to fix a date in October for his lecture on his experience in bird keeping, and date was fixed for Oct. 8. We are having our first table show same night, for Border Fancy cock, and a medal will be given for best bird. Entry fee 3d. Agreed that all collecting books be in by Oct. 1, as a special committee has been appointed to meet on that date for the purpose of placing specials before members. The committee will be J. Paterson, J. C. Murray, J. Sneddon, William Stewart, J. Reid, Alex. Robertson, and Sec. Besides our new Yorkshire Canary challenge cups we have been able to secure a £1 1s. gold medal for the winner.—John W. Holm, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

Special general meeting, held Sept. 18, Mr. R. Tindale, chair. Letters read from Messrs. A. J. and J. Cochrane and J. Ford Maling. It was arranged that there be some better method adopted at our open show on October 17 and 18, to enable visitors to ascertain the names of the different birds in the Foreign section. Stewards were appointed. Specials were handed in. Members must not forget that we require a large number, and if each member was to obtain one instead of leaving the collections to a few individuals, it would be better, if they are too late for schedule I will put them in catalogue. Keep Newcastle in the foreground and make this year's show the best on record. Don't forget next meeting Oct. 2nd. (Final arrangements for show), at which a large attendance is requested.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

SCOTTISH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

Meeting held 142, High Street, Edinburgh, Sept. 13, Mr. W. Aitchison, chair; others present being T. Adamson, E. Barron, W. Grewar, A. Harris, A. Sloan, J. Smeaton, and J. Winter. Allocation of the club patronage was proceeded with. There were 19 applications forward, and after careful consideration the cup, bowl, and novice prize competition, and two silver medals were granted each of the following shows:—Lochgelly, City of Glasgow, Kirkcaldy, Brechin, Cowdenbeath, Glasgow and District, Musselburgh, Scottish National, the Club Show to be held in conjunction with Glasgow and District on 21 and 22 November. Patronage was also granted to Glasgow and West of Scotland, Edinburgh and District, and Edinburgh, N. and M. Breeders' Society Shows. The following were admitted to membership:—E. Rosmond, W. Wood, and J. Fuiton, Glasgow; A. Strachan, Lochgelly; J. W. Nicholson, Carlisle; R. Colly, Corkerhill; A. Watt, Dunfermline; D. F. Webster, and R. B. Cairns, Partick; M. Craig, Tollcross; C. Cumming, Kirkcaldy, and W. Spence, Cardenden. A very hearty vote of thanks to the chairman terminated a very pleasant meeting. Prospective members are invited to write for particulars concerning cup, bowl, and novice prize competitions.—J. Brown, Sec., c/o Mr. J. Oswald, 147, Edgefauld Road, Springboro', Glasgow.

NORTHERN NORWICH P.C.

Meeting held Sept. 17, Mr. R. Topping chair, before a record attendance. Mr. Pettinson and Mr. Evans, Birtley, attended as visitors. Mr. S. Lindsay, Avon Rath (Sec. of Birtley C.B.S.) and Mr J. G. Hodson, (Birtley) were elected members. A lecture on the Norwich Canary was given by the well-known exhibitor, Mr. A. Holden, Gateshead. He dealt fully on the breeding for colour; to get the colour he preferred the cinnamon yellow cock. A long discussion was raised on the question of in-breeding, but the majority thought that they would have to be careful not to get too far and to do it properly. A record of the birds used would have to be kept. A few hints from Mr. Holden were given on the exhibition and washing of birds, and altogether he gave us one of the best lectures we have heard for some time on the Norwich. He was listened to very attentively and all declared they had enjoyed the lecture immensely. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Holden, and in reply he said he felt bound to do anything he could to further the interests of the club of which he was a member. Next meeting Oct. 29. Judging competition, two classes (yellow and buff). Mr. T. C. Crawhall has kindly consented to come as master judge, so fanciers bear this in mind and let us have another grand meeting; all invited, there is still time for anyone wishing to join us before Morpeth, our first show, on payment of 2/0, so send along to me at 55, Colston-st., Benwell, Newcastle, so as to be able to compete for specials open to Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland and Westmorland.—F. W. Laidlaw, Sec.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Meeting held at headquarters, Sept. 18, Mr. Geo. Harrison presided over a good attendance. Prize money from young bird show was paid out, and schedule for annual show was arranged, several classes being added. A lengthy debate took place as to the definition of a ticked bird, and it was decided that a bird with two marks on head or body not larger than a sixpence be classed as a ticked bird. The secretary, in his report, stated that although the N.F. show was a record for the number of entries there was a loss owing to the heavy expenses. The young bird show was a success in every way, and there was a small profit of six shillings and twopence. Since the society moved to Walham Green in May last, twenty-five new members had joined, and the progress and affairs of the club were quite satisfactory; the club promised to become one of the strongest societies in London. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the secretary for the work he had done for the club. Decided to have handbills distributed to advertise the annual show. Sec. put forward a system for a cottage class for residents in the neighbourhood, and same was accepted, and three prizes offered. Decided to have a concert and dance at end of the year, when cups and medals will be presented. Decided to have washing exhibition at next meeting. Mr. Withers (Ealing) was elected a member. Fanciers joining at next meeting will be eligible to exhibit at annual show, Nov. 8; there has been a grand response to the secretary's request for specials, and as most of the members have had a good breeding season it is expected there will be a big entry and keen competition.—F. Moore, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Meeting held at Markell's Hotel, Sept. 18, with good attendance. Cups for open show were selected. Resolved that all money towards cup fund be paid in by next meeting as we have ordered cups for Norwich, Yorks., and British sections. The Rev. C. B. Jolliffe and Mr. Clissold were enrolled members. Will members let me know by next meeting if they can give a bird for drawing in connection with open show. Members must pay subs. to be eligible to compete for members' specials. Members wanting CAGE BIRDS coupons please let me know by next meeting, which will be a special one, Oct. 2; important business, which must be dealt with.—E. Thomas, Sec.

Singing Contests.

LEEDS.

Open contest for quality, held at Old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon Street, Sept. 20. 19 birds sang for three prizes, given by Mr. Wm. Thistotson. 1, 2, shared by Hardcastle and Wigfield; 3, Butler. Judges, Clegg, Naylor. Also September 21; 26 sang for four prizes. 1, Hodgson; 2, Butler; 3, 4, shared by Hardcastle and Chadwick. Judges, J. Thompson, F. Stead, W. Naylor.—W. Naylor, Hon. Sec.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULES.

THOSE who have bought or those who are about to buy a Grey Parrot, should get "Nutshell No. 17," it only costs 2½d. post free, but the tips it gives are priceless; from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents, a list of whom is published frequently).

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 10," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

TALKING Parrots: Green Amazon Parrot, age three years, the best talker alive, says hundreds of words, sings in ragtime, will talk at command, with new brass cage, £20. South African Grey Parrots, grand talkers and mimics from £5. Green Amazon, just commencing to talk, 50/-; Green Alexandra Parrot, good talker, 30/-; true pair Ringnecked Parrakeets, 15/-; 14 day's approval: Walsh, Bird Specialist, Blackburn. (880)

WAXBILLS! (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

A LADY LOVER OF THE NORWICH CANARY.

Miss A. Scott, of Lancaster, and a corner of her bird-room.

Miss Scott has been a keen fancier of the Norwtch Plainhead for several years, has won many prizes and specials, and generally has upwards of 100 birds in her bird-room. Our artist has depicted one of the fine specimens which has done a considerable amount of winning for its fair owner.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.
It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

For Rules see Page 173 last week's issue.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

MEDICINES.

SOFT MOULT — NOT SINGING

Wanted, a trial; we are confident our medicines will give satisfaction. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, going light, dullness, feather plucking, not singing, diarrhoea, and inflammation of the bowels. For birds that are stuck in the moult and for moulting British birds, this medicine is invaluable; sold in 7d., 1s. 1d., and 2s. bottles. For bronchitis, wheezing, hoarseness, and inflammation of the lungs, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic, also in 7d. and 1s. 1d. bottles. The grandest medicine ever introduced for chest and lung affections in cage birds. As an advertisement, we will send a 7d. bottle of each medicine for 1s., or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9. All medicines post paid at our risk. Also two valuable seed recipes, how to feed Linnets and Rollers for contest singing, given free to all purchasers of our medicines: Frank Ditchfield, Bird Specialist, Oldham. £100 REWARD

GOLDFINCHES, BULLFINCHES, LINNETS, REDPOLLS, &c.

We are patronised, and have been for 40 years, by every leading Crystal Palace judge and exhibitor, so our reputation stands second to none. We give above reward if it can be proved we send out unhealthy birds or hens for cocks. Editor of this journal has seen scores of original testimonials for birds we have supplied, which have bred hundreds of winning Mules, and won themselves at all leading shows, including Crystal Palace, Scottish National, etc. So if you intend buying British birds, buy from us, who have hundreds each week to pick from. We don't send out birds straight from the field; all are well on seed; guaranteed. Real English 1913 cock Goldfinches, 1/6, 2/- each, three 4/-, six 7/-, twelve 12/-; hens, 8d. and 10d., three 1/6; cock Bullfinches, 1/6, 2/-; hens, 16d. and 1/-; Lancashire cock Linnets, 8d., 10d. and 1/-, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; Redpolls, 6d., six 1/6, twelve 2/6; cock Larks, 6d., 8d., 10d., 1/- each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; Greenfinches, 6d. each, three 1/3, cages for any of above, from 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/3, 1/6, and 2/-. TRY FRED ALLEN, OF HULL

Gentlemen, don't be misled by spurious imitations and advt. copiers. I am patronised by all the leading fanciers in England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, including Messrs. Taylor, Robson, Stewart, Burnie, Mitchell, Harland, Hedges, etc. I always give seven days' approval either for cash or deposit with Editor. I have a grand lot of real giant Peartree cock Goldfinches, showing deep square-cut blaze, broad heads, nicely buttoned, real gems, 3/-, 3/6, and 4/- each. A few good ones, will sing anywhere, not common little rubbish, 2/- and 2/6 each. Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, giants, good rich colour, steady as rocks, ready to win, 2/- and 2/6. Giant cock Greenfinches, real gems, 1/-. Cock Chaffinch, a beauty, 1/-. Corn Bunting, a topper, can win, a little unsteady, 2/6. Cock Redpoll, well laced, good cap and bib, best fun. caged, 2/6; other gems, 1/- and 1/6. Cock Lark, singing lovely, real quality notes, splendid attraction, 2/6. Fierce singing cock Linnets, extra loud voices, suit time singers or catchers, the real bulldog breed, only 1/-, 1/6 each. Fancy cage, fit for drawing room, only 1/-. New back cages, 6d. Cock Linnets, learnt under my undefeated Champion of the World (Cup winner), only 2/- and 2/6 each. Contest cages 1/- extra. Book of secrets free. Young house-moulted Linnets, singing day and gas light, 3/6 and 4/6 each. Ubal Gold Medal Rollers, the finest in the world, 7/6 and 8/6. If they can't beat any other Roller at double the amount, let them fly and I will return your cash. Cock Siskins arrive next week, 2/- each; order early. Belgian cock Canaries, singing lovely, 4/- and 5/- each; hens, 15/- and 1/6. Special Linnet Mixture, 2/6 stone. 25 customers delighted with this last week. Owing to pressure of business, I have been compelled to open another shop, which is known as the Hull Bird Stores. I have the finest stock of seeds, birds, cages, dog collars, etc., in the North of England. Visitors should call and judge for themselves: Fred Allen, British Bird Champion, 156, Porter-st. Aviaries, and Hull Bird Stores, 413, Hessle-rd., Hull. (907)

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING SEND TO ME FOR WINNERS

Winners for the show bench. I have proved to the world I stand alone for this class of bird, so send to me, who has sent hundreds of winners out in my time. I am getting testimonials every post. Please read what others say. "47, Standard View, Ingshir, Glam. Dear Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safe; highly satisfied; with thanks.—D. Hughes to H. Allen." "Corby Castle, Carlisle. Dear Sir,—Bird arrived safe; satisfied; with thanks.—B. Smith to H. Allen." "12, Cambridge-st., Holygate, York. Dear Sir,—The Linnet I got off you is singing grand. I think it is the best bird that ever came into York for a long time.—F. E. Owdish to H. Allen. "2, Regent-st., Elderlie. Dear Sir,—Received bird, and am very well pleased with it. Will send to you again. I have been disappointed with a good many of your so-called English bird specialists, some of them that run down other advertisers.—W. Hutton to H. Allen." A few splendid contest Linnets for sale, both for time and quality, winners of many first prizes, house-moulted, and will sing in your hand, and have caught hundreds of birds this season, and have voices like lions, and singing with their wings down, 15/- each; real English Peartree cock Goldfinches, the largest in England, singing grand, 2/-; prize-winners for the bench, 3/6; very large cock Bullfinches, 2/-; prize-winners for the bench, 3/6; Linnets, for the bench, my A1 specials, can beat the world for steadiness, size, colour and markings, 2/6 and 3/6, and a few can win under any judge, 5/-; these birds won all before them last season, and will again this. They are real deck-sweepers. Yellowhammers, Greenfinches, and Chaffinches, sure prize-winners, for the bench, 2/-; pairs for aviaries, 2/6; very large Redpoll, splendid bill, and well laced, a real topper, can win, 2/-; Linnets, from the same place, or the champion Linnet of the world, clean moulted, and singing grand, 1/-, 1/6, and some real champions, 2/-; Linnets, taught by the champion of the world, will sing anywhere, indoors or out, with new cage, and my book of secrets, 3/6; and a few champions, right for catching, can win like Germans, they are singing hard, and a box of bird lime, 5/-; beautiful cock Larks, clean-moulted, singing daylight and gaslight, 1/6 and 2/-; a few hand-reared ones, will sing anywhere, 2/6, 3/6, and one cannot be beat, 4/6; pure Seifert Roller cocks, singing, extra special, 5/6, 6/6; a few with quality notes, singing, daylight and gaslight, 7/6 and 8/6. If you want good singing and show birds, send to me, as I know exactly what you want. Everybody welcome to come and see and hear what they are buying; only honest dealing done with me; post-card before birds, so hurry up if you want good birds: Harry Allen, British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (909) for birds of tip-top quality at rock bottom price? Birds that are thoroughly healthy, well on hard seed, and really worth keeping in a cage? If so, just give me one small trial order, and I venture to think that no matter how hard you are to please, the result will be entirely satisfactory to you. In the unlikely event of the birds not realising your every expectation, you cannot lose one penny, as I send all birds on approval at my risk, and unless perfectly satisfactory, they have only to be returned, and the whole of your money is promptly and cheerfully refunded. I am the originator of approval system in connection with field birds, and during whole 22 years of my business career, have never traded on any other terms. I now have an enormous stock of genuine Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all netted birds, in pink of health and feather, at 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 7/-, twelve 12/-; hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-, twelve 7/-; specially selected larger cock Goldfinches, to moult for show, muling or singing, and guaranteed now in song, 2/- each, three 5/-, six 8/6, twelve 16/-; few clean-moulted exhibition specimens, in superb condition, 3/-, 4/-, and 5/- each; splendid lot cock brown Linnets, every bird clean moulted, with nut brown backs, and rose-red breasts, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; large picked birds, guaranteed in song for muling, or contest singing, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 3/6, twelve 6/-; exhibition specimens, 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each; handsome lot cock Greenfinches, 6d. each, three 1/-, six 1/6; picked yellows, for muling, 1/- each; exhibition specimens, 2/6 each; cock or hen Redpolls, 6d. each, three 1/3, six 2/-; exhibition specimens, 2/6 each; cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; cock Bullfinches, 1/6 and 2/- each; exhibition specimens, 3/-, 4/-, and 5/- each; hens, 1/-, and 1/6 each; splendid lot of plump, healthy cock Larks, every bird warranted a cock, not half hens or skeletons, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; specially picked, steady young cocks for singing, 1/-, 1/6, and 2/- each. Special travelling cages, 3d. per 3 birds extra. Please note, although my advertisements are extensively copied, I have no connection whatever with any other man in the trade, and I claim to have more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together. No birds are sent out until feeding thoroughly well on the usual hard seed mixture, and sex is guaranteed in every instance. If you cannot sex birds yourself, it would please me for you to have my birds examined by a competent judge, so that you would know you are having what you pay for, as what is more annoying to a man, after he has been keeping a bird for months, waiting for it to sing, to find it turns out a hen. I have 22 years' reputation in the bird trade, and that reputation is behind every bird sent out.

ARE YOU LOOKING

RICHARD ANDERTON

formerly breeder of the well-known Norwich, of Breeze Hill, Preston, wishes to dispose of a pair of excellent birds, a clear yellow cock and a clear buff hen, which were saved when the stock had to be broken up early in the year, in the hopes that after twelve months or so the way might be clear to continue in the Fancy. Only those who have an intimate knowledge of the strain know how highly the owner prizes this pair of birds, for besides having won a few prizes themselves, they are bred from notable winners, and together have actually bred valuable birds. The hen, in fact, is the best daughter of the clear yellow hen, 1st Scottish National, 1910, beating that crack hen of the year, "British Queen," for the first time, and claimed for the Breeze Hill stock at £7. Both the birds offered were bred in 1911, and are natural colour, the hen almost, and the cock completely moulted, and are offered at this period, so that the purchaser may show them throughout the season. Many fanciers will remember Mr. Anderton's fondness for natural colour classes, and accept his judgment that both birds can win in such classes, even in Norwich Plainhead Club competition. The price of the cock is £3 10s., and the hen £2 10s., but the owner will from sentiment prefer and try to sell them together. They may be seen by appointment at the following address, and everyone who writes for particulars will be answered in due course.

174, Albermarle Street, Ashton-u-Lyne, Manchester.

Champion Exhibition Norwich

Having had a most successful breeding season, I can now offer one of the best selections of high-class Norwich Plainheads in the Fancy, for stock or exhibition, plenty of size and substance, grand colour, rare type and quality, feathered like silk, including some real toppers fit to win in keen competition. Yellow and Buff cocks from 10/6 to £6 each: Yellow and Buff hens from 5/6 to £4 each; judiciously matched pairs from 12/6 to £10 a pair; this is a rare opportunity for fanciers to improve their stock, especially if size is required. Many winners have been supplied by me, including Palace and other leading exhibitions; hundreds of unsolicited testimonials received from the leading breeds and exhibitors in the Fancy; and for size, type and quality I defy competition; state your requirements fully and about price you wish to pay, and I will guarantee to give you full satisfaction; all cold room bred; approval, cash or deposit: Warminger, 28, Guernsey-rd., Norwich. (907)

Beauties, good strain, in full song, 5/- and 6/- each; box cages, beauties, 2/-; shutter Roller cages, 2/9; established 1879: Sandiford, Bird Specialist, Preston, Lancs.

JUST ARRIVED

The first consignment for this season of the genuine Weber's Leipzig Rollers as imported solely by myself. I have a superb lot of cocks, guaranteed picked from first round of young ones, all are over moult and in free song day and gas light, with splendid hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong and flute notes, etc., and warranted entirely free from any harsh or objectionable notes whatever, price 6/6 and 7/6 each. Hen, guaranteed exactly same strain, 3/- couple. The supremacy of the Leipzig Roller over that of ordinary Rollers lies in the fact that their song is made up of a splendid variety of musical changes instead of the one or two long drawn out railway whistle rolls of the ordinary Roller's song. All are sent on full week's trial, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of "Cage Birds." I take all risk during whole time and refund money in full if birds fail to prove perfectly satisfactory. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and I am the only importer of this strain.

NOT CHANCE BIRDS

but selected first-round singing Norwich or Yorkshires, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, cages 3d.; six months' approval; it is bad enough to be a fool, but to be one and not know it is 100 times worse, hence I say that it would be as reasonable to expect an infant in arms to sing in opera as to expect young birds at present to be on full song. See my advertisements: W. Rudd, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

Mr. W. Brotherton, Rotherham, has been engaged to judge at Newark and Dis. annual show, November 22.

Schedules for Ilkeston Show have been sent out. Any exhibitor overlooked kindly send postcard; there is a grand classificatiou, writes Mr. T. Smith, Hon. Sec., 5, King St.

We have collected about 60 specials for 44 classes, writes Mr. A. Wake, hon. sec., Middlesbrough and Tees Side C.B.S., and the schedules will be ready next week.

Schedules of Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.S. are in printer's hands, and we hope to post them Friday, if possible, write Messrs. Hall and Joiner, secs.

A slight mistake appears in our schedule as advertised last week, writes Mr. E. T. F. Wiggins, Sec. Bedford C.B.S. Class 4 should read: Unflighted yellow clear or marked Norwich.

We are pleased to state we have received patronage of the K.C.C.B.A. for annual show on Oct. 29-30, write Messrs. W. H. Thompson and W. H. Lacey, Hon. Secs., Deal and Walmer F.A.

OBITUARY.

Mr. A. Flook, Hove.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, Hon. Sec. Brighton and Hove C.B.A., that I have to announce the death of one of our members, Mr. A. Flook, of Hove. One of the first fanciers to join our association, he was elected on the committee, and put in good spade work for the upholding of the club and Fancy in this district, being ever ready to assist in all ways. Our sincere sympathy is with his widow and little daughter in their bereavement.

Mr. G. F. Males, Deptford.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. F. Crawford, hon. sec. South London C. and F.A., that I have to inform you of the death of Mr. G. F. Males, of Deptford Broadway, on Sept. 22nd. One of the old school of fanciers, with always a smile, he was president of the South London Col. and F.A., auditor to the S.Y.C.C., member of the L.P.O.S., and S.N.P.C., also a prominent Freemason, and for many years represented his ward on the old vestries and borough councils. I am sure the whole of the Fancy will join in tendering their sympathy to Mrs. Males and family.

Schedules for Abersychan (Mon.) show, Oct. 30, writes Mr. F. Sweeting, hon. sec., will be ready in about a week, when they will be sent on.

Old Shildon Workmen's C.B.S. intends holding its annual open show on Nov. 14 and 15, writes Mr. J. H. Elwell, Sec., with a good schedule and a good judge.

Islington F.A. will hold their 23rd young stock show on Oct. 4, at Warlters Road, Holloway, N., writes Mr. H. A. Brown, Hon. Asst. Sec. Doors open 3. Fanciers, come along and help by giving us a good gate.

Members of the Stratford and East London F.S. are reminded that entries must be in on or before Monday, October 6th for young stock show, October 9th. All exhibits must be in Workmen's Hall by 6 o'clock for judging.

Mr. P. Jenkinson, assist. sec., writes that the first old bird show of the City of Bradford O.S. will be held at Flying Dutchman's Hotel, Leeds Road, Bradford, to-day, Oct. 4, at 2.30. Judges, Mr. W. Mundell, Yorkshires, and Mr. H. J. Chittenden, Norwich.

The table show of the Coaltown of Wemyss C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Weir, Sec., was a great success, and we shall be glad if you will allow us to thank all the exhibitors for their patronage, also Mr. David Henderson, Buckhaven, for the beautiful team of Borders he presented us with.

We hear from Mr. W. Bryson, sec., that the following judges have been appointed to judge Newtongrange show December 20: Norwich and A.O.V., Mr. Alex. Fleming, Musselburgh; Border Fancy, Scotch Fancy, and Yorks., Mr. James Smillie, Kilmarnock; British and Foreign, Mr. John Allan, Leith.

"Willie Winkie," the Jovial Java.

A Story of the Fascinating Personality of a Perky Java Sparrow; Related by Mrs. Horsbrugh.

The following delightful story of a tame Java Sparrow, related in "The Aviculturnl Magazine" for September is reproduced by special permission of the Honorary Editor, Mr. Hubert D. Astley. In kindly conveying the permission to republish, Mr. Astley writes, "I have the bird here now, in Mrs. Horsbrugh's absence abroad, and it is all that she describes it. When out of its cage, however large the room, it will settle nowhere except on people's shoulders, heads, and hands. One day a footman had to walk round the luncheon table with the bird on his head, and, when dislodged, it immediately took up the same position on the butler!"

"WILLIE WINKIE" is a Java Sparrow, and therefore worth eightpence, wholesale market price. His price to us is not to be counted, either in pence, shillings, or pounds sterling. His history is lost in the tides of Calcutta Harbour. When my husband's collection of Indian birds started on its homeward voyage from Calcutta to Southampton, there was seen in the rigging of the "Königin der Nederlanden," a little grey-coated bird with a black head and tail, white ear patches, red beak, and pink legs, his breast a soft dove colour. Only a Java Sparrow!

Snared by a Lady Fair.

The collection was safely on board. Cage upon cage of costly Sunbirds, Shamas, Minivets, Woodpeckers, Orioles, Flower-peckers, etc.; many of them new to English aviculture, and any one of them worth the weight in gold of the little grey man hopping gaily on the rigging. A passenger looked up and saw him, and turned to the collector, who had worked tirelessly for months to gather this collection, and who was taking a moment's breathing space. His valuable birds were housed safely on board, and the labour of months close to his hand, with only the journey home before him—difficult enough, and implying much work it is true—but the birds were there, and granted the care and attention, the rest was on the knees of the gods. "One of your birds is loose!" the passenger called to him. Not for nothing has he collected birds all over India, in Aru—New Guinea, in British Guiana, in Trinidad. Where the Sparrow came from he did not know, but he guessed him to be tame, and he had a spare cage. "Hold out your finger and call him down" he said to a lady standing by. The finger was held out and down came our "Winkie," and before he knew what had happened, he was inside a little wooden cage, and his liberty was gone. What went on inside his little black and white head during the long journey home we cannot tell.

At Genoa, Mr. Astley and my husband met the ship, and some of the rarer and the more delicate birds were removed, either to be brought to England overland, or to find a resting place at Mr. Astley's villa on the Lake of Como. The ship was late in arriving at Genoa, and it was already dusk. The interest lay in the Sunbirds, and the rare Woodpeckers and Flycatchers. Time was short, for the ship was to sail again at nine o'clock that night. "Why in the world did you bring this rubbish home?" asked my husband, standing beside the cage where "Winkie" hopped and chippered on his perch, the walls of his prison close on every side, the roof above him close down to the little black head. The struck match had wakened him from a forlorn sleep, and he jumped up and down, up and down, in his narrow cell, for pure good fellowship. His story, such as it is, was told, passed over, and forgotten in the greater interest of rare and precious birds that were examined and appraised in the dim light.

When "Willie" Reached Home.

Ten days later, my husband met the ship at Southampton. There was a good deal to see to. The few deaths to record and regret, the Customs House officials to placate, the specially engaged guard's van to load up, and all the way to town the birds to feed and water, and experiences to relate and to hear. Small wonder that a worthless little Java Sparrow, who fed on seed, and needed no patent foods, and no milk and honey to revive him, was as one who had never existed.

Two or three days later, I came into the sitting room in our hotel in London, just at the psychological moment when my husband stood over the small wooden cage and lifted the sliding door that let the grey man free, and on that morning early in May, when I came into the sitting room just as the little grey man poked his head out of his prison cage and gave one mighty dash for freedom, and flew circling and chirping above our heads—I confess that my heart was in my mouth, and I felt sure that whoever the stranger might be, we should never catch him again. And the next minute he was on my shoulder, dancing his little one step to his own particular "Robert E. Lee!" From that moment "Winkie" became a personage.

I have seen tame birds, and very tame birds, and "absurdly" tame birds, but never, never have I met with the equivalent kind of tameness which is "Winkie's." It is not that he will come to you. It is that he will not stay away from you. He is obsessed with a love of human beings, and of them he has no fear whatsoever. He is afraid of dogs, but man is his brother and his friend, and without him life would be a wilderness. I do not know how he would behave if he had a wife; his own image in the looking glass sets him wild with rage, and he wastes a great deal of time and bad language pecking at his own likeness.

He has intense likes and dislikes, and very ill-founded they are! My maid gives him food and water, and tidies his cage daily. She takes him into her room when we go out, that he may not be lonely, and she is more than kind to him. He hates her! If he is flying loose, he goes for her like a vicious dog, and with a very angry note he bits her hands. Dance for her? Not he! Answer her when she talks to him? Certainly not! Nibble gently at a finger placed between the bars of his cage? Not at all! bite it and swear horribly instead!

IN JOLLY GOOD COMPANY!

Master Clayton Lynn, of Bank Head, is very fond of Canaries, and our photograph shows him at work, with a few of his pets, keeping him cheery company.

My husband offended him deeply a few days after his arrival. For some reason of his own he did not wish to come out of his cage at the exact moment that the door was opened. The liberty was taken of removing him,—more or less head foremost. Again, for reasons of his own—not carried to any logical conclusion, as I can do anything with him—this wounded him in his inmost feelings. Perhaps he thought the acquaintance not far enough advanced to warrant such familiarity.

Father Placed Outside the Pale.

Be it as it may,—the result remains in a relentlessly vindictive attitude on his part. He has been treated with respect and with the courtesy due from man to man ever since. He has been courted; he has been cajoled. The result is nil! He will not make it up. He will not be friendly, and he will bite and worry the outstretched hand of friendship until, perforce, it is withdrawn.

We went off to Devonshire for a ten days motor trip, but on our return, we found him just the same pugnacious little fury to one of us, and the same gentle little friend to the other. I have done nothing to make him like me, and it is always my task to put his gently protesting little body back into its cage when we feel we really must have the windows open again! Frankly, I am flattered at the attentions of this feathered scrap of creation; but a nice sense of the proportion of things is borne in upon me when I realize that I share his affections with the hotel waiters. Hotel waiters are his dearest friends, although he has also a weakness for early morning housemaids. For these he dances unbidden his very best steps, and sings his cheeriest song.

But the waiters! Let the door open and a heavily laden tea tray appear, followed by the bearer thereof—and at the instant "Winkie" has flown from my shoulder, straight as a die, to the well oiled locks so tempting to his funny little soul, and is dancing, dancing, dancing and singing his heart out in greeting. Carry a slippery tea tray, overbalanced by a tall hot-water jug, and try to duck the onslaught of a little grey arrow shot upon you like a bolt from the blue! The effect is disastrous; and despite my now instinctive dive across the room with outstretched finger, calamities too agitating to relate have occurred more than once.

A Well-Developed Bump of Curiosity.

"Winkie" is curiosity personified. Everything in the room must be investigated, and the heavy curtains at the windows falling in fat folds to the floors, provide interesting nooks for a Sparrow far from home. A newspaper thrown on the table and forming a tunnel is a thing to be looked into very carefully, and native caution causes much time to be wasted before the exploration is complete. Not that he is afraid!—but it is all part of the game, and part too of the morning curriculum, which includes surreptitious dashes at the fiend in the looking glass, hasty return trips to my shoulder, and the invariable unprovoked attacks upon his master.

In the evenings, if we are playing piquet, he sits on my wrist and scrambles up and down it to keep his balance, with occasional excursions on to the table, and possibly a sudden dive at his enemy's fingers. Sometimes an annoying interest in the cards themselves is displayed. Shuffling always makes him swear. If there is one thing "Winkie" hates above all others, it is to be left alone. He is discourteous enough to consider his master's presence as 'non est,' and if I can get to the door unnoticed (which rarely happens), he beats up and down it with much flapping of wings until I return.

But "Winkie" at his very nicest is "Winkie" asleep, his cage turned to the wall; and in answer to my voice, and no other, there comes the faintest far off little whimper of content, like a dog whining under his breath.

The Master Singer of the Canary Tribe.

By J. TOMLINSON. (continued from page 186).

The cock, or cocks, according to the method of breeding it is desired to adopt, may be put up with these forward hens. Should an instance occur where a cock is not in breeding condition, and a clutch of unfertile eggs is the result, it will be better for the hens' future welfare than to have let them remain in the flights.

A peculiarity with the majority of hens that come into breeding condition early in the season, and are not removed from the flights, is that instead of laying a full clutch of eggs, they will lay an odd egg or have a broken eggery, i.e., instead of laying an egg each day in the usual way until the whole clutch is laid, they will lay at intervals, extending the time over one or two weeks.

This may be also met with occasionally at the close of the breeding season, when they are returned again to the flights, but it will not leave any harmful effect, for if the laying is persisted in, they may receive a dieting treatment, which if adopted at the beginning of the season, would in all probability render them useless for several months.

I might mention here that a hen will build her nest, lay, and sit on her eggs without having been mated to a cock. This is an exceptionally valuable trait, and where the beginner is commencing with, say two hens, I would strongly advise him to procure two extra common bred hens that are known to be good feeders, and use them as fostermothers for the young of the better class hens. (Of course this precaution will not be necessary if the start is made with two-year-old hens, that are known to be good feeders.) These common bred feeding hens can often be purchased at the close of a breeding season, for many owners of such will sell them cheaply rather than keep them through the winter.

While advising the use of common feeding hens, I am not losing sight of the fact that it will necessitate extra outlay in the beginning, but many of the little disappointments connected with young hens will be avoided. Besides, the satisfaction of having a nice collection of well reared youngsters at the close of the season quite repays for the extra outlay and labour.

The value of a good feeding hen can scarcely be over-estimated, yet many of our old fanciers will not use them. To such a one what we call a bad breeding season, that is, a year when very few young birds are reared in his room, is often a disappointment, but it does not cause him to give up his pets in disgust, for he comes up smiling again the following year, hoping for a better season. It is this disappointment, however, that is so likely to occur with young untried hens, that I wish to guard the beginner against. Frequently, fanciers have said to me: "Oh, I'm going to chuck it, I can't breed Canaries." Yet what a pleasing contrast, if at a first trial they experience a good season!

These hens will require exactly the same food, etc., to prepare them for the breeding cage that is given to those hens that are to be mated with a cock, and when the mated birds are transferred to the breeding cages the foster mother is placed in one compartment of the breeding cage by herself. A nest pan and nesting material should be given to her, and it is then very probable that she will begin to lay about the same time as the mated hen; a few days either before or after will not make any difference. If the mated hen lays first, and the feeding hen is showing signs of going to nest, take the eggs from the former, and let her sit on dummy eggs for a week; then remove them and let her go to nest again. The eggs that the feeding hen lays can be allowed to remain in the nest until she has laid her full clutch, they can then be destroyed, and the good ones from the mated hen substituted.

Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, has been engaged to judge Cork C.B.S. show, Nov. 26.

Entries for Gillingham show are very short, writes Mr. J. Hyde, the sec. (26, Park Place); will accept up to Sunday's post. Full classification appeared in our show advertisements last week; will fanciers kindly enter from this?

Mr. M. Nuttrass has been elected joint sec. of Bishop Auckland C.B.S., along with me, writes Mr. P. Elliott, and all communications in future to be addressed to Nuttrass and Elliott, Raby Avenue, Bishop Auckland.

There promises to be an interesting event at the next meeting of the Wimbledon C.B.S., held Oct. 6th, 8 p.m., at 6, The Broadway, when Miss Durham (a well-known scientist, associated with Prof. Bateson) is to lecture on the effects of age on the sex of young birds. All fanciers are invited.

Ramsden's Specials: — Show secretaries should apply early, enclosing coupons with their applications. The special prizes will be allotted to the open shows of the fifty societies sending in the largest number of coupons. Twenty-five silver medals for members' shows; same conditions.—(Advt.)

That popular Scottish fancier, Mr. J. W. Bruce, of Coldstream, is engaged to judge the following shows:— Oct. 3, Chopwell (Co. Durham); Oct. 11, Morpeth; Oct. 17, Newcastle; Oct. 25, Kirkcaldy; Nov. 15, Edinburgh (Nor. and Mule Club); Nov. 22, Uddingston; Dec. 6, Glasgow (Queen's Park); Jan. 1, Paisley. We hear that he has had a record breeding season, with a few "gems" amongst the young birds.

Brilliance at Blaydon.

The new hall we have secured for our annual show, writes sec. G. Havver, Blaydon-on-Tyne C.B.S., is illuminated at night by electricity.

S.N.P.C. Patronage at Plymouth.

Plymouth show has been given the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club's patronage in the champion section, writes Mr. T. Pope, the hon. sec., as less classes than the Club requires are offered at Clapham show. The eight patronage classes are 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 21, and 22. Entries close Oct. 8.

Do Wasps Kill Blackbirds?

A perfectly healthy Blackbird, with a white feather or two in his plumage, lived all the summer, day and night, in a cage hung on the south-west front of the house, writes "J.D." in "Country Life." On the morning of Friday, September 19, in his usual health and spirits, he was seen swallowing a wasp. In the evening he was dead.

Ringing the Wild Birds.

Surprising exertions are being made by enthusiastic ornithologists in ringing the wild birds. Last year Mr. H. W. Robinson ringed no fewer than 2,175 birds, and this year he has done even better. Mr. N. H. Joy has succeeded in ringing 1,119 in one year, and several others have ringed over 500. These figures are all the more remarkable when it is remembered that most of the ringing has to be done in the few weeks when the young are in the nests, or have only just left.

SHE WANTED A HUSBAND!

Extraordinary Excuse for Pulling out Macaw's Feathers.

An amusing incident occurred in the Central Park, part of which is divided off and forms the New York Zoological Gardens, a few days ago. The principal keeper of the bird-house noticed that day after day a well-dressed woman seemed to be greatly attracted by the South American Macaws, of which birds the gardens have a large number and variety. Every afternoon, says "The Evening Standard," she put in an appearance, and stood for at least an hour in front of the cage watching the birds. The keeper determined to keep an eye on her, and on the day in question he saw her suddenly reach out a gloved hand and pull at the feathers of a Macaw which protruded between the bars.

"Here you can't do that!" he shouted. "Do you want our birds to look like plucked chickens?"

After she had got over her surprise, the woman exclaimed, in confusion: "The fortune-teller told me to do it."

"Told you to pull out our birds' feathers?"

"No, but he said that if I got a red tail feather from a live Macaw and wore it in my hat for two months I should find a husband."

Then she burst into tears, and explained that she had visited the gardens every day in the hope of getting a Macaw's feather, but that until then the birds had kept beyond her reach.

The keeper sympathised with her, and recommended her to a naturalist in the city who kept a stock of live Macaws, and who would gladly sell her one, whose feathers she could pluck as she wished.

The lady brightened up and hurried away.

Addresses Wanted.

Will Mr. J. Mercer, late of Southsea, and Mr. H. W. Ford, late of Perth, kindly forward their present addresses? In case this request does not meet the eye of the gentlemen named, we shall be obliged if any reader who may known their present addresses will communicate the same to us.

A Show Lark Turns Foster-parent.

It was an agreeable surprise to find the sketch of my old Skylark on the front page of your excellent journal. Many thanks to Mr. Norman for the able manner in which he has sketched him. The old bird has fed and reared this season a young Lark which bids fair to become a good show specimen.—Wm. K. Baseley.

Soup from Birds' Nests.

Edible birds' nests, the great delicacy from the Far East, are now being sold in London. I saw a basketful in the window of a Piccadilly shop recently, priced at ten shillings per ounce, says a writer in the "Daily Sketch." They look like hemispheres of glue, and are each about the size of half a grape fruit hollowed out. There is a steady demand for them; otherwise, as the man who keeps the shop himself said, they would not be stocked.

The Favourite Birds of Cork.

The wild birds on the lovely artificial lake at the Fitzgerald Park, Cork, have now become quite tame, we hear. They have learned to know those who frequent the Park and treat them with kindness. The feeding of the water birds gives great pleasure to children. The public are asked to co-operate with the employes of the Park in the protection of that beautiful place, and to assist in repressing any acts of cruelty to the birds or animals, for there have been instances of thoughtless persons having some "fun" with the animals.

For the Information of Secretaries and Others.

We are asked to notify the following changes of address:—Messrs. Martin and Archer, to 92, Wellington Street, Oakes, Huddersfield; Mr. T. H. V. Hayter to 21, Queen's Road, Beeston, Notts; Mr. J. Smedley, to 9, Highfield Road, Askern Spa, near Doncaster; Mr. T. Groves, from Brierley Hill to 142, Stourbridge Road, Holly Hall, near Dudley; Mr. F. Moore, from Kelmscott Road to 58, Montholme Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W. The new address of Mr. Wilson was wrongly printed in our Note of last week. It should be 195, Shernhall Street, not 198.

Show Secretaries, Please Note!

We have to thank the numerous secretaries who have kindly sent us for inclusion in CAGE BIRDS Guide to the Shows the particulars asked for last week in this column. We are, however, still without particulars in respect of many of the open shows to be held. Our guide will be published next week, and secretaries who do not furnish us with these particulars will have only themselves to blame if their fixture is omitted from the list. Will secretaries who have not written kindly send on a postcard before Monday next, Oct. 6, the date of their show, number of classes, and names of judges?

Foreign Birds Booming.

The splendid progress being made by the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League is plainly evidenced by the report from the secretary, published in this issue, and the prospect of the League being able in the near future to worthily fulfil its main object, to popularise the proper exhibiting of foreign birds, and especially the commoner kinds, is very bright indeed. Thirty foreign bird classes are being guaranteed by the League at the forthcoming Horticultural Hall Show, with a minimum of 30s. per class prize money. The hon. secretary appeals for more members, and we hope the response from our readers interested in foreign birds will be a good one.

BY the time this issue is in the hands of our readers, the "struggle" for the first diplomas and cash specials of the season will be in progress.

There is still time to enter at the three coupon fixtures due next week, all of which offer liberal classification and prize-money. Entries for Clapham show (Oct. 8 and 9) have been extended until first post Oct. 6 (Monday); show managers, Messrs. Askew and Silverthorne, 24, Chelsham Rd., Clapham, S.W. Leeds show entries close Oct. 6 to Mr. W. A. Wilson, 39, Burley Rd., Leeds, and those for Morpeth show on the same day to Mr. E. Cowling, Y.M.C.A., Morpeth. These secretaries will be glad to affix the necessary coupons to the entry forms of exhibitors if the conditions of entry (as printed below) are duly observed.

Entries for the fine exhibition at Plymouth close first post next Wednesday, Oct. 8. Here 25s. per class prize-money (a prize for every bird in the cards) is given for an entry fee of only 1s. 6d. Exhibitors who appreciate this liberality should enter early to Mr. T. Pope, 98, Embankment Rd., Plymouth.

Hanley show, Oct. 16 (sec. Mr. Robinson, 44, Cromer St., May Bank, Stoke-on-Trent) has 35 open classes, which, we have no doubt (a schedule has not reached us), afford chances in a good number of sections. Entries close Oct. 11.

Norwich show, Oct. 16 and 17 (sec. Mr. St. Quintin, 35, Calvert St., Norwich) has an exceptionally good classification for Norwich Plainheads (including an amateur section) and Crests, and also includes Cinnamons, Mules, British and Foreign. The prize-money is very liberal, 22s. per class for an entry fee of 1s. 6d., and there is a good list of specials. The management is always all that can be desired, and a generous entry should reward the society.

With the coupon shows for Oct. 18 we shall be able to deal in our next issue. They are: Oct. 17 and 18, Glasgow (City of); do. Halifax; do. Newcastle; Oct. 18, Broughty Ferry; do. Burton-on-Trent; do. Harrogate; do. Sheffield. Exhibitors in our Coupon Competition should remember these shows and make a point of seeing their schedules.

We should like to make it clear that particulars of the coupon scheme must be printed in the schedules of all coupon shows. We do not supply leaflets for insertion therein. At Morpeth and Llandrindod Wells leaflets were inserted by the officials in their schedules, as the latter had already been printed.

Since our last list was published the following societies have joined our list of coupon shows:

BRIGHTON AND HOVE C.B.S.
COCKERMOUTH F.S.
INVERNESS O.A.
LLANDRINDOD WELLS F.A.

A full list of the Coupon Shows appeared in our issue of last week, on page 187.

Your Championship scheme is deserving of success and worthy of the wholehearted support of all fanciers.—R. W. Smith (Gateshead).

I have never shown birds before, but I mean to have a try in your championship competition.—J. Weir (Penicuick).

Your coupon scheme is a good idea, and I trust will be a huge success. A. March (Evesham).

I think your championship competition a very good scheme to help the Fancy.—G. Gregory (Mountain Ash).

We are sure your coupon scheme will be the means of "waking up" the cage bird Fancy.—Evins Bros. (Exeter).

I sincerely hope your spirited venture will meet with the success it deserves.—A. J. Smith (Erdington).

I hope your coupon scheme is a great success, for it is got up for the benefit of all, and not for one. I hope to have birds out at every convenient show.—E. Richards (Chester).

Please send me a further supply of coupons.—T. Smith, hon. sec. Ilkeston C.B.S.

I consider your scheme an excellent one from an exhibitor's standpoint, as I think it will make them more keen, and will gain entries for any society that takes up the scheme.—H. F. Marsh (Ashton-on-Ribble).

Your coupon scheme will put fresh courage into the Fancy, by benefiting exhibitors and shows. It has been long needed, and will get a man credit for what he has bred. I intend taking full advantage of the scheme and increasing my present order.—D. McFarlane (Barrow-in-Furness).

How Exhibitors May Enter.

All who intend entering Coupon birds at these shows must do so under these conditions. CAGE BIRDS offers the following Championship Competition prizes:—

10s. cash for best champion coupon bird.
10s. cash for best novice coupon bird.

Diplomas of honour for the best champion and the best novice coupon birds in each of the following sections; or in as many of these sections as are included in the classification.—

(1) Yorkshire Canaries.
(2) Norwich.
(3) Crests & Crestbreds.
(4) Border Fancies.
(5) Scotch Fancies and Belgians.
(6) Greens.
(7) Lancs. and Lizards.
(8) Any Other Variety Canary.
(9) Mules & Hybrids.
(10) British, Hardbilled.
(11) British, Softbilled.
(12) Foreign.

All the exhibitor has to do is to stick one of CAGE BIRDS Coupons on his entry form and write "C.B." opposite each bird he wishes to compete; except if a novice, when he must write "C.B. Novice."

Coupons, price 6d. each, may be purchased from the offices of CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., or, if the time is short, enclose the necessary extra cash with your entry fees to the secretary of the show, and he will affix coupons opposite whichever birds you have marked on your entry form. Every coupon is numbered and a record of it kept at CAGE BIRDS offices.

NOTE CAREFULLY.—A coupon must be affixed to the entry form opposite every bird intended to compete in this Championship Competition. Any number of coupon birds may be entered by any exhibitor, either in one section or in several, as may be desired, so long as a coupon is used for each bird. For every coupon bird, of course, the usual entry fee must be paid to the show officials. Entries in CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition are accepted only on the understanding that the governing rules as published in CAGE BIRDS are to be absolutely final and legally binding.

The above, we may say, are the conditions which will appear in the schedules of all shows at which our Championship Scheme is in operation, and under which entries will be accepted by the various secretaries.

Anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme should write at once.—The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is in progress at over 80 shows (see list last week), which cover every quarter of the United Kingdom.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champion (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWENTY-FOUR DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR, in addition, at each Coupon Show, 12 for Champion exhibitors, and 12 for Novice exhibitors, for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the 12 sections mentioned above.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of October, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of December.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonâfide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age, and either rung or not rung.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

(For rules see last week's "Cage Birds.")

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

TO EXTERMINATE GREY LICE (Norwich).—If you are expert at handwashing a bird, the quickest and a quite effective way is to handwash the infested birds, and add a little creolin in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a pint of water to each pint of the first two waters used. Then, whilst the birds are drying, thoroughly clean and wash out the cages with a solution of creolin, the same strength as above. You can get the creolin from any good chemist. Hand-washing, however, is not to be commended whilst birds are in moult. For the next week or two, either with or without the initial washing, add a teaspoonful of sulphuretted potash to a pint of water and give this in the baths for all your birds twice or three times a week. This will be far better than any spraying. Powder is also quite effective. Proceed as follows:—Get a quantity of freshly ground pyrethrum powder. Catch each infested bird and dust liberally all over with the powder, working it well in among the feathers with a small puff or wad of cotton wool, particularly under the wings and around base of neck and tail; then wrap the bird in a small handkerchief, leaving only the beak free for easy respiration, and lay it aside in a temporary cage for fifteen minutes or so. During this time wash out the cages as above. Then release bird and allow it to shake and preen itself before returning to its usual cage. Repeat this process twice afterwards at intervals of a week, and also use potash baths as above. Please note Rule 2 for querists.

HANDREARING LATE YOUNGSTERS (J. S. C.).—It is not really difficult to rear young Canaries by hand if they are a reasonable age—a week or so—when deserted, provided one has a tolerably large stock of patience and perseverance. Keep them in the original nest, in a comfortably warm place, and cover over with a light fold of woollen or flannel until they are getting nicely fledged. For food, make the usual egg and biscuit food into a moderately moist soft paste, with about a fourth part of finely chopped green food added. Avoid making it too sloppy, but just firm enough to hold together to convey in morsels on the point of a tiny spatula-shaped stick into the gaping beaks. Pop each morsel well into the back of the beak, and give each bird as much as it will gape for eagerly at each feed. Feed as long as daylight lasts, and offer food every hour in the early morning and towards evening; at other times about every two hours. The birds' desire to feed is a safe guide as a rule. Keep the nest quite clean.

HARD SCAB ON TOE (C. S. S.).—I think you will find upon close examination that what you think is a growing scale is in reality a small accumulation of fine sand bound together by excretory matter from the cage floor. Catch the bird and soak its feet well in quite warm water in which you have dissolved a little soda. After soaking for a minute or two, carefully wash off all loose dirt with the thumb and forefinger, and you will then be able to tell definitely whether the substance is dirt or an abnormal growth of tissue. If the former, continue the soaking until you can remove it easily, bit by bit, without using undue force. Then wash clean, dry, and anoint feet with vaseline, and all will be right again. If, however, the substance proved really to be a growth of tissue, touch it twice or thrice a week for a period with tincture of iodine. If this does not remove it, write again and refer to this reply.

A QUARTETTE (Enquirer).—(1) The Canaries flying loose in the aviary are not likely to take any serious harm from eating berries and wild seeds provided for Britishers. If there should seem any undue looseness, add a little hemp or crushed dry arrowroot biscuit to correct it. A little looseness is not really serious in such cases. Add five drops of syrup of buckthorn to each tablespoonful of drinking water for two days, and afterwards ten drops of chemical food in like manner daily for a week. (2) If you wrote to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS saying when you will be in London, he may perhaps be able to arrange to examine this bird for you. Or you might consult CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL directory of breeders, and see if there is anyone in London or near you, whom you know, that you could ask to examine the bird. (3) Treat this bird the same as advised to "Early Bird" in this issue, and cover cage over at night until she is through the moult. (4) You should have said whether this bird is plump or emaciated. Keep in a fairly warm place for a week or two. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana, and three times a week a spray of green food. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards 20 drops of chemical food daily for a fortnight. For the wheezing, should it not soon disappear under above treatment, give a few doses of the mixture advised for No. 3.

PANTS PAINFULLY (Early Bird).—Honestly, I do not think this bird will ever be of any use for breeding. Your chief object at present should be to get her to break freely into moult. To this end keep her in a fairly warm place, and add to the drinking water for the first day six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence. After this substitute 20 drops of whiskey, five of syrup of saffron, and three of spirits of sweet nitre every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary. If the panting is not better at the end of a fortnight give 20 drops of the following mixture in the water every second day for 2 or 3 weeks. Mixture: Two drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drachm each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, and eight grains of iodide of potassium. In addition to the staple diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, twice a week. On two other days give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, linseed and broken groats. Give a spray of watercress four times a week. Limit the diet to this, and report result in a month.

COUGHING AND SNEEZING (T. L. R.).—It is doubtless only a slight catarrhal cold. Many birds are apt to be affected in this way when deep in moult, and, in consequence, more than usually susceptible to fluctuations in the weather. See that the bird is not exposed to direct cold draughts and throw a light cover over its cage at night until the moult is quite finished. In addition to its usual diet, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw daily for a week, and add to the drinking water twenty drops of whisky, five each of ipecac. wine and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, and shake well together daily during the same time.

OUGHT THEY TO SING? (S.X.).—It is rather too early to expect young (1913) Roller cocks to be in good song yet. The moult in many cases is not yet complete, and this, of course, will keep them rather silent. Some individuals will make very fair efforts at singing before the moult commences; others make very little headway until after the moult is quite finished As your birds evidently "churl" or warble over their song, I hardly think you will be disappointed if you expect them to be cocks, though you may not find the song developed to any great extent by the end of October. To make really good singers they certainly should have been under the tuition of a good singing cock for some time. The sooner they are placed under a tutor the better.

IMPERFECT FEATHERS (Norwich).—The flight and tail feathers showing dark narrow vertical streaks across the web are by no means uncommon, and are due to some abnormal conditions of growth or injury to the quills in the initial stages of growth, though just what happens has yet to be found out. The theory that they are wholly due to interrupted growth on account of fluctuations of temperature will not bear investigation. My opinion is that red mites are very frequently, if not invariably the cause, but the difficulties of proving this by demonstration are well-nigh insuperable. If you hold up these feathers to the light or examine them with a lens you will find that the structure of the web is very imperfect, and deficient in substance. In a very bad case such feathers would doubtless somewhat reduce a bird's chance of winning on the show bench, and the only way to deal with them is to wait until the moult is quite over and the quills have become dry, and then carefully extract them one or two at a time and allow new feathers to take their places. If the bird is colour-fed, a little colour must, of course, be given whilst the new feathers are being grown. In a mild case you need only wash the bird before its first show, when the dark colour of marks will disappear, and the marks themselves will not be very noticeable.

PLANTS AND BIRDS (A Fellow-Fancier).—I cannot decipher name of plants you say you keep besides geraniums, and you do not say whether the aviary is an indoor cage-aviary or an outdoor space. But unless the plants were inimical to animal life when consumed, and the birds devoured the foliage to an appreciable extent, I have no hesitation in saying the deaths are in no way due to the presence of the plants. I have many times watched Canaries of my own, temporarily escaped from cage, regaling themselves with gusto upon the foliage of some kinds of pot plants, such as fuchsias, though they quite rejected other kinds, such as geraniums, etc., after a sample nibble. I never saw any ill-effects from these unusual feastings, save only to the plants, so I conclude there is still a glimmering of instinct alive in the birds which guides them somewhat in their debaucheries. There must be some other reason for the birds dying. Better write again, and say how you feed and treat them, and how they are affected, when, possibly, I may be able to help you.

PERSISTENT RED MITES (E. A. B. N.).—The failure of your long perseverance with mite destroyers to get rid of the pest shows that they have some secure harbour which you overlook. It may not, perhaps, be in the cage itself, but may be in its near vicinity. The cord, nail, or hook, as the case may be, by which cage is hung, or any crevice in the plaster or paper on the wall is often the breeding ground for re-infesting a cage. In such a case as yours, nothing but the most scrupulously thorough overhaul of the cage and its surroundings is likely to avail. To use the potash, dissolve a drachm of the substance in a pint of water. Hot water is not essential, but will expedite solution. This is all you require to do, and the solution thus obtained may be given in the baths or used with a spray, as you may prefer. It is not harmful to the birds. Are you sure you are dealing with red mite? You write as though the insects lived upon the birds, which is not characteristic of red mites.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

WINTERING GOLDFINCH AND HEN CANARY (Winox).—You cannot do better than let the Goldfinch and hen Canary fly together during the winter months, but as you will have to feed the Goldfinch well to keep him in health, and the Canary will consequently partake of the same food, you must watch her to see that she does not put on too much flesh or get too forward in condition. If you see signs of this, part them and let her have a fly in a good long flight or aviary for a few days, or as long as necessary. Part them early in March, and hang them in cages so that they are able to see each other. Keep the hen back in condition, but feed the Goldfinch well, but not to unduly force him. When he is in breeding condition he will be in full song, with a clear beak; he will strut and show himself off to the hen, dropping his wings and spreading his tail. Some Goldies are ready as soon as the hens, but it is the exception rather than the rule. If he is at all backward you had better take a nest of Canarics from the hen first, and introduce the Goldie for the second nest. If you have another spare Canary hen, you could let him fly with both of them. It is just as easy to work a Goldie with two hens as one, for as a rule, when he is in breeding condition he will mate freely with a new partner.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES

ABOUT A CORN BUNTING (Laurence).—The Corn Bunting is a robust looking bird, some seven and a half inches long and marked singularly like a Skylark. It cannot be mistaken for a Skylark, however, because of its superior size, not to mention the other differences, and there is no other British bird with which it could be confused. "Like a Lark, but larger," would be sufficient description, therefore, to identify it. As a song bird it has nothing whatever to recommend it; what "song" it has sounds as much like the breaking of glass as anything I can think of, but a good bird of the species has quite a good chance upon the show-bench. The difficulty is to get them steady; many Corn Buntings fail as exhibition birds from their extreme restlessness.

BREEDING IN SMALL AVIARY (Beginner).—Your aviary is too small for the breeding of more kinds of birds than one. The pair of Goldfinches and the pair of Canaries (that is, if they are truly pairs) would probably not interfere with each other, excepting that Master Goldie might possibly regale himself on the Canary hen's eggs, but these four birds would be the limit of numbers to have any chance of breeding. If you would give up the idea of breeding you could keep in such an aviary any number up to a dozen of mixed British Finches, or hardy Foreigners, but you must not, of course, turn out of doors at this period of the year birds which have not been hardened by having been kept outside throughout the spring and summer. It would be better to roof over a portion, say about half, of the uncovered portion, and close up the front of that part which is already covered, providing, of course, a window in this part to light up the interior, or the birds will not use it. Nothing is better than ordinary garden soil for the "floor" of an open aviary, and if there are not too many birds in it, some of the waste seed will grow and provide the birds with natural green food. The soil can be renewed from time to time, and everything made fresh.

LINNET OUT OF SORTS (A Nuisance).—You make no mention of canary seed, but I presume the omission is accidental, for you would scarcely be keeping a bird without a proportion of this seed being added to its food. The hemp and niger might be reduced in quantity, or the latter may be omitted altogether, and some linseed added. Linseed is a very useful factor in putting a final gloss on the plumage. Every third day for a fortnight add to the drinking water as much sulphate of soda as will lie on a sixpence. After the first two doses begin by adding to the water on one of the days on which you are not giving the sulphate, half a teaspoonful of bynophospbates. On the other days give plain water only. Be careful to use a glass or china drinker when you are giving drugs of any kind. You should not sign yourself "A Nuisance." It is no nuisance to help readers whenever possible.

THRUSH NOT SINGING (Winox).—The fact that your young Thrush is "recording" is a hopeful sign that it is a cock. It will come into its proper song in due course. You should add to the stock food you are giving a liberal proportion of good "ants' eggs" or dried flies, a little preserved meat ("crissel"), and some hard-boiled egg (yolk and white together), mashed up with a fork or pressed through a sieve. Also supply mealworms, small garden worms, smooth caterpillars, spiders, and any other live things you may be able to capture. Nothing is better than a snail or two a day if you can possibly get them. The feathers are certain to become brittle and broken if you do not feed properly. Please see Mr. Norman's column for answer to your moulting query.

ANOTHER THRUSH, AND A MISSEL (A. Ward).—For an answer to your Thrush query, please see answer to "Winox," which exactly meets your case. (2) Only patience will induce your Missel Thrush to bathe. If you cannot buy or improvise a sprayer of some kind, try witholding the ordinary drinker, and supplying water only in the bath. A flower pot saucer would make a much better bath for the cage bottom than a "toffee tin," which you say you are using. Probably the bird does not like the sharp edges of the tin. (3) It is, of course, purely a matter of chance whether the finders of any of the birds you have rung will send a record to us. We get records from time to time, and always publish them when received. If you apply to Messrs. Witherby's, High Holborn, London, W.C. they will send you a supply of rings properly marked and numbered.

EXHIBITING LINNETS (Bobby).—Tut-tut! Mr. Bobby. You must really excuse my telling you if I know of "something to spray on Linnets to make them a better colour for show." Can it be that you do not know that if a Linnet or any other bird of yours were found to be artificially coloured it would be disqualified, and you would lose any prizes won by either the stained bird or any others belonging to you? There is quite a legitimate method of deepening the colour of a Linnet by judicious colour-feeding, but as the moult is now over, it is too late for this year. Outside application of colour is not only dishonest, but it is risky.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

WHAT BIRD? (P. Crompton).—I will give you a definite answer next week, and should be glad if you would send me a little more information. Is the tail as well as the size of the bird similar to that of an Amazon? Is it a young bird, and from what source did you get it? I am of the opinion it is an Amazon of sorts, very probably a somewhat uncommon species. All Amazons have the power of speech, but some of them do not use it much. As you are able to handle the bird it should speak and prove responsive to teaching. When writing also give me the length of the bird in inches from tip of beak to tip of tail, and I will then try and name it for you.

AMAZON PARROT (Mrs. M. Deale).—So far as I can gather from the feathers sent, the bird is in a normal moult, and save that the moult is always more or less of a strain on a bird's strength, there would appear to be no cause of anxiety. Keep it out of draught, yet where it will get plenty of air, also where it will have plenty of company. While the moult lasts it would be the better for a little boiled maize daily, boil till soft, drain off all water, and then well dust with flowers of sulphur and supply to the bird when cool. It would be well to give a laxative once a week (one teaspoonful of Binneford's magnesia in the drinking water), and on other days put half a teaspoonful of byno-phosphates in the drinking water. Supply, in addition, the usual seeds, fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, grit, and cuttlebone. If there should be any adverse developments write again at once. If there is nothing wrong the feathers will soon be renewed, providing the bird is not pulling them out.

PAINTING WIRE NETTING (C. C. Brown).—There is no better preparation than ordinary Brunswick Black for this purpose: it dries quickly (24 hours or less), and is quite innocuous to the birds, besides giving a neat appearance and finish to the wires. It is always best when an aviary is freshly put up to give the netting a coat of Brunswick black (it enables the birds to be better seen through the netting), and then other coats as required to keep off rust. It is a little trouble to put on, as the brush must not be heavily charged with the liquid, or ugly beads of the preparation will be left in the corners of the mesh of the netting.

AVIARY QUERIES (C.B.).—You give C.D.E.F. as 6 x 4 x 6 ft. high, and I take it that the portion on left of sketch outside these letters, marked glass, forms a retiring place or shelter, and is extra to the above measurements. In place of the shallow pots put in some rush nests. It would be well to fasten a piece of roofing felt over the top glass of aviary during the cold months of the year. The list of birds you name should winter successfully there, as they should get some warmth from the room. You do not mention the aspect, if it is either full north or east then it would be better to cage up the Cordon Bleus for the winter, and keep them in your living room. The provision of the rush nests, with a little hay pushed into them, will give the Waxbills, and others which choose to use them, warm sleeping quarters. It is important with such queries to give your county and to state to what extent the aviary gets the sun during the day.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON (W.H.).—The sample of grit will fully meet the requirements of the bird. The bird ought to do well with so much liberty, but it certainly appears to have caught a chill. You must guard against draught, especially while the plumage is damp from spraying. Is the temperature of your room very variable? If so, it would be well for you to do what you can, both for your own and the bird's welfare, to keep it as even a temperature as circumstance permits. If the bird is tame enough for you to handle, then cleanse the nostrils with a sponge, using a tepid glyco-thymoline solution. I should put it on the ipecacuanha and squills mixture for another week or ten days, and the cold should soon cease. Unless it is continuous, you need not take any notice of the shivering of the feathers. If the bird takes sufficient seed it does not really need all the others, though it would be better for a little fruit. I should continue to offer it a small piece of sweet apple at intervals, also a grape, slice of raw carrot, etc., also a small piece of lettuce leaf when you have such; picking them up and throwing them down will ultimately end in it taking some. The walnuts are wholesome, and it can have a fairly liberal supply. Under the condition you are keeping it, the present slight indisposition ought to soon pass, and the bird become an interesting pet and good mimic. While you must not get into the habit of giving it table scraps or slops, it can have at mealtimes such as a crust of dry toast, piece of plain cake, or piece of dry boiled potato, any of these it may take will help to keep the diet varied, and the bird contented. Shall be pleased to hear how the bird progresses. The laxative must be continued as required, but not used to excess.

WEAVERS (Perplexed).—Napoleon: This may be described as clad in rich chrome-yellow, but the chin, throat, and cheeks, nape, and middle of abdomen are velvety black, with the wings and tail brown. Grenadier: The colour of this bird varies according to age from fiery orange to scarlet; mantle and upper wing coverts red with dark streaks; crown, sides of head, chin, chest, and abdomen black; flight and tail feathers brown; beak black. Madagascar: This bird is more or less scarlet, below it is entirely so from chin to undertail coverts; above it is dark brown, with dark shaft streaks, strongly suffused with scarlet, beak black. Orange Bishop or Weaver: Smaller than the Grenadier, but similarly coloured the colours of these two species are very similar, though the hue of the orange seldom reaches scarlet, it is mostly various degrees of fiery orange; while the chin and throat of the Grenadier are black, these parts in the Orange Bishop are fiery orange. Young birds, locality, weather, etc., would all affect the period of coming into colour, and importation undoubtedly checks the process in such specimens as were not in colour at time of exportation. Undoubtedly the birds you refer to are all hens. During the period when the males wear the nuptial plumage excitement runs high, and they puff out their feathers generally, forming a ruff round the neck, and making the bird look much stouter than it generally is, this is common to many species, but is very apparent with the Napoleon, Grenadier, and Orange Weavers.

IS IT LARGE ENOUGH? (E. R. South).—No, it is not large enough, as will be apparent to you, when I remark that four pairs of birds need six to eight husks, and in the space at their command, or there is sure to be fighting for favourite sites. It is breeding accommodation I am referring to, as the cage, merely as a cage, would accommodate double the number you have. However as you have already got them, see how they go on during the winter and early spring, but you ought to contrive to fix up two husks for each pair of birds, each with its opening towards the light, and as far apart as circumstance will permit. So long as they are not subjected to draught they are very hardy. Some will take fruit, others will not touch it. Fresh lettuce is good, also Canary seed sown in a small pot and grown in a window. Supply to the birds by placing the pot in the cage when the seedlings are two to three inches high. Usually from March to October, but some pairs go on all through the year, only pausing for the moult. Our Nutshell, "Budgerigars," 2½d., post free, from our manager, would help you greatly.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

"Ignorant."—Canary died of pulmouary apoplexy, following congestion of the lungs

A. Trevallion.—Acute broncho-pulmonia, affecting both lungs. The symptoms you describe occur in the course of this death, owing to the extent of lung tissue affected.

Matthew Coulson.—Linnet ruptured an important blood vessel, due to high tension in the blood vessels, possibly induced by fright. I could discover no external injuries, but the plumage had gone in places. Possibly you are troubled with mice.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

J. F. Charlton.—It has been settled beyond reasonable doubt that Mules have bred. It is a very rare occurrence, as is only to be expected.

J. Bulson.—We have no knowledge of the existence of such a gramophone record.

HAVE YOU SIGNED THE PETITION?

Members Invited to Dartford.

Notes by the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

Mr. Peck, of Bexley Heath, the enthusiastic organiser of the children's show which is to be held at Dartford on Oct. 8, writes wishing me to thank a fellow CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE member, Mr. G. Coakham, of Newport, Mon., for his generous gift of 10s. and a dozen Redpolls as prizes. Besides the money prizes and the Redpolls, there will be new dresses for the girls, suits of clothes for the boys, and other useful articles, boots, etc., including a watch and chain for a boy. The ladies' paper hat competition is going strong, says Mr. Peck, and six extra prizes have had to be added. Free refreshments will be provided for the children, and altogether the occasion promises to be a red-letter day for Dartford. The exhibition will open at 7.30, and admission will be by programme, price twopence, but one penny only will be charged to members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, upon production of their badges, and Mr. Peck hopes to see a great number of his fellow members present. The exhibition will be held in the Club and Institute, Dartford, Kent.

The Petition Against the Plumage Bill.

I am very glad to be able to gather from correspondence received that many members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE and other readers of CAGE BIRDS have cut out the petition to members of Parliament which was published in our issue of Sept. 20, and are getting this signed by as many people as possible before sending it to their local representatives. Every reader should do this, and the result would be that the clause to which we take special objection would most probably be taken out of the Bill. In any case, it is certain that if we do not take such a step it will not be taken out.

The possible, and probable, remedy is in our hands, and if we do not use it it will be our own fault. Remember, this is not a question of politics, for although the Bill is a Government measure, the next or some succeeding Secretary of State, Secretary of Scotland, and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland may be of a different complexion of politics. They would still have power under the Act, if Clause 4 remains, of altering our bird laws just as they personally desire, and with or without request from anybody.

"Bird Notes and News," the organ of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, reprints the Bill in its latest issue, but omits the clause to which we take exception, and takes no notice of it whatever. All it does is to say that "an immense majority of members of both Houses are known to be in favour of the Bill," and that "Bird protectors should beg their representatives in Parliament to support the Bill." We, as bird keepers and bird lovers, have no objection to the Bill so far as it relates to the "Importation of Plumage." All that we object to is the inclusion of matter which is foreign to the title of the Bill, and this is made quite plain in the petition to which I am now drawing the attention of LEAGUE members and other readers.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

Leaflets setting forth the aims and objects of the LEAGUE will be forwarded, post free, to any reader upon application.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Canaries Sent on Approval.

At the bi monthly County Court for the Halstead district, held Sept. 22, before His Honour Judge Tindal Atkinson, Arthur E. Barcham, of Sible Hedingham, brought an action against Albert E. Silk, bird specialist, of Whitstable, Kent, to recover £1 7s. 6d., the price of two Canaries, which he had had on approval from the defendant, but which were returned.

Mr. W. A. Smith, solicitor, who appeared for the plaintiff, explained that the £1 7s. 6d. was the price of two Canaries which he had received on approval, and which were subsequently returned. He received them on June 13, and as he did not approve of them they were returned on June 16. They were received by the defendant, who wrote saying he would not keep them, and that he proposed to send them on again. Nothing further was heard until his client issued the summons. Plaintiff had received no communication from the railway company whatever in regard to the birds, and therefore it might be fairly well presumed that the defendant received the birds from the plaintiff and never returned them. In regard to the question of approval, added Mr. Smith, the usual terms were that the prospective buyer should keep them for three days. In this case the birds were received on the Friday by the plaintiff, and he returned them on the Monday, because if he had sent them off on the Saturday they would in all probability have been on the rail all day Sunday.

A. E. Barcham, of Sible Hedingham, bore out his solicitor's opening statement. He said that in June last he wrote to the defendant for a pair of Canaries on approval. The defendant declined to send the birds unless the money was forwarded.

Mr. Smith: And on what terms were they sent then?—Plaintiff: The terms were that if they did not suit me I was to return the birds, and he would return the cash. Plaintiff added that he paid the carriage both ways.

Mr. Smith: Did he write you saying he had received the birds?—Yes.—His Honour: Have you got that letter?—A portion of the letter was read, which stated that the birds had been received, but were in a shocking state. The writer added that he was returning the Canaries.

His Honour (to plaintiff): And did he return them to you?—No, sir.—His Honour: Nor the money? How much?—Plaintiff: £1 7s. 6d., your Honour.

His Honour: Very well; judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

Two Rare-feathered Birds at Burnley.

Sir,—There is to be seen flying with the Starlings around Whittlefield Recreation Ground, Burnley, a pure cinnamon bird; also a black and white Blackbird in the gardens in Ightenhill Park Lane.

Gramophone Records of the Songs of Birds.

Sir,—I think it would be a good thing for record makers not only to have the Roller's song, but the song of the Linnet and Goldfinch. I have been speaking to other bird-keepers, and they would also like to get one of each. I wish Cage Birds every success.

A Bullfinch which Preferred Captivity.

Sir,—It may be of interest to your readers to know that last Sunday morning, while feeding my birds, a Bullfinch flew out of the aviary, and in the afternoon I found him trying his hardest to get in again! I caught him and put him back with his "pals." He evidently preferred being in captivity to being at large.

An Appeal to Fanciers in Erith and District.

Sir,—We have in this district a number of bird fanciers, who are absolutely unorganised, as far as the Fancy is concerned, and we, the committee, and officers of the Erith and Dist. Fanciers Society, are anxious to cater for and so unite them. I should be glad to hear from them. We have an annual show next month.

Can Birds Cause Railway Accidents?

Sir,—A correspondent of the "Westminster Gazette" raises the above curious question. He says: "while waiting at a wayside railway station I happened to observe four pigeons sitting on a wire leading from the signal-cabin to a line of telegraph poles. The wire was rather slack, and the effort made by the birds at the commencement of their flight (they flew away together) had the effect of swinging the signal wire into contact with a telegraph line. I was curious to know what effect would be produced thereby in the signal-cabin, and on questioning the signalman he informed me that a stray current had just given him a false "Line Clear" signal, irregularly authorising him to send a train into a section which was already occupied by another train. I was astonished to learn from him that most of the signalling circuits in this country are liable to similar interference.

What Constitutes a Novice?

Sir,—At the last meeting of our Society arose the question of what constituted a novice at the shows, and I was requested to ask your idea on the matter. I shall be much obliged if you can give me the required information.

J. R. Chestney.

The most general ruling at open shows is that which we have adopted for the purposes of our Coupon Scheme, viz.: "A novice is a person who has never won a first prize for Canaries, or Mules and Hybrids, or British, or Foreign birds, in a class at any show other than one confined to club members, or residents in the town or county where the show is held, or limited as to the price at which the exhibit is to be sold (price not to exceed £5), or three first prizes in open novice classes. All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete." The ruling at members' shows naturally varies, as many societies cater for the novice, amateur, and champion sections. It varies, too, with regard to the competitions of specialist clubs; for instance, two fanciers have written us stating that although they have won firsts at the Crystal Palace and Scottish National Shows, they are still novices under the rules of the Border Fancy C.C.—Editor.

What is the Matter with Members' Shows?

Suggestion that there be No Prize Money.

Sir,—I wish to compliment "Looker On" on his good letter, albeit I don't see eye to eye with him in his argument. I can't see that the uniting of either shows or societies is the remedy for poor entries at members' shows. It would only mean clubbing together the present divided entries, which would not make for progress. What is the reason of the scarcity of entries? My opinion is, that with many it is a matter of £ s. d. Members who work hard for a moderate wage can't see sense in an indiscriminate spending of money in entry fees without some good prospect of getting it back again, hence they judge their own birds, and if they are not satisfied they will be sure winners they leave them at home. An official of a Manchester society said to me at one of this year's first feather shows, when I asked him why he had not sent any entries: "I've no likely winners, and I don't see the fun of paying other people's prize-money." Then there are those few members like friend Metcalfe, who cease showing because there is either nothing worthy of their steel, or not enough to "kill"; but those would soon come again with better conditions.

How can it be remedied? The remedy I suggest will perhaps not at first appeal to some, but I would have them consider it well before they condemn it. It is to alter the arrangement of entry fees and prize-money, which is really a matter of pooling the entry fees and paying out to the lucky few. Put the entry fee at, say, 2d. per cage, and pay no direct prize-money, but treat it more as an exhibition of one's hobby. This would give exhibitors a chance of showing their birds without fear of dropping a lot of money—at the same time the best birds could stand as such, for award cards would be given for 1st, 2nd and 3rd best in class. If there was a balance (which I feel sure there always would be) after show expenses were paid, allot specials for best team in section—extra of course to any specials given by the society, or private individuals. If this arrangement was carried out in the right spirit, I feel sure it would advance the hobby we are interested in, both in the eyes of coming fanciers and the public in general, who are not all keen critics of every exhibit, but like to have plenty for their money, given fair quality, of course. Those members who think anything will do for a members' show would soon be shamed into bringing the right stuff, for there is no lack of stock worth looking at amongst the Manchester fanciers. Also, I think most fanciers would rather stand at the head of a class of a dozen exhibits with no prize-money behind it, than at the head of three with "your money back." My experience of fanciers in general is that they remember having stood 1st in a large class, not that they won 6s., or whatever it might be.

Manicus Minor.

Co-operative Shows as a Stimulus.

Sir,—As a result of the correspondence in your columns re the above, I believe some effort is being made in Manchester to arouse interest in the Fancy, and if possible to come to some arrangement whereby the various societies may assist each other to run their members' shows more successfully. I sincerely hope that some good will result. There is no doubt that a state of apathy prevails. Some action is necessary to raise the local Fancy from the listless position to which it has been drifting for some few years. I do not suggest that interest has departed entirely, but I do think that if the fanciers set themselves out earnestly to promulgate the hobby, that many more people would be induced to take an interest in it, and join a society in their district. We require a few earnest and broad-minded fanciers from the various societies to give a lead and put forward a policy by which, with the co-operation of the several societies concerned, interest could be aroused and maintained. There must, however, be no petty jealousies or suspicion of each other's motives, or far better that nothing should be attempted. Any success which may be attained must necessarily be shared in by the whole of the societies, and this should be our aim. Personally I do not think that amalgamation is a solution, or that it would bring about any better state of things than exists at present, and this view is shared by several who are in close touch with the district. Neither do I see hope of much improvement by the holding of one amalgamated members' show. I would, however, suggest for consideration that an arrangement might be come to in which the societies may co-operate, and each society hold a show for its own members, and its own specials, with the addition of entries from all the other co-opted societies. For instance, if there were eight societies, that would be eight shows running through the season. Section specials could be allotted on similar lines to those adopted by the specialist clubs, for, say, most aggregate points—three highest awards at each show to count. There would still remain the difficulty which has been always with us, viz., the falling away of competition as the season advances, on account of so many being hopelessly out of the running, and consequently leaving their birds at home. To mitigate this, however, I would suggest that the specials be given for most points at the four earlier shows, most points at the four later shows, and most points at the whole eight shows. Of course, valuable specials could hardly be expected under such an arrangement, but they could be worked out according to the circumstances, and I feel sure that if some such arrangement can be brought about, it will bring the whole district into closer touch and that members individually, as well as their societies and the Fancy generally, will benefit.

T. Atkinson.

An Advocate of Amalgamated Shows.

Sir,—"Forward" asks why I did not, in my last letter, advance any "items in its favour." I did not want to take up too much of our Editor's space, and, of course, have "too big a free advt." However, I will try to do so now, knowing full well "Forward" and pals will not approve ("never" they say). I am one who in the past has taken a great interest in members' shows, to the extent of sending not less than 12 and up to 22 entries. (Smoke up, Reuben.) Now we all know that all, or nearly all, members' shows do not pay. I grant there are exceptions, mainly due to the cadging of specials from tradesmen. I speak from experience, and have long since resolved never to ask any tradesman for a special again. It is not cricket, and will not make their fortunes. They give because they do not like to say no. Now "Forward" asks me if the last two amalgamated shows were as big a success as I anticipated. I say "Yes." First of all let me correct his figures. The first one was run by North Manchester in 1912 with four societies, the second by Ardwick with six societies. This year it will be run by Pendleton and Salford, with four societies. Now of the six societies in the second show, I believe one society has closed down, and another one has amalgamated with clubs nearer to it for this year. Now, "Forward," these explanations put a different light on, don't they? I reckon these amalgamated shows have given as good specials, if not better, than some members' shows, and they have not had to beg their specials; each club has given a small donation, and I know for a fact each one has had two-thirds of it back, at least, after the settling up. Again, "F" says my society (I claim none) was the last to come into line. Let me say I was a delegate for one Society, which was practically the first agitator for amalgamated shows. I say again, my idea is for each society to do away with members' shows (I guess I've stung "Forward") and to run them as amalgamated or co-operated shows; F. Feather, Nov., and Jan. Members would then show, and there ought to be plenty of competition. These shows, I feel sure, would flourish. Look at the saving in expenses, judges' fees, room-rent, stewards' luncheons, printing, etc., etc. Why, they could not help but pay their way, and, as "Looker On" said, people, not only fanciers, would come and see them, and the officials would have to make less of their lame excuses to the visitors and judge re weather, moulting, etc. I would like to say that I have a few busy weeks in front of me, but would try and answer any questions if the writers will only sign their names, but Nom-de-plumes I must absolutely ignore. I trust Cage Birds may be the means of infusing fresh life into the Fancy around here.

The Problem of Migration.

Sir,—I have been wondering if "Sub Rosa" is pulling Mr. E. Kay Robinson's leg re the migration of our birds and the due North winds. I think our migratory birds would leave us at their usual time, let the wind be from any point. I think there is something else besides the due North winds (shall I say a little "instinct"?) as the different species don't all leave together, any more than they arrive together. Take the case of the adult Cuckoos, which always leave us when our warmest weather is upon us. As a rule we don't get our cold North winds till after the majority of our birds have gone South. I wish your splendid journal every success.

Why Are Some Welsh Shows Failures?

Are The Judges Overworked.

Sir,—Last season there was much discussion as to the reason why so many Welsh shows failed to pay their way, and many reasons were advanced. Pontardawe schedule, which has just reached me, gives, in my opinion, the principal reason why so many Welsh shows are more or less failures. This schedule contains 110 classes, and out of this number no less than 77 are allotted to Mr. C. A. House. Is this not absurd? I have no fault to find with Mr. House. He is acknowledged as one of our best all-round judges, but it is absolutely impossible for him to judge 77 classes, either with satisfaction to himself, or the exhibitors, even though we know he is no "slow-coach." Fanciers know it is impossible for one man to perform such tasks as that given to Mr. House, and as a consequence the wise ones keep their entries at home. The result will be that many classes will be cancelled or have only part of the prize money awarded, as per rule 2. Had the Pontardawe executive elected two judges to do the work they have given Mr. House I feel sure their show would have been successful. I commend this idea to our Welsh committees. They save money in judges' fees, and lose it in entries, and that is why Welsh shows do not pay.

How a Reader Hangs His Cages.

Sir,—I send you an idea which may be useful to fanciers who have their cages hung up on walls, etc. The method generally adopted is to make a hole in the back of cage, and this with a nail sticking through it disfigures the inside of a good cage. The illustration shows a neater contrivance or method for hanging a cage. Simply cut a piece of wood as shown, and make a hole in the centre (to slip over nail). Then nail this on to the top of cage at back, driving the nails through the bracket into the top and back boards of cage. Cages can then be hung up without disfiguring hole in the back.

J. Naden.

Wake Up! Stockport.

Sir,—I am of the same opinion as Mr. J. H. Garbutt, that a real live cage-bird club ought to be in existence in a town like Stockport, with over 100,000 of a population, good railway service and good showrooms. We have had some good shows in the past (over 300 birds at members' shows) and very fine specimens, too, from such exhibitors as G. Garner, W. Lee, Massey, Cook, Shore, Beswick, Potts, Slater, Allsop-Davies, Hargreaves, Nelson, and other good fanciers. Of course, a few have either given up or left the district, but that is no reason why a club should not go again, when there are plenty who would fill their places. Rally round and put your shoulders to the wheel. The Stockport Cage Bird Society is not exactly dead, but is in a bad way. What is the cause? I do not know. Now fanciers, let us have your views. I know that I am perhaps a little to blame for not calling meetings lately, but what can fanciers expect when only about four turn up to the meetings, and consequently no business can be done.

The Southern Norwich P.C. and Clapham Show.

Champion Section Patronage Allotted to Plymouth.

Sir,—The Club has been compelled to withdraw from Clapham their patronage in champion section, the novice section to remain. The reason for doing so is because of classification, which will put our competition for points out of order for the entire season. They received my instructions, but unfortunately copied last year's schedule, but owing to Mr. Spillman's resolution at last annual meeting, they are out of order, and time is now too limited for correction. I have sent notices to all our members that Plymouth in champions takes the patronage, owing to the only show that does not clash with our dates, also comes tie with Swansea and Portsmouth in votes from committee for the allotting of club patronage. To be further in order, according to our minutes passed at annual meeting, we must have six shows for champion section, and I trust that other clubs taking same will be careful to see they have no errors in schedule re classification.

F. S. Matthes,
Hon. Sec. S.N.P.C.

P.S.—Will members in looking over schedule for Plymouth understand that class 20, unflighted hens, and class 23, natural colour birds, are not to compete for points, and that date of closing for own entries will be Oct. 8 instead of Oct. 4?

By the same post as Mr. Matthes' communication comes the following from the secretary of the Clapham Society, a copy of a letter he has sent to members of the S.N.P.C.:

To Members of the S.N.P.C.

Gentlemen,—By an oversight, the classification in Norwich classes in our schedule was printed the same as last year. To meet your requirements we have made Class 5, yellow hen, and have added Class 5a, buff hen; so send along your entries, and don't make the Association suffer for an error of the Secretary, who is extremely sorry that this has occurred.—T. J. Hose, Hon. Sec. Clapham C.B.A.

Sir,—What strikes me as being unfair is that while the Champion Committee of the S.N.P.C. are so mindful of their eight classes, yet they are so unmindful of the novice section as to only grant six classes for them, and these classes at the discretion of the Society obtaining their patronage!

Free Lance.

[We have received several letters from S.N.P.C. members and others concerning the above matter, but as the points they raise or discuss are dealt with above, we do not think the publication of them is necessary.—Editor.]

How to Stage Birds to Win

By H. NORMAN (Carshalton).

This popular judge provides readers with some topical tips and interesting views.

As we are now on the eve of the show season I feel tempted to pen a few lines upon the subject of staging. It is a branch of the art of exhibiting that does not, I fear, receive the attention it should in every branch of our hobby.

Generally speaking, there is not much to complain of in the staging of the British birds, because somehow the exhibitors in this section have for some time past realised the importance of placing their birds before the judges in the best possible condition, and in preparing suitable surroundings to show them off to the best advantage. It is true we occasionally see exhibits that might have been better put down. They are possibly in cumbersome, unwieldy cages, or cages with unsuitable backgrounds; but so varied are the tones of colour in our wild birds that one sometimes wonders that exhibitors manage as well as they do.

Among the Canaries it is different; yellow is the predominant colour, and as a complementary we have blue and its varied shades. The specialist Norwich clubs have a standard tint for the back of the cage, but I am still of the opinion that the same tint does not quite suit both a yellow and a buff; a little greater depth of colour behind a buff is more suitable to its paler tones, particularly where the bird has not taken the colour-food over well, and is in consequence somewhat "down" in colour.

What British Bird Men Have Done.

British bird exhibitors have experimented freely as to the size, shape and colour of the cages most suitable for the species they are exhibiting. As a background green appears to show off the majority of wild birds to the best advantage, but I am inclined to think that the tone of colour generally used is a shade too dark. Exhibitors should remember that the majority of the halls are none too well lighted in the daytime; they are mostly built for evening entertainments, and daylight in some of them is almost an unknown quantity. It is difficult for a judge to weigh up a bird's merits and compare it with others when he has to peer into the cage to get a sight of the inmate. The shade of colour required for most Britishers is usually described as "holly" green, but, to my way of thinking, a fresh laurel leaf comes nearer the mark. It is a nice middle shade, bright without being glaring, and shows off most species to perfection.

There is still something to be said for the light background, particularly for birds on the small side; it has the peculiar property of affording the bird an apparent increase in size, though at the expense of a loss in depth of colour.

The Greenfinch a Difficult Problem.

The most difficult bird to deal with is undoubtedly the Greenfinch. It is impossible to fix a standard colour to show him to the best advantage, because one can seldom find any two birds in a class exactly alike in tone of colour. The tints mostly used are bright green, pale blue, pale pink, and occasionally a dark chocolate. If I were asked to select one that would be most suitable to all, I should say white, with an inclination to a tone of pink (rather than blue), but this would be providing all the birds were to be exhibited in their natural plumage.

The size of the cages is another matter that requires consideration. One naturally wants the cage to be as small as possible, to save the difficulty in carriage, but still there is a "happy medium." A bird should never look cramped for room, nor yet lost in a big cage.

All perches should be placed so that the bird takes them easily. One frequently sees a bird take a perch and then droop or bend (as a man will when he jumps from a high wall or fence). In this case the perches are too far apart and require altering. A bird should not have to "recover" after taking a perch, but move from one to the other gracefully and easily. This applies as much to Canaries as to Hybrids and British birds. Among the Canaries, the Borders are frequently shown with the perches unsuitably placed, both as regards distance from perch to perch, and from perch to feeding trough. If one watches the actions of a bird as he moves from one to the other, it is not difficult to decide if they are correctly placed.

In showing birds in open wire cages the chief contrasting colour is the black of the cages, so this should be in good condition; if not, and it has to be freshly enamelled, this should be done some time before the date of the show, to allow it to harden. I have seen some clear birds anything but "clear" after they have been in their show cages a few hours, and the judge's hands after officiating at the first show of the season are frequently in such a state that one would hardly care to shake hands with him.

Have Everything Spick and Span.

Nice white perches make a pleasing contrast with the black of the cage. These should be scrubbed in strong soda water and then dried before a brisk fire. Water-glasses, tins, and everything about a show cage should be scrupulously clean and neat. Do not put large water bottles on small cages; they look ugly and out of proportion.

Remember that the only thing you wish to force upon the attention of the judge is the bird; let everything be in harmony with a view to showing up the exhibit to the best possible advantage. The judge does not mean to let a bird's surroundings influence him, but nevertheless, perhaps unconsciously, they do; anyway, one seldom or never sees a badly-staged specimen at the head of its class. This fact should be a severe object lesson to all young exhibitors. "Staged to perfection" are the words one wants to read after a descriptive report of one's winner.

Some young fanciers run away with the idea that certain varieties of Canary require no training for exhibition, or, rather, they think it is only Yorkshires that need to be run into show cages. This is quite erroneous, for all varieties should be properly trained. Take the Norwich as an example. The first time a young bird is run into a show cage he crouches, frightened, and drops his tail, looking worth about half his real value. And if you go near him the chances are he will dash to the bars, cling there, then drop with fluttering wings, spread tail, and a gaping beak, that tell plainly the terror he is in. He settles down after a time, and you pack him off to the show.

An Excuse that is no Excuse.

What happens? He is taken out of his box by a stranger, in a strange room. His fright re-appears; possibly he damages his flights or tail; possibly he never properly settles down during the whole show. What is a judge to do with a bird like that? It may be a good one, but it has to stand down in consequence of its behaviour. The owner's excuse that it is "the first time he has been in a show cage," is an expression one should never hear at an exhibition. The bird should be trained to his cage until he is as accustomed to it and as comfortable in it as he is with his stock cage. Then he will show himself to perfection, come boldly up to the bars, and take his perches gracefully and smartly.

Another bird-room error lies in having to catch birds to transfer them from one cage to another. Yorkshires are trained to enter a show cage without difficulty, and all other Canaries, Hybrids, British birds, etc., should be trained in the same way. The method is simple. Hang a small cage on the front of the stock cage, and leave it there for a day or two, when the birds will pass in and out quite freely; then, when wanted, with a thin stick gently drive one in, unhook the cage, and transfer him to the show cage. Once birds have been trained to this procedure they are never any trouble afterwards. This passing from cage to cage is good for them, and keeps them steady and fearless. In the case of British birds, etc., caged singly in stock-cages, the latter should have a door in the left-hand end, and through this the birds can readily be accustomed to run into the show cages.

Club Reports.

SPRINGBURN, POSSIL PK. C.B.C.

Meeting held in Reid Hall, Mr. A. Sloan chair, over a good attendance. Three new members were made, and after the business was finished, Mr. A. Wilson, Glasgow, gave a lecture on How to become a successful fancier, and various other items of interest. The lecture was appreciated by all, and a hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Wilson.—J. Waugh, Sec.

DUNFERMLINE C.B.S.

Meeting held Co-operative Hall, September 27, Mr. J. Rankine presiding. Previous to business, a table show of Linnets was held. Mr. D. McLaren judged. HOUSE-MOULTED: 1, Rankine; 2, Johnson; 3, Kilpatrick; 4, Campbell. F.-M.: 1, Rankine; 2, 3, Malcolm. Collectors gave in a report which showed that they had made a record in the amount of specials got, and subscriptions likewise were far ahead of anything yet attained. The business of the forthcoming annual show (1st Nov.) fully took up the time at our disposal.—Robert T. Campbell, Sec.

When sending birds by rail, use our Live Bird Labels, 24 3d., 50 6d., 100 10d, post free.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

Special meeting held Sept. 27, with a large attendance. After ordinary business, the question of prize drawing came up for consideration, when it was decided to have a guessing competition for Canaries. Nine Canaries and one Linnet were promised there and then for same; the specials are coming in well.—G. Harver, Sec.

MIDLAND COUNTIES YORKS. C.C

Our patronage for the ensuing season has been granted Hanley, October 16th, champion and novice; Wolverhampton, October 24-25, champion and novice; Stoke-on-Trent, November 13, novice; Nottingham, November 14, champion; West Bromwich, November 22nd, champion and novice; City of Birmingham, December 3-4, champion and novice; Walsall, December 12th, champion and novice. This was the best that could be arranged. We appeal to all Yorks. members of abovenamed societies to join us. Annual subscription, only 2s. 6d.—J. Sheppard, Hon. Sec.

YORKS. AND LANCS. BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

Owing to secretaries not applying for patronage earlier, the books have been delayed another week. I hope members will not forget to show at Leeds (our first show), October 10-11. There is the same prize-money as last year, also in addition, a splendid silver challenge cup, given by our worthy President, Dr. M. A. Wilson, to be won three times, not necessarily in succession (for most points in Brit., Mules and Hyb.). List of shows for patronage: Leeds, October 10-11; Halifax, October 17-18; Manchester, Oct. 24-25; Sheffield, Nov. 7-8; Preston O.S., Nov. 21-22; Bradford National, December 5-6-8; Malton, December 26; Doncaster, January 10.—T. H. Inman, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW (Queen's Park) C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Marie Stuart Halls, 24th September, Mr. Hunter in the chair. Particulars for the annual show were fully gone into, and arrangements made. Decided to have three table shows this winter, October, November, and December; October one allocated for Norwich, and Crests, Mr. E. Barron judge; November for Borders and Yorks., judge, Mr. R. Jeffrey; and the December one for Mules, British and foreign birds, judge, Mr. M. Craig. Washing exhibition at October meeting, along with the table show. It is hoped all members will do their best for these table shows. A list of classes will be duly posted to each. Three new members were admitted.—R. Heggie, Sec.

SOUTHERN BORDER FANCY CLUB.

Monthly meeting, held Guildhall, Wandsworth Road, September 25th., Mr. Norman in chair; good attendance of members. Sketch of spoon was submitted by Mr. A. J. Pratt; a very pretty design, with drawing of a Border, and name of club on the handle. It was greatly admired by those present. Decided to adopt this pattern for the club's special, subject to the price being favourable. Secretary was instructed to write secretaries of Plymouth, Cheltenham, Wimbledon, and Leyton Shows, on the subject of judges for the Border section. Messrs. Claydon, Campbell, Jones, Smith, Saunders, Wiseman, were elected members. Intending members are requested to send in their names at once to me at 58, Montholme Road, Wandsworth Common. Points will only be counted to members competing for Newley's cup, exhibiting their birds in the club pattern cage; not those of previous pattern.—F. Moore, Hon. Sec.

CLYDEBANK C.B.C.

Meeting held September 18, Mr. McGown presiding. Estimates for uprights for annual show were submitted, and it was remitted to Messrs. Robb, Morton, and Chambers to settle. Mr. Tawse offered a special of 10s. for most points at annual show on the following terms: Classes of 7 or over, first bird to count seven points. Classes with less than seven, lowest bird to count one, and so on upwards. Any member filling one class, first bird only to count (7 points). Secretary was instructed to write for schedules and classification sheets to Leith Publishing Company. Chairman intimated that as one of our members was leaving for Australia, we proposed to present him with a small token of esteem, and in response, a fair sum of money was collected, which was presented to him on Monday, 22nd, for which he returned his heartiest thanks to the members. Members who have not paid annual subs. are requested to do so as soon as possible.—Wm. Kane, Sec.

DARVEL C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 23. There was a good attendance, Mr. N. Hopkins presided. Date of club show was fixed for Nov. 15, entries to close on Wed. previous. Classes arranged at last meeting, with slight alterations, were approved. Sec. instructed to write Mr. J. Johnston (Kilmarnock) enquiring if he was free to judge club show. Charges asked for Lesser Town Hall for club show were considered too heavy, and sec. was instructed to make enquiries re getting Y.M.C.A. Hall before we arrange anything definite. Sec. instructed to look after schedules and prize cards without going to much expense. Messrs. J. Taylor, Darvel, and A. Richmond (Newmilns) were elected members. Up till the present Scotch Fancy breeders have been conspicuous by their absence at our meetings, and although no classes have been provided in schedule of club show, there is still time to come forward and be represented with a class or two. Rally round, gentlemen, and let us have specimens of all the varieties kept in this district on the boards. Next meeting, Oct. 23. New members made heartily welcome.—J. Robertson, jun., Sec.

THE FOREIGN BIRD EXHIBITORS LEAGUE.

Splendid Progress Made: A Great Show to be Held this Season.

At their last meeting, this society concluded arrangements concerning classification and prize money for foreign birds at the forthcoming London C.B.A. show (at the Horticultural Hall), Nov. 27, 28, and 29. In addition to the extensive classification printed in detail earlier in the year, a class has been added for Gouldian Finches only, and that class (formerly 28) which contained both large and small birds has been divided into two, viz.:—

29.—All species Flycatchers, Minivets, Wood Swallows, Chats, Redstarts, Robins, Bush Robins, Sivas, Mesias, Tits, Nuthatches, and Warblers.

30.—All other species not previously mentioned, including Birds of Paradise, Manucodes, Toucans, Trogons, Touracos, Tyrants, True Shrikes, Woodpeckers, Kingfishers, Barbets, Pittas, Mocking Birds, and True Thrushes, etc.

The above make up a total of 30 classes and the League has guaranteed that full prize money of 20s. shall be paid in all classes, irrespective of the number of entries. There is to be no cancellation and no amalgamation, and in classes containing 12 or more entries an extra two shillings will be added to the money of each second prize winner. Prize-money (no vhc, he, or c cards given):—1st, 12s.; 2nd 6s. 6d. (where 12 and over entries, 8s. 6d.); third, 4s.; fourth, 3s.; fifth, 2s.; sixth, 1s. 6d.; seventh, 1s. The seventh winner gets half his entrance fee back, and whether an exhibitor is able to partly fill a class or show only a few birds he is less likely to fail utterly in retrieving some of his expenses than has formerly been the case.

For the League, Lord Tavistock has guaranteed seven Parrot classes; the President, C. Pelham Sutton, Esq., the class for Green Budgerigars (prize money in this case to total £2 2s.); Mr. R. J. Watts the Gouldian class; Mr. W. J. C. Frost the small insectivorous class, and the hon. sec. the large insectivorous.

The work, time, and expense involved have not been small, and it is to be hoped now an opportunity is given these foreign bird exhibitors who have previously kept birds at home owing to small classification preventing them from getting a chance to score, that they will respond in good numbers, and try and make it possible to hold at least one good show of foreign birds annually.

Should success attend this experiment, this is assured, and it will then be also possible to extend help to societies who may be entitled (according to the rules of the League) to apply for patronage. Although the membership of the League is increasing daily, considering the work it has undertaken to do it is not by any means large enough. The League has not been working in the interests of individuals or entirely in those of its own members, but on behalf of foreign bird keeping as a whole, and I therefore hope that foreign bird keepers who interest themselves in the welfare of their hobby will remember this and help to bring before the public in the future, even more than they have in the past, the subjects of their cult.

A. Silver, Hon. Sec.

ARBROATH C.B.S.

Successful meeting held Sept. 24, Mr. W. Muir, pres., in chair, and a large attendance. Specials were allotted to the various classes. After other business, the meeting was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to chair.—J. Gray, Sec.

ANNFIELD PLAIN F.F. & C.B.S.

Meeting held September 27, at Queen's Hotel, Mr. Isaac Elliott chair, and a good company present. Messrs. J. Stanger, Penton Fell, Canaries, and Mr. T. Dixon, Bennington, British, were elected to judge at our open show, January 3. We got a start with schedule, but had to leave over till next meeting.—M. Archer.

WALLSEND C.B.A.

Summoned meeting held Sept. 24, Mr. J. Heslop in chair, before a record attendance. Schedule was drawn up, every member being highly satisfied. There are 55 classes, so members, rally around and make our show a success. Members must not forget that we require a large number of specials, and if each member was to obtain one instead of leaving the collection to a few it would be better. A large attendance is requested at next meeting, Oct. 8.—Geo. Greenwell, Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting at Old Boar's Head Hotel, Manchester, September 27. Mr. W. Massey, Bolton, presided over a good muster. Mr. J. Thomas, Halifax, was elected a member. A discussion took place regarding Mr. Norris's letter to the press re prize money, and his suggestion was adopted. Patronage, as before, was granted to the Bolton Roller Club. Other clubs desiring patronage, should apply at once. Preliminary arrangements for members' show, November 29th, were made.—A. Percival (Hon. Sec.), Smithy Bridge, nr. Rochdale.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Meeting held Flying Dutchman Hotel, Leeds Road, Sept. 27, before a moderate attendance. The Assistant Secretary acted as chairman until the arrival of Mr. T. Fortman (deputy chairman), who was then called upon. A prize was promised to the individual selling the greatest number of tickets of admission to the annual open show. So will members kindly come forward, and lend a helping hand to make our open show a bumping success? Decided to pay the two stewards at the open show.—P. R. Jenkinson (Assist. Sec.).

SCOTTISH CRESTED C.C.

Committee meeting held Wilson's Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow, Sept. 13, Mr. McLay chair. Present—Messrs. Lambie, Noble, Smart, Shillinglaw, and Young (sec.). Correspondence was read from Messrs. McNaughton and Whittan, also from Glasgow and Dist. O.A. An application from Cowdenbeath Society was forwarded, asking for patronage, and it was agreed to grant patronage and club medal. Agreed that club show be held in conjunction with Glasgow and District's fixture on Nov. 21 and 22, secretary being instructed to circularise members of same and asking for a special prize fund. Following proposed for membership:—Messrs. J. Nimmo (Wishaw) and McMillan (Glasgow). Meeting closed with vote of thanks to chair.—John Young, Hon. Sec.

MIDLAND COUNTIES Y.C.C.

Meeting held at headquarters, Crown Hotel, Birmingham, September 18, before a moderate attendance. Mr. C. W. Wells, chair. The following clubs are granted patronage: Hanley, October 16, nov. and champ.; Wolverhampton, October 26, champ. and nov.; Stoke-on-Trent, Nov. 13, nov.; Nottingham, Nov. 14, champ.; West Bromwich, Nov. 21, champ. and nov.; City of Birmingham, Dec. 3, champ. and nov.; Walsall, December 13, champ. and nov. It is for our members to well support the societies mentioned. Mr. A. Philpott elected member. Members please note in the new rules No. 19 with reference to the novice clause after the words, "who has never won," it should read, "a first prize in open competition." Owing to fresh appointment, Sec. will, we are afraid, be unable to continue his duties, much to his regret.—Per pro. Sec., J. C.

QUEEN'S PARK (London) C.B.A.

Meeting held September 24th, Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road, Mr. Lawrence in the chair, before a good muster of members. In the absence of the secretary, it was decided to go on with table show as arranged, there being a good turn up of birds. Mr. F. Eaton was elected as final judge, and his awards gave all round satisfaction. He received a vote of thanks, and a vote of thanks to the chair closed the meeting.

UDDINGSTON C.B.S.

The lecture on "The Study of Nature, and its relation to Men and Birds" was a great success. Mr. Davidson dealt at great length on his personal experience of wild bird life in India, where he spent most of his young life. His denunciation of the "Indian Crow" was both humorous and interesting; all who were fortunate to be present voted the lecture one of the best of its kind, and Mr. Davidson was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Next lecture soon.—J. Cosgrove.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Fortnightly show meeting, held at headquarters, Duke of York, September 25, with a full attendance. Mr. F. J. Weaver presided. The chief business was the presenting of schedule before going to press, and the allotting of special prizes at our all England show, October 24-25. This of itself was a very full order, and I would like to hear of any member who may like to give or get a special, as every one adds grist to the mill. Intending members should notify sec. as soon as possible; will supply full particulars and rules.—J. Gibbons, Hon. Sec., 61, Napier Road.

NEWTONGRANGE C.B.S.

Meeting held in Dean Tavern, Sept. 22, Mr. A. M. Gardiner chair. Letters were read from various judges, and the following were appointed:—Norwich Plainhead section and A.O.V. class, Mr. A. Fleming (Musselburgh); Borders, Scotch Fancy, and Yorks, Mr. J. Sheerin (Kilmarnock); British, Mr. J. Aitken (Leith). Letter read from sec. of Scottish F.C. intimating that patronage had been withheld by a very narrow majority. The Border Fancy and the B.B. and M.C. patronage had been granted, and the Editor of CAGE BIRDS had extended the Coupon Competition to Newtongrange Show. Sec. was instructed to procure estimates for schedules and catalogues. Subscription sheets and books were again submitted to the meeting, and a hearty response has been met so far.—W. Bryson, Sec.

STANLEY (Empire Workmen's Club) F.F. AND C.B.S.

Meeting held Sept. 21, J. Emmerson chair; a good number turned up to adopt schedule for 6th Annual Members Show, we put on 21 classes for cage birds, and we expect to beat all records. The committee is helping us all that they possibly can to increase the fancy in our district. We got a few more specials at our meeting, and we expect all fanciers to get as many specials as they can, so that we may have one for each class, at least. Mr. Wm. Elliott gives a special for worst bird; Mr. T. Taylor best Greenfinch; Mr. J. Boyce, best Linnet; Mr. J. Atherton, special for section, and other special donors are Messrs. Dickinson, Elliott, Robson, Lamb, Heskey, Stephenson, and Minto, Mrs. Knotts, and Elliott, and Holland.—Wm. Robinson, Sec.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.C.

Meeting held Village School Room, Alexandria, September 23, President Donaldson, chair. The principal business was a visit from Mr. Wm. Hutchison, Sec. Glasgow C.B.A., who gave a demonstration on how to wash a Canary for exhibition. Starting by showing how the bird should be held, he proceeded in bringing about a transformation, giving tips here and there, his expert handling creating great interest and proving a treat to all. A club competition was afterwards held, which created much enthusiasm, as the various competitors went through their work in a businesslike manner. Mr. Hutchison judged, and his decisions—1st Mrs. McLean; 2nd, Mrs. W. B. Gillies; 3rd, Mrs. Liles, were received with applause. Mr. Hutchison, was afterwards thanked for so kindly giving the clever demonstration, which had been so greatly appreciated.—A. H. McLean, Sec.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds".

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ⅝-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.
